35 MEN KILLED AS U.S. PLANE CRASHES IN ICY SEA OFF JAPAN

Transport Carrying 34 Service Men and One Civilian Was Only 10 Minutes From Its Destination.

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (AP)—A United States Air Force plane, only 10 minutes from its destination, plunged 34 American servicemen and an Army civilian employe to death today in icy waters off Hokkaido island, the Air Force said.

None of the 30 passengers and five crewmen survived the crash of the twin-engine C-46 Commando, a courier plane shuttling mail and supplies to a base in northern Japan, said an Air Force spokesman.

The plane crashed at 1:45 p.m. (10:45 p.m. St. Louis time, Sunday) in the 25-mile-wide strait between Hokkaido and Honshu, Japan's main island.

It was on a regular run from Tachikawa Air Force Base near Tokyo to Chitose Air Force Base near Sapporo, principal city of the big northern island of Hokkaido.

Japanese coast guard boats recovered some of the bodies.

The Air Force spokesman said only some open parachutes and an oil slick were spotted by search planes at the scene, about 20 miles from land. There were no signs of life.

"It's bitter cold up there now; they had a big blizzard on Hokkaido day before yesterday," he said.

Passengers on such flights customarily wear life jackets and parachutes. However, a man could stay alive only a few minutes in the icy water of the strait.

Names of the victims were withheld.

There was no immediate report on the cause of the crash. The pilot merely reported an emergency and three minutes later said he was ditching the plane.

The plane was attached to the 315th Troop Carrier Wing, based at Tachikawa.

By the United Press.

Japanese ashore said they saw the plane lose altitude rapidly at 1:45 p.m., after the pilot had flashed a distress message. Engine trouble apparently developed and the pilot tried to "ditch" the plane.

The oil slick and floating parachutes led the search planes immediately to the scene.

40 FIRST GRADERS BEGIN SPANISH IN LANGUAGE TEST

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (UP)—An entire first grade began learning Spanish today in an experiment intended to prove that children under 10 can absorb a foreign language much easier than eighth- and ninth-grade pupils.

Forty students in the first grade of the Francis Scott Key school were in on the experiment, approved by their parents, the Parent Teachers Association and the Board of Education.

Grover Ramsey, principal of the school, said Spanish was chosen as the language because a regular first-grade teacher, Miss Roberta Aiken, is qualified to teach that language.

Ramsey said he believed children under 10 are best equipped to make the best use of all the noises and sounds used in languages.

He said speech characteristics of children over 10 have already been developed and the habits prevent the children from learning to speak a foreign language without trace of an English accent or some type of brogue.

CITIZENS' BOND UNIT BACKS COUNTY COUNCIL ON ROAD

Opponents Have Been Assured Parkway Will Not Be Built Without Approval of Clayton, University City.

Members of the citizens' committee for the $44,732,500 St. Louis county bond issue discussed yesterday the opposition by a Clayton-University City group to the $32,124,000 item for highways and reaffirmed their belief in the integrity of the County Council.

The council, in response to objections to a proposed $6,500,000 Central Parkway through Clayton and University City, has promised that the parkway will not be built without approval of these communities.

However, the objectors have disregarded this assurance, pointing out a future council might override the present one, and are conducting an active campaign against the entire highway proposition.

Walter C. Ploeser, former Representative and chairman of the citizens' bond committee, has charged that the opposition represents the "selfish interest" of a small group which has not only attacked the integrity of the county government but also would deprive the rest of the county of many millions of dollars in critically needed highway improvements.

If the bonds are approved at the special election Feb. 9, Ploeser pointed out today, some construction projects can get under way as early as next summer.

He cited particularly the proposed courthouse additions, hospital buildings and certain roads on which preliminary engineering already has been completed.

"We of the committee feel that the bond issue comes at a most timely moment, in view of the fact that there has been a recent rise in unemployment in Missouri," said Ploeser, a former Representative.

"It should be emphasized that out of the aggregate of around $90,000,000 in county, state and federal funds to be spent under the bond program, roughly $80,000,000 will go directly or indirectly for job opportunities."

He said the committee was asking both AFL and CIO trades groups to prepare estimates of how many man-hours of work would be involved in the bond program.

Immediately after approval of the bonds, he continued, his committee will urge that the County Council, charged with spending the money, get to-

P.S. CO. READJUSTS SCHEDULES, HAS 5 FEWER RUNS

Public Service Co. reported it made a net reduction of five runs in a total of 1679 today, adjusting back to schedules in effect before the Christmas holiday rush. On the total of 65 lines, some runs were eliminated and some were added, the company reported.

For convenience and efficiency of operation, the company made the changes at the time of the quarterly "pick of runs"—when drivers are permitted to change assignments if they wish, with seniority the deciding factor.

This was the first adjustment since Nov. 1. At that time, the company added runs on lines feeding the downtown area and other crowded shopping areas, to accommodate a greater number of riders in the holiday period.

200 LETTERS A DAY SEEK INTERVIEWS WITH EISENHOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—The White House receives more than 200 letters a day asking for personal interviews with President Eisenhower, in addition to many telephone calls and telegrams for the same purpose. Only a small fraction of the requests can be granted.

The rule of thumb in granting an appointment with the President is "Government business first." This means officials of the federal establishment come ahead of semi-social requests of national organizations, fraternal groups and state officials.

Eisenhower has from six to 10 engagements a day. More than half of those are fixed weekly dates such as the meetings of the Cabinet and the National Security Council, the congressional leaders on Monday morning and many more. Consequently, there really is little time left for the people who write in.

The President has fewer purely handshaking appointments than former President Truman had. But like Truman, Eisenhower has at least one firm bar on a certain type of caller—no "queens," beauty, citrus, vegetable or otherwise. Too many of them.

FIREMAN SWAPS WITH COP, BOTH LIKE NEW JOBS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 1 (UP)—Policeman Stephen E. O'Brien swapped jobs with fireman John C. Buckley and after several tours of duty each reported today he was satisfied with his new work.

What Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Buckley thought of the greener-pastures deal was not recorded. Both men lost nearly $400 yearly because they reverted to rookie status.

4 Scientists Use Atomic Gauge, Rate Earth 4½ Billion Years Old

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Four scientists using an atomic yardstick to measure time have pushed the origin of earth back to at least 4½ billion years ago.

This is the oldest date yet obtained by analyzing elements in the solar system.

However, there is evidence that for some two billion years of its existence, the earth's surface was molten or in some other diffuse non-solid state.

The studies were based on two slightly different kinds of lead found in meteorites — the small bodies which scientists say were formed in the same nuclear upheaval that produced the earth.

The lead once was uranium, a substance that loses its radioactivity at a known rate. However, there are at least two kinds of isotopes in natural uranium, differing slightly in weight.

The different rate at which the two kinds of isotopes lose their radioactivity is the key to the age-determining technique.

The heavier isotope, Uranium 238, loses half its radioactivity in 4½ billion years, decaying into lead 206. Another uranium isotope, U-235—the kind used in the A-bomb—loses half its radioactivity in 710,000,000 years, and decays into lead 207.

A comparison of the ratio of the two kinds of lead present reveals the age of the sample. The higher the proportion of lead 206, the older the sample.

The study contended that the meteorite had existed in its present state for four and one-half billion years.

U.S., RED PLANES CLASH OFF KOREA, MIG SHOT DOWN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Air Force said today United States planes and MIG-15 jet fighters fought a sharp engagement near the Korean coast only 10 days ago, after a United States reconnaissance bomber was attacked.

No American aircraft were lost, but one of the Russian-made jets was shot down. An Air Force spokesman here, who had only terse information on the incident, said so far as was known in Washington there were no United States casualties nor plane damage.

As for the nationality of the MIG pilots, he said only "it is safe to assume they were Communists."

This was the first known clash between United States and Communist planes since the Korean armistice was signed July 27. Whether by coincidence or not, it occurred on a day of considerable tension—Jan. 22. This was the day on which United Nations officials released to civilian status prisoners of war who refused to be repatriated to Red-held territory. The Communists had insisted they must be kept in neutral custody. However, no serious incident developed.

The Air Force gave this account of the plane incident:

A United States RB-45 — a light, jet-propelled bomber fitted for reconnaissance work—was flying a roconnaissance mission Jan. 22 over international water northwest of Sok Island, off the west coast of Korea, when "a large formation of MIG-15 jet fighters" attacked it.

F-86 jets guarding the bomber opposed the attack and in the ensuing fight shot down one MIG.

TRUMAN TO DELIVER 'MAJOR TALK' IN NEW YORK FRIDAY

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—Former President Harry S. Truman will deliver a "major address" here on Friday when he will speak at the sixth annual Roosevelt dinner of the Americans for Democratic Action at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Truman's topic will be, "The Real Issues in American Politics." His speech will be broadcast by the CBS network from 9:35 to 10 p.m. (St. Louis time).

5 ALLEGED REDS TAUGHT THEORIES OF REVOLUTION, U.S. SAYS AT TRIAL

Sought to Organize Party as 'Vanguard for Action' in Overthrow of Government, Prosecutor Charges.

The five alleged Communists on trial in United States District Court instructed party members in the revolutionary theories of Joseph Stalin and Nikolai Lenin, late dictators of Russia, Lafayette E. Broome, special assistant to the Attorney General, told a jury in Judge Roy W. Harper's court today.

Broome outlined the basis of the Government's case against William Sentner, Robert Manewitz, James Forest and his wife, Dorothy Rose Forest, and Marcus A. Murphy, Negro. The five are charged with conspiring to advocate overthrow of the Government by force.

"Marxism-Leninism is an exposition of the duty and necessity of overthrowing and smashing the Government and governmental machinery by force and violence," Broome said.

'Concentrated Effort.'

He charged that the defendants, following the revolutionary theories of the founders of Communism, participated in "a concentrated effort to organize the party in such form as to make it a vanguard for action in time of crisis."

They organized meetings, held classes and distributed literature as part of a program eventually aimed at overthrowing the existing government in the United States and establishing a "dictatorship of the proletariat," Broome asserted.

The Government prosecutor charged that Sentner has been a Communist since the early 1930s and held high positions in the party, including membership on the state committee and the executive board.

He said Sentner was a Missouri delegate to the Communists' national convention in July 1945, and presided at a state convention the same year at which the party was "reconstituted."

Forest was state chairman from 1948 until return of the indictment against him in the fall of 1952, Broome asserted.

As leader of all party activities in Missouri during that period, Forest perfected plans for taking the organization underground and assumed general leadership of the Weydemeyer School of Social Science in St. Louis, the Government attorney told the jury.

Manewitz Director of School.

Manewitz likewise was a party member and leader for many years, holding posts with the state committee and executive board and serving as district educational director, Broome said. He reported Manewitz organized and directed a school known as the "Basic Training Institute" at 1041 North Grand boulevard in 1946.

Murphy, who lives near Charleston, Mo., attended the Lenin Institute in Moscow in 1934 and 1935, the Government alleged. He was chairman of the Communist party's city central committee here in 1948 and state educational director in 1949, besides holding other important posts, Broome said.

Mrs. Forest assisted her husband as district organizer, taught classes in the Weydemeyer school and was "especially active in setting up the underground structure of the party in 1950," the prosecution alleged.

Change in Party in 1944.

Broome called attention to a change that occurred in the Communist party in the United States following a meeting in Tehran in 1944 among President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Stalin while World War II was in progress.

"At that time Earl Browder was head of an organization known as the Communist party, U.S.A.," Broome related. "In May of 1944, soon after the conference at Tehran, a national convention of the Communist party met in New York.

"Browder laid before it a program which was a radical departure from any program theretofore pursued by the Communist party, U.S.A. It was a program of class peace and class collaboration. It was urged by Browder as being consistent with the joint statement issued at Tehran.

"The convention, acting under the leadership of Browder, dissolved the Communist party, U.S.A. The same convention at the same time and place created and organized the Communist Political Association.

"It abandoned the historic concept of class struggle for a policy of class peace and class collaboration. National unity was stressed above all else. As you remember, the Soviet Union was fighting for its very existence against the German invaders."

Another Party About-Face.

Browder's program was approved by Communist organizations throughout the country, including the one in St. Louis, until Jacques Duclos, a party

MOLOTOV OFFERS TREATY FOR UNIFIED GERMANY TO BIG FOUR CONFERENCE

DENIAL OF WORK AS DISCIPLINARY MOVE BY UNIONS RULED ILLEGAL

Supreme Court Also Holds Firms Can't Give Union Men Benefits Not Extended to Others.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled today that unions violate the Taft-Hartley Labor Law when they deny work to members as a means of union discipline.

And in the same 7-to-2 vote, the court held that a company violates the law by granting benefits to union employes while denying them to non-union workers. The benefits were a retroactive wage increase and vacation payments, made after a new working agreement was signed in 1948 in the Gaynor News Co. of New York and the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union.

Justice Reed delivered the majority decision in the consolidated cases. Chief Justice Warren and Justices Burton, Clark, Frankfurter, Jackson and Minton concurred. Justice Black wrote a dissenting opinion in which he was joined by Justice Douglas.

The union discipline ruling was given in two appeals involving AFL unions.

In one case, Willard Christian Fowler, of Miami, charged the Radio Officers' union caused the Bull Steamship Co. to refuse him a job because he did not get a preliminary union "clearance."

In the second case, James Frank Boston, a truck driver, charged the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Local No. 41, caused the Byers Transportation Co., of Kansas City, to deprive him of work assignments when he got behind in payments of union dues.

Taft-Hartley makes it an unfair labor practice for a union to attempt to cause an employer to discriminate against an employe in violation of a subsection of the act. The subsection makes it an unfair practice for an employer to encourage or discourage membership in a union "by discrimination in regard to hire or any term or condition of employment."

In each of the three cases decided today the National Labor Relations Board held the Taft-Hartley Act had been violated. The New York and St. Louis circuit courts of appeals took differing views, and the appeals followed.

New York Case.

The deliverers union involved in the New York City case ordinarily admits to membership only the first-born sons of its own members. The Gaynor firm, a wholesale distributor of newspapers and periodicals, hired non-union workers when the union could not supply any labor from its own ranks.

That case had its beginning when a non-union employe, Sheldon Loner, complained to the NLRB that Gaynor had refused him the benefits granted to union members and thus was encouraging him to become a union member.

The Gaynor firm contended throughout the litigation that its conduct was motivated by business reasons and not by union activity.

The NLRB did not dispute this but said a purpose or desire to encourage or discourage union membership need not be shown.

Reed's Finding.

In his majority decision, Justice Reed said: "If there is a seasonable likelihood that the (union-encouraging) effects may be felt years later, then a reasonable interpretation of the act demands that the employer be deemed a violater."

Dissenting, Black and Douglas said the section of the Taft-Hartley Act involved does not forbid all discrimination but rather forbids an employer to discriminate only when he does so in order to "encourage or discourage" union membership.

Recently, Black said, the NLRB has adopted the view that the section outlaws discrimination merely having a "tendency to encourage," or the "natural and probable effect" of which would be to encourage union membership.

Black said he thinks the court's new interpretation "imputes guilt to an employer for conduct which Congress did not wish to outlaw."

The Gaynor firm appealed after the United States circuit court in New York upheld the NLRB ruling.

The Teamsters union case began when Boston, the truck driver, failed to pay his union dues for June 1950, until July 5. On that date he paid up for June and July. His union about July 15, 1950, compiled a new job seniority list which reduced

Bricker and George Balk, Tie Up Compromise Plan on Treaties

They Reject White House Idea on Clause Pertaining to Presidential Agreements.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Efforts at compromise on the Bricker treaty-power amendment struck a new snag today when Senator Bricker (Rep.), Ohio, and Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, balked at a reported White House suggestion for dealing with a controversial clause concerning presidential agreements.

Republican leaders had talked over a proposed compromise with President Eisenhower and reported he was inclined to indorse it if one "major legal and constitutional problem can be cleared up."

Senator Knowland of California, the G.O.P. floor leader, said that while this point would require considerable further exploration, "we are closer to an agreement than we have ever been before."

From other sources, it was learned that one suggestion made at the White House conference called for the Senate to act on the proposed compromise without a clause inserted by George which reads: "An international agreement other than a treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through an 'act of Congress."

Planned Further Study.

The suggestion was that, if the Senate would approve an amendment without the clause, the White House would meantime study the possible effect of such a clause and either approve it as it stands or submit substitute language to the House when it takes up the issue.

George said in an interview he would not agree to any such procedure.

"I will not support the amendment unless it has this clause," George said. "It is the only way that Congress can find out what is in some international agreements. It protects the rights of the states where they must be protected if they are going to be protected at all—in the Congress and the Supreme Court."

The Georgian's position was regarded as extremely significant, since he is looked to for advice on the treaty-power amendment by a large segment of the Senate's 48 Democrats.

Senator Bricker, like George, said he would not agree to even

SECOND CLIMBER FOUND DEAD ON MT. WASHINGTON

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N.H. Feb. 1 (AP)—Searchers found the body of Phil Longenecker, 25 years old, of Toledo, O., in the snow on the slopes of this mountain peak this afternoon, about 24 hours after the body of his companion Jacques Parysko, 23, was discovered.

Longenecker's body was in a sleeping bag about 20 feet from a smashed igloo which he and Parysko had built on Friday.

Veteran mountain climbers believed an avalanche tumbled down on the igloo early Sunday morning as the men slept. Parysko apparently escaped the crushing snow in Tuckerman's ravine, but evidently lost his equipment and froze to death after battling his way about a mile down the mountain.

The two young men were students at Harvard.

Skiers found Parysko's body yesterday on Sherborne trail. The deaths were the thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth in records of the mountain, highest in New England.

Longenecker and Parysko were working on a series of survival experiences under arctic conditions. It was about 20 below zero overnight at the summit of the mountain with a maximum wind velocity of 80 miles an hour.

HOUSEWIVES STILL BALK AT SECURITY TAX ON DOMESTICS

MARSHALL, Tex., Feb. 1 (AP)—Rebuffed by the Supreme Court, Marshall's rebellious housewives say they're still not paying social security taxes on wages of domestic servants.

In their first move since the Supreme Court refused to hear their appeal from adverse lower court decision, the housewives Saturday fired off a letter to Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews.

They told Andrews they are again filing quarterly income tax reports but are making no payments and charged the courts have based their ruling on tax law instead of constitutional law.

The housewives argue they cannot constitutionally be forced to serve as tax collectors. Their leader, Mrs. Carolyn Abney, told reporters "we have been given a judicial runaround."

Robbers Awaiting Victim's Return Tell Bedtime Stories to Children

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Two robbers told bedtime stories to keep three small children quiet last night while they awaited the return of the youngsters' father to rob him of $4525 in cash and jewelry valued at $5000.

One of the gang of five posed as a Western Union messenger to get into the northwest side home of Louis Fahrberger, a bakery owner.

The baby-sitter, who admitted them, Mrs. Marian Schmidt, was forced to escort one robber through the house on his search for valuables.

The noise of their attempts to break into a wall safe aroused the children—Christine, 3; Fred, 4, and Louis Jr., 8.

The robbers and Mrs. Schmidt, by their orders, took turns telling the youngsters about Goldilocks and the Three Bears, the Three Little Pigs, and other fairy tale characters to allay their alarm over the presence of strangers.

When Fahrberger walked in, he told police, one of the robbers seized Christine and said, "I'll shoot her if you don't get your hands up and that safe open."

The robbers locked Fahrberger, Mrs. Schmidt and the youngsters in a closet before leaving. Fahrberger, who was able to force the door open, said they overlooked $1000 in cash in his pockets.

RUSSIANS BY-PASS VEXING ISSUES; URGE NEW PARLEY BEFORE OCTOBER

Plan Calls for Occupying Powers to Get Out Within Year — Bars Military Pacts, Fixes Borders.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

BERLIN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov laid before the Big Four conference tonight the draft of a peace treaty for a united Germany.

Molotov dropped his bombshell at the end of the longeste session yet — 4½ hours — over which the Russian himself presided in the Soviet embassy in East Berlin.

The Soviet diplomat declared the abnormal situation of a partitioned Germany "must be ended." He said the only way to do it is to see that Germany gets a peace treaty. Therefore, the Russian added, he is submitting one with a proposal for an international conference to act on it.

By-Passes Vexing Issues.

By jumping forward to the subject of a peace treaty, Molotov hurdled questions that have vexed the Big Four on Germany since they convened a week ago. He leaped over arguments for all-German participation in the parley itself, over the row on the western demand for "free elections first," and indeed over Moscow's own stand that unification must precede a peace pact.

Said Molotov:

"The conclusion of a peace treaty is of major importance for the promotion of peace in Europe. The necessity of accelerating the conclusion of a peace treaty with German is dictated by the fact that the danger of resurgence of German militarism, which twice has unleased a world war, has not been removed."

This was the Kremlin's way of saying that West Germany's intention to rearm even within the defensive framework of the European Defense Community is aggression to the Russians. The peace treaty idea was one more haymaker swung by the Russians to damage, postpone or cancel EDC.

Favors Quick Approval.

The Soviet minister said the German peace conference should be convened within six months and in any case not later than October this year.

His proposal further called for withdrawal of the armed forces of the occupying powers not later than one year after the treaty takes effect.

He proposed that deputy foreign ministers of the four occupation powers get together on the treaty within the next three months. The draft he presented was a purely unilateral Soviet version.

At all stages, Molotov declared, "appropriate participation of German representatives shall be provided for."

He plugged again for recognition of the East German Communist government by advancing in his plan the idea that both the East and the Bonn regimes be represented in the talks.

The Soviet draft treaty said Germany shall be permitted to have national armed forces of land, air and sea as required for defense.

"These armed forces shall be limited to meet the tasks of an internal character, local defense of frontiers and anti-aircraft defense," the draft said.

It also provided that Germany will be permitted to produce war materials, but in quantities required for the forces sanctioned by the peace treaty.

Fixing Boundaries.

The Soviet draft said the territory of Germany will be determined by the boundaries fixed at Potsdam—leaving Russia and Poland in possession of German provinces east of the Oder-Neisse line.

The Moltov draft forbids the German state to enter any military alliance directed against any single country which participated in the war against Hitler.

Any deals made by the current rival governments of split Germany would not be binding on the new regime, under the Russian plan, which said specifically:

"No obligations of a political or military character arising out of treaties or agreements concluded by the German Federal Republic (West) and the German Democratic Republic (East) prior to the signing of the peace treaty with Germany and the reunification of Ger-

ZAHEDI URGED TO APPROVE PLAN FOR MARKETING OF IRANIAN OIL

Proposal Calls for U.S., British Companies to Handle Most of Petroleum — Firms Immune to Trust Action.

TEHRAN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Advisers of Premier Fazollah Zahedi are reported to have recommended approval of an agreement under which American and British oil companies would market the bulk of Iran's huge oil output, dried up for nearly three years by the Government's bitter dispute with Britain.

Such an agreement would remove one major obstacle to the resumption of Iranian oil supply to the Western world. Presumably it would depend on agreement on two other sorely disputed questions:

1. The demands by the British government's Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. for compensation for its huge nationalized installations in Iran;

2. Which nation would supply technicians to help Iran rehabilitate and operate the long idle refinery at Abadan.

A member of Zahedi's advisory committee said his group had recommended that a group of American companies market 50 per cent of Iran's oil products, British companies headed by the Anglo-Iranian handle 45 per cent and the Iranian Government sell the remaining 5 per cent.

Zahedi's cabinet still must approve the recommendation. The Premier himself met with the committee last night.

Sources in Washington said the American companies would be Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of California, Gulf Oil, the Texas Co. and Socony Vacuum. United States Attorney General Herbert Brownell, at the direction of the National Security Council, has granted the companies immunity from antitrust prosecution so they can join the combine.

Washington sources said, however, that many months of negotiation were in prospect, but that top American officials were confident this approach eventually would solve the Iranian oil crisis.

Herbert Hoover Jr., special petroleum adviser to Secretary of State Dulles, is in London discussing the plan with British Government and company officials.

(The Justice Department action, officials in Washington said, gives the American companies only the right to join the combine. Brownell has reserved the authority to take action against them if they violate existing laws in marketing the oil by such devices as manipulating prices or dividing world markets.)

The idea of an international combine to help solve the Iranian-British oil problem was originally conceived by the Truman Administration. Mohammed Mossadegh, ex-Iranian premier, balked at accepting any such arrangement.

Fleeing From Pusan Fire

Struggling under the weight of a chest of household goods, a resident of Pusan, Korea, flees from the fire which burned out a three-quarter-mile stretch of flimsy homes last Friday. More than 8000 persons were left homeless and 1500 houses were destroyed in the blaze, the second disastrous fire in the city in three months.

TROOPS REPORTED ATTACKING DRUSE REBELS IN SYRIA

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Feb. 1 (AP)—Reports reaching here today said Syrian troops have gone into action to put down a revolt of Druse tribesmen in southern Syria. Three Druse villages were reported to have been destroyed and about 15 others damaged.

Syrian President Col. Adib Shishekly last week proclaimed martial law and arrested 12 opposition leaders whom he accused of "openly calling for mutiny and disturbance." Shishekly said then there had been attacks on troops in various parts of Syria.

With strict censorship apparently blocking direct word from Damascus, Syria's capital, one informed source here said one Druse village was wiped out by a 12-hour artillery bombardment.

The Druses believe in one God who has visited the earth in 70 different incarnations. They accept Jesus as one of the incarnations but not the Prophet Mohammed, founder of the Moslem religion to which the bulk of the Syrians belong.

RADAR CENTER CHIEF TELLS OF MILITARY-CIVILIAN FIGHT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 1 (AP)—Dr. Edwin G. Schneider, director of the electronics laboratory of the Air Force research center in Cambridge, says "there is a fight between the military and civilian group" at the center.

He said last night that under changes scheduled for Feb. 14 he and John W. Marchetti, laboratory technical director, will be forced out of their posts "without justification or cause." The changes, he said, "are not in the best interest of the center nor the best interest of the country."

"There is a fight between the military and the civilian group," Schneider added. He said he and Marchetti made "formal charges" to Dr. Donald A. Qdarles, assistant to Secretary of Defense Wilson. He did not disclose details of the charges.

The center is working on "Project Lincoln," a top secret, multi-million dollar program for radar deefnse against enemy attack.

DECEMBER OUTPUT OFF 2 POINTS FROM THAT IN NOVEMBER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today that industrial production declined in December to an index of 127, two points below the November level and 7 per cent below peak production last July.

The Reserve Board said "a slight further decline is indicated for January."

The production figure for December given today in the Reserve Board's monthly summary of business conditions was one point below the level given last week, on the basis of earlier data, in a roundup of business conditions in 1953. The production index is based upon average production in the three years between 1947 and 1949.

The index figure for December indicated that production that month was 27 per cent higher than in the base period. Last May, and again in July, the board's production index reached a high of 137, or 37 per cent higher than the average in 1947-49. Since July, production has fallen off steadily.

SENATE'S COFFEE HEARING NEXT WEEK

Federal Trade Commission Trying to Find Evidence of Rigging.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—A Senate Banking subcommittee voted today to start public hearings next Monday in an effort to find out why coffee prices have soared.

At the same time Chairman Edward F. Howrey of the Federal Trade Commission announced that a crew of the agency's investigators is trying to find out whether somebody has managed to corner the coffee market.

The White House told FTC last week to make a full scale investigation of the recent coffee price rise.

Chairman Beall (Rep.), Maryland, of the Senate subcommittee said the group voted to conduct hearings in Washington, New York and "anywhere else necessary to learn the reason for this swift rise in coffee to more than a dollar a pound."

Beall said the first witnesses will include officials of the New York Coffee Exchange, coffee brokers and representatives of large consumers such as chain and independent retail stores.

Beall said that a few importers supply the entire United States market, which has averaged two and one-half billion pounds or more in recent years.

He questioned whether frost and insect damage in Brazil, which normally supplies half the coffee used here, could cause "the radical price increases recently," and said the group would begin by checking on supplies and consumption.

RABIES QUARANTINE IN SCOTT, CAPE GIRARDEAU COUNTIES

SIKESTON, Mo., Feb. 1 (AP)—A strict quarantine was imposed in Scott and Cape Girardeau counties today in an effort to combat the growing threat of a rabies egidemic in southeast Missouri.

Dr. L. A. Rosner, state veterinarian, ordered the quarantine, which requires all cats and dogs to be penned. A similar quarantine was placed on Shannon, Texas and Howell counties last week.

Dr. Rosner said in the last two months, 12 cases of positive rabies have been reported by Southeast Missouri Laboratories here. He said 10 children were bitten or scratched by cats and dogs in Kelso, Scott county, and 16 children here.

B. & O. RECALLING 1500 MEN

BALTIMORE, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Baltimore & Ohio railroad announced today that about 1500 laid off workers were being recalled this week in the railroad's 13-state area. About 11,000 employes were laid off in December and January.

The railroad presented figures to show its carloadings were off about 14.8 per cent for last month as compared with January of 1953 and said the recalls were the "result of an adjustment of railroad forces."

POPE TO REMAIN IN BED 3 DAYS; HICCUPS PERSIST

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 1 (UP)—Vatican sources said today Pope Pius XII will spend the next three days in bed in an attempt to conquer the hiccupping that has upset his nervous system.

The 77-year-old Pontiff became ill last week and was forced to call off all audiences and other ceremonies.

Vatican authorities said over the weekend that the Pope was recovering satisfactorily but must prolong his "period of less work and regular rest."

Prof. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, the Pope's physician, said the Pontiff had a "fair" night but his hiccups persist.

Vatican sources said the Pope's general condition should cause no alarm.

For the second straight day the Pope did not say mass at the regular 7:30 a.m. period but he later heard mass said by a German priest attached to his personal secretariat.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The appointment of Donald J. Leehey of Harrison, N.Y., as manager of the Atomic Energy Commission's Santa Fe (N.M.) office was announced yesterday by General Manager K. D. Nichols.

The Santa Fe office conducts research, development, production and testing of atomic weapons for the AEC.

ADMINISTRATION CALLS JOBLESS LEVEL STABILIZED

Economic Experts Say Price Level Will Remain Steady for Next 18 Months.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Senate-House Economic Committee was told today the Administration is proceeding on the assumption unemployment has been stabilized at a level between 2,000,000 and 2,500,000.

Chairman Wolcott (Rep.), Michigan, of the group said Rowland Hughes, deputy budget director, testified at a closed-door hearing that this was the assumption used in drawing up the budget for the next financial year, which begins July 1.

Hughes reported also that the Administration and its economic experts believe the price level will be stable for the next 18 months, Wolcott said.

Total Now 2,360,000.

The Census Bureau announced last Friday that the jobless total in the nation had reached 2,360,000, the highest in three years.

Wolcott said Hughes convinced him the assumptions of unemployment and prices were "reasonable and perfectly safe."

Wolcott said also that Hughes gave a picture of the Administration's expectations on revenue which was "very optimistic."

The essence of it was, he said, that personal income levels and corporation profits will remain about the same for tax revenue purposes in the year beginning July 1 as in the current financial year.

Wolcott said Hughes noted that taxes have been cut and that some future reductions may be expected.

Douglas's View.

Senator Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, who attended the meeting, said afterwards he felt the Administration was too optimistic in its budget assumptions for the current fiscal year, which has five months to run.

Hughes said the deficit for this year now is about $9,400,000,000. Eisenhower has forecast it will be down to $3,274,000,000 when the year ends June 30. Revenue customarily runs well ahead of spending in the last part of a fiscal year.

Douglas said he doubted whether the deficit would drop to the President's figure.

Wolcott said, however, he would string along with Eisenhower and his budget bureau.

"I want to be just as optimistic as they are," he said.

Disappeared Jan. 24 After Being Ordered Home — Russians Say He Was Kidnaped by Americans.

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (AP) — An American source said today Yuri Alexandrovich Rastovorov, a Russian diplomat-intelligence agent, asked for and was granted political asylum by the United States.

The source, who refused to be identified, told the Associated Press it is almost certain that Rastovorov has left Japan and may be en route to the United States.

A Russian spokesman accused the United States of kidnaping Rastovorov, second secretary of the defunct Soviet mission to Tokyo. The object, he charged, was "provocation of the Soviet Union."

The break in the long silence on the cloak and dagger story of Rastovorov stirred speculation that the largest spy ring in Asia may have been cracked.

The Russian diplomat disappeared from the Soviet Embassy Jan. 24, on the eve of his scheduled departure for Russia.

S. I. Runov, spokesman for the Russian mission here — unrecognized by Japan — called in Japanese reporters and issued a prepared statement accusing "the American espionage organ in Japan" of seizing and holding Rastovorov.

Rastovorov was known to be an intelligence agent. The Russian diplomats had free run of Japan and have been in a position to gather information on United States bases.

Rastovorov was one of several dozen Soviet diplomats who stayed behind after the Japanese peace treaty was signed in April 1952. Since the Soviet Union has not signed the peace treaty, the mission has no official status as it did during the occupation.

NEW YORK GIVES TURK PRESIDENT WARM WELCOME

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP) — Turkey's President Celal Bayar got a warm welcome in New York today—despite the cold.

The temperature was below freezing and Bayar and other parading dignitaries clasped heavy blankets about their shoulders as they saluted cheering spectators.

Lunch-hour throngs lined both sides of the street four deep as the parade moved north from Manhattan's southern tip to city hall for an official reception.

Fifty mounted policemen, their horses snorting puffs of cold-condensed vapor, led the caravan, followed by a color guard and bands of the Army, Marines, Navy and Air Force and police and fire departments.

44 CHARGED WITH PLOTTING COMMUNIST REVOLT IN EGYPT

CAIRO, Feb. 1 (UP)—President Mohammed Naguib's supreme military court charged 44 persons today with Communist activity and plotting to set up a Red regime in Egypt.

Sixten students, 15 workers, nine government officials and company employes, three journalists and a lawyer were accused of inciting revolution against Naguib's government.

The indictment charged that as members of the "Democratic Movement for National Liberation," the defendants plotted to wipe out the capitalist and employer class and establish a Russian-style "working class" society in its place.

AIR FORCE FORMING PARATROOP UNITS FOR COMBAT DUTY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—The Air Force will drop small ground combat teams side-by-side with the Army's paratroops in any future war.

An announcement today said a dozen combat control teams are being organized to parachute delivery of airborne troops and supplies.

Six of the specialized 14-man teams already are established at tactical air command troop carrier bases. In war, they would be dropped ahead of army troops to mark the drop zone with colored panels, flares and special communications equipment. They take the place of the Army's former "Pathfinders."

Eventually, the Air Force said, each troop carrier group around the world will have its own combat control team.

NEW QUAKES ROCK ISLANDS WHERE 1000 DIED IN AUGUST

ATHENS, Feb. 1 (AP) — The Ionian islands of Kefallinia, Zakinthos and Ithaca — where 1000 persons were killed in devastating quakes last August —have been rocked by new tremors. No more lives have been reported lost, however.

Thrity quakes on Saturday demolished some buildings and set off landslides which blocked roads. Loud rumblings before the quakes struck terror into the population. Torrential rain added to the hardship of those in stricken areas.

USE OF ILLEGAL EVIDENCE UPHELD TO DISPROVE LIE

Admitted to Impeach Credibility, Not to Convict — Supreme Court 7-2 on Issue.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Drawing a fine legal line, the Supreme Court ruled 7-2 today that illegal evidence may be introduced into federal court trials to show untruthfulness by the defendant.

Upholding the the 1951 conviction of Sam Walder of Kansas City on charges that he made four illegal sales of heroin, Justice Frankfurter wrote for the court majority today:

"It is one thing to say that the Government cannot make an affirmative use of evidence unlawfully obtained. It is quite another to say that the defendant can turn the existence of such evidence to his own advantage by using it as a shield against contradiction of untruth."

At his trial, Walder testified he had never had anything to do with narcotics. The prosecutor then introduced rebuttal testimony by narcotics agents that they had found a capsule of heroin in Walder's apartment during an illegal search a year earlier.

An indictment against Walder growing out of that finding had been dismissed when narcotics agents said they did not have a warrant to search the apartment.

Walder's appeal contended evidence about the 1950 seizure should not have been admitted at his 1951 trial. Lower federal courts ruled such rebuttal evidence was admissible, not to show Walder's guilt, but to impeach his credibility.

Justices Black and Douglas noted dissents from today's opinion. Chief Justice Warren and Justices Minton, Clark, Reed, Jackson and Burton concurred in Frankfurter's opinion.

EX-QUEEN GIVES UP CLAIMS TO KING FAROUK'S BABY SON

CAIRO, Feb. 1 (UP) — Ex-Queen Narriman yesterday signed away all claims today to the custody of her 2-year-old son Fuad Ahmed in return for an agreement by deposed King Farouk to divorce her.

The 19-year-old former queen also agreed to drop her $14,000 a month alimony suit in a document she signed at her home while her mother and grandmother wept. Fuad is with Farouk in Italy.

Wham Tells Grand Jury to 'Indict Any Persons, Corporations, Organizations' That Appear Guilty.

United States District Judge Fred L. Wham today charged a grand jury at East St. Louis to seek out reported violations of the federal anti-racketeering statute and to "indict any persons, corporations or organizations whom you may have reasonable cause to believe have been guilty of violating this law."

In ordering the opening of the inquiry, which follows six months of investigation by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Internal Revenue Service in Illinois, Judge Wham detailed provisions of the anti-racketeering law and said: "The importance of the enforcement of this law is too plain, it seems to me, to require elaboration or emphasis."

He pointed out that a St. Louis grand jury had found evidence of widespread violations of the anti-racketeering law in Missouri of "a flagrant nature and character said to have been very damaging to commerce."

'Burdens on Business.'

"According to newspaper stories I have read," he said, "some of the evidence produced before that grand jury indicated strongly that related and similar violations in this district have been imposing heavy and damaging burdens on business and commerce."

The anti-racketeering law was not intended to affect in any way the lawful activities of labor unions, Judge Wham said, but was intended to serve equally employes, employers and the public by preventing imposition of unlawful burdens upon commerce by threats or violence in the nature of robbery and extortion, as defined in the statute, or attempts to rob or extort money or property by violence or threats or putting in fear.

"I can't think of any way that honest labor could be injured more severely than by interference with interstate commerce," he said. "Increased costs resulting from this interference must be borne by the consumer."

In opening his charge to the grand jury, which will be concerned with violations in the eastern district of Illinois, Judge Wham pointed out the importance of keeping interstate commerce free of all unlawful burdens, including theft from interstate shipments and transportation of stolen property across state lines.

"It behooves the Congress to endeavor to protect interstate commerce in every possible way for two reasons," he declared.

"They are: (1) The United States Constitution places interstate and foreign commerce under the control of the Federal Government and it is the duty of the Congress to exercise that control, and (2) interstate commerce has become the most single important factor in our national economy, and its protection against undue burdens is essential to the national welfare."

The judge read the law and cited a number of cases to illustrate how it can be violated. One case was that of John P. Nick of St. Louis and Clyde A. Weston of East St. Louis, former officials of the Motion Picture Operators' Union, who were the first labor bosses to be tried and convicted for racketeering under the federal law. They each received five years in prison and were fined $10,000.

The eastern district includes all southernmost counties in Illinois, extending as far north as St. Clair county on the west and Kankakee county on the east. The area contains 45 counties.

Strict security measures were taken by government agencies as the grand jury went into session following the charge. The first phase is expected to last three days.

Twenty-seven witnesses have been subpenaed for the three-day session. Their names have not been revealed by the United States Attorney's office, which is conducting the investigation, and every means was being taken to surround the entire inquiry with secrecy.

Directing the investigation is Edward G. Maag, young East St. Louis lawyer recently appointed assistant United States attorney, who is co-ordinating material assembled by government agencies and from other sources. Working with Maag were United States Attorney Clifford M. Raemer and Assistant United States Attorney John Morton Jones.

Extensive Investigation.

The three-day meeting was the first of a series of grand jury sessions expected to continue through the winter and spring. Raemer has indicated the investigation will be an exhaustive one and will be carried on until all substantial leads have been developed.

Government investigators have been interested particularly in two large establishments involved in defense of the United States where construction has been hindered by continuing labor trouble—Scott Air Force Base, near Belleville, and the atomic energy facility at Joppa, Ill.

Contractors working at Scott Base and other government installations on the East Side have been plagued for years by jurisdictional strikes, labor riots, production slowdowns, featherbedding and other troubles which have caused many to abandon the field and others to increase their prices to prohibitive figures.

Post-Dispatch Investigation.

It was a Post-Dispatch investigation of these conditions, in July and August 1951, which resulted in publication of a series of articles revealing that at least some of these labor disturbances were put on at the direction of a few labor bosses as a means to extort money from contractors.

Using these articles and other material assembled by the Post-Dispatch, the FBI, upon authorization of the Department of Justice, then began an inquiry which has resulted in indictment of 16 AFL leaders in St. Louis and one in Springfield, Ill., for alleged violations of the federal anti-racketeering law.

Construction of the $160,000,000 Electric Energy plant at Joppa, which is being built to supply power for an atomic energy plant at Kevil, Ky., has been delayed by about 40 work stoppages in the last two years.

One of the labor leaders who has figured prominently in the Joppa troubles, Evan Dale of Carbondale, Ill., president and representative of the Southern Illinois District Council of the AFL Hodcarriers and Building Laborers' Union, was charged with labor racketeering in an indictment returned by the St. Louis grand jury last July.

Another, William B. Sanders, business agent of the AFL ironworkers' local at Paducah, Ky., was expelled for life by the International Association of Ironworkers because of insubordination. He was charged with continuing a strike after being ordered by the international to call it off.

The St. Louis grand jury, in an extensive report issued in July, said it had learned that contractors in Illinois had been "forced to pay a percentage of the dollar amount of their contracts to union officials in order to insure harmonious labor relations on the job."

The jury also said it found corrupt labor conditions in Illinois closely paralleling those uncovered in the investigation in the eastern district of Missouri.

ROBBERS BIND WOMAN AND LOOT PHARMACY

$804 Taken by Two Intruders—Victim's Husband Asleep at Time.

The St. Louis Pharmacy, 4200 St. Louis avenue, was robbed of $804 today by two robbers who bound a woman clerk with adhesive tape before they fled.

Mrs. Gus Hoelscher, wife of the proprietor, told police she was alone in the store about 9:30 o'clock when two Negroes entered. Both were armed with pistols, she said.

They forced her to open the safe, she told police, and took the money from it. They then took her to a rear room which cannot be seen into from the street and taped her ankles and wrists.

Police said Mrs. Hoelscher freed herself after a short time and called them. Of the $804 taken, $88 was the property of a private money order service for which the drug store is an agency and the remainder was drug store funds.

BOWLES SAYS U.S. TRAILS RUSSIA ON AID TO ASIA

Ex-Envoy to India in Talk Here Calls On Washington to Expand Assistance.

Russia is wearing a "new look" in the Far East and threatens to outdo the United States's lagging Point IV program with an assistance policy along Soviet lines, Chester Bowles, former American Ambassador to India, warned here last night.

"In my opinion we are not doing well in Asia," Bowles declared in a talk before more than 900 persons at the Y.M.H.A. Liberal Forum, 724 Union boulevard.

Bowles, former Democratic Governor of Connecticut, said the United States has acted decisively against Communist military moves, as in Korea, but had thus far shown inadequate understanding of the revolutionary struggle going on in Asia.

Pointing out that Russia gives Red China eight times the help that democratic India receives from this nation, Bowles called for greatly expanded American aid to India and other Far Eastern countries.

Cites Exploitation of East.

He said such an assistance program, carried out with true American idealism on a no-strings-attached basis, should properly be regarded as repayment of treasure removed by the West in Asia's long period of colonial exploitation.

If judicious help is denied, Bowles declared, then the Indian democracy might lose the titanic struggle with Red China, leaving the rest of Asia to conclude that the way to build a modern, successful industrial state is through Communism.

"Asia is in a tremendous hurry," Bowles emphasized. He said people there, even in remote villages, are acutely conscious of the fact that in past years the treasure of the East went to enrich the West. They know poverty and misery are not inevitable, he said, and they want improvements to come quickly.

Racial Humiliation Issue.

Bowles, who resigned as envoy to India last spring, said that if there is one all-important factor to be considered in the explosive Asiatic situation it is the resentment of racial humiliations imposed by their European conquerors.

That resentment, Bowles told his audience, has "bitten so deep in their souls it will take generations to erase it."

Bowles praised the Nehru government and said democracy is working in India. He described huge irrigation projects which are expected to bring about a 19 per cent increase in food productivity by 1956. Another objective of the present five-year plan, he said, is to cut India's malaria incidence from 100,000,000 cases a year to 500,000.

Bulk of the labor for the improvements now changing the face of India, Bowles said, is contributed by laborers and villagers. In urging more American help, he termed it deplorable that such assistance does not come from motives of idealism rather than from fear of Communism.

In the question period, Bowles maintained a rigidly bipartisan attitude. He said Republican Vice President Richard Nixon not only had made an excellent impression in his tour of Asia but had shown, on his return, an understanding of basic problems in the East.

YOUTH IS KILLED IN CRASH OF 4 AUTOS, 7 HURT

Vehicles of High School Students Race at 90 M.P.H., Hit Two Other Machines.

One youth was killed and seven persons were injured today when two automobiles occupied by high school students and racing at about 90 miles an hour collided with two other cars on U. S. Highway 67 a quarter of a mile south of Chambers road in north St. Louis county.

Glenon Le Barge, 5240 Alcott avenue, was killed. He was 20 years old.

The injured: John Calvey, 16, 5420 West Florissant avenue; James Sharp, 17, 4734 Beacon avenue; Luther Sharp, his brother, 16, of the same address; Joan Hopkins, 17, 820 Lebone avenue, Bellefontaine Neighbors; Orville Stewart, 49; Irene Stewart, 38, his wife, and Delores Stewart, 17, their daughter, of Jacksonville, Ill.

Deputy Constable Richard Law of the First District said James Sharp was the driver of an automobile in which Calvey and Le-Barge were passengers. He said Miss Hopkins was a passenger in the other machine which was driven by Luther Sharp. Occupants of both cars were Beaumont High School students.

Marshal Ervin Krone of Moline Acres said he saw the automobile in which the three youths were riding pull alongside the one being driven by Luther Sharp.

"It seemed that the three youths were trying to get the driver of the other machine to race," Krone said. "A few moments later both automobiles did begin racing and went up to about 90 miles an hour."

Krone said the leading automobile went over the crest of a hill and rammed against a machine being driven by Harry B. Moll, 4405 Bingham avenue. Moll had stopped momentarily to make a left turn into a side road.

Moll's machine was knocked across the highway into the path of the southbound automobile driven by Stewart as the other racing car piled into the wreckage.

Robert F. Toenjes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Toenjes, Columbia, Ill., was killed yesterday on State Highway 3 about two miles north of Columbia when the automobile he was driving turned over and plunged down an embankment.

Highway patrolmen said Toenjes, 19 years old, apparently was driving at high speed on a straight stretch of pavement when he lost control of the automobile. Toenjes was a billing clerk for a St. Louis trucking firm.

David Owens Sr., 31, of Marissa, was killed Saturday night when he lost control of the automobile he was driving on State Highway 13 about a mile and a half west of New Athens.

The machine turned over about five times after it went out of control on a curve, highway patrolmen said. Owens was the father of four children whose ages range from 2 to 12. He was an employe of the Aluminum Co. of America plant at East St. Louis.

R. C. Baker, a cook's helper, Chesterfield, was seriously injured by an automobile yesterday when crossing U.S. Highway 40 near Gumbo. Melvin A. Bramblett, Bowling Green, Mo., driver of the machine, said he swerved to avoid striking Baker who had started to run across the highway. Bramblett said Baker ran against the automobile. He suffered head injuries and a fractured left hip.

Tiny Power Units for Homes Long Way Off, Scientist Warns

Washington U. Chemist Says Enough Strontium to Heat House Would Cost Billion Dollars.

A Washington University scientist who has been working with radio active strontium expressed doubt today that "matchbox-size" nuclear power units will be lighting homes in the near future.

"It would take a billion dollars worth of the material to light one house, at present prices," Joseph W. Kennedy, chairman of the university's department of chemistry, estimated.

He was commenting on an announcement by Radio Corporation of America last week of a new method for converting rays from radioactive atoms directly into useful electricity. A tiny battery powered by strontium was displayed.

Price of Strontium.

Kennedy said radioactive strontium, a quantity of which he has been using in Atomic Energy Commission research at the university, costs 50 cents a millicurie. That is a thousandth of a curie, unit of measurement for radioactive substances.

Lighting a house, he calculated, would take several million curies at $500 a curie.

"I don't think there is enough in the world to power one house," he said, dashing a measure of cold water on speculation that miniscule nuclear batteries, good for lighting a home for 20 years, running a refrigerator and the like, are on the horizon.

Although radioactive strontium does not require a great deal of shielding under ordinary circumstances, Kennedy said one objection to its use for routine domestic chores is that a fire or short-circuit might produce deadly fumes.

Useful Purposes.

He said the tiny nuclear batteries definitely should be of value for powering radio instruments sent aloft in balloons, for weather devices dropped in polar regions and other purposes where compactness and longevity are important.

Kennedy, who collaborated in discovery and early study of plutonium, is in his second year of research under AEC auspices in an effort to obtain high voltages from radioactive strontium. The endeavor may bring simplification of instruments for medical use, such as the cyclotron.

The Washington University scientist has been in close touch with Ernest Linder of New York, one of four men who developed the nuclear battery in RCA laboratories. Kennedy and Linder will confer in New York this week.

LINEMAN IN ALTON MISHAP SURVIVES 33,000-VOLT SHOCK

Carrol Baldwin of Godfrey, Ill., a Union Electric lineman, today survived a shock from 33,000 volts suffered while working 20 feet above ground at an Alton sub-station.

The lineman suffered cuts and bruises when he fell to the rocky ground, after the short circuit caused a device automatically to shut off the current for about five seconds over a large part of Alton.

Fellow crewmen, trained in artificial respiration, worked with Baldwin until he was taken by ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital where his condition this afternoon was reported serious.

He was working at the substation at Sixth and Liberty streets when the accident occurred.

SGT. J. F. WHITE OF OLIVETTE IS AWARDED BRONZE STAR

Sgt. 1-C James F. White, son of Reed J. White, 1126 Collingwood drive, Olivette, has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in Korea last year between March 1 and Aug. 29, it was announced today.

Sgt. White, a member of the Corps of Engineers, was commended for directing "the timely installation and repair of critical roads, bridges, fords and bunkers" while under fire from enemy troops. The citation praised him for advancing from assistant squad leader to platoon sergeant and for "frequently performing his duties in the absence of a platoon leader."

The citation noted that he organized an evening-training program "to insure a constant supply of skilled personnel." In addition, for "his calm courage, resourcefulness and sound judgment under direct enemy fire" he was praised as an inspiration "to those working with him and under him." Sgt. White at present is stationed in Colorado.

BOARD OK SOUGHT FOR APPRAISAL OF PARKS AIRPORT

Study Also to Be Urged of Effect on Lambert Field of Developing East Side Facility.

A recommendation that the Municipal Airport Commission authorize a detailed appraisal of Parks Metropolitan Airport, a short distance south of East St. Louis, will be made late today at a commission meeting by its subcommittee on secondary airports.

In addition, Director of Public Utilities Conway B. Briscoe will ask that an over-all study of the effect of purchase and development of Parks on Lambert-St. Louis Field be made by an independent firm.

The purchase of Parks has been suggested as a possible means of meeting future airport needs in this area. It is the last remaining airport site near the downtown district and was included as a secondary landing field in the comprehensive airport plan for the area drawn by Horner & Shifrin, engineers, a few years ago.

The study proposed by Briscoe would involve a number of points that could be applied to sites other than Parks if the city decided to enlarge its airport system. It would, however, be aimed chiefly at the effect of the purchase of Parks.

Included would be the revenue and expense records of Parks; leases which cover parts of the property and its building which might affect its future income, and the correlation which would be necessary in the operation of Parks and Lambert-St. Louis Field if the former were developed as a secondary airport.

A spot check would be made of owners of private, corporate and executive aircraft based in the St. Louis area to determine whether they would be willing to use Parks if it were developed. As part of this, a study would be made of the location of the owners' homes and places of business. Present use of Parks would be included.

A particularly important part of the study would be the willingness of operators of private, executive or corporate planes now based at Lambert-St. Louis Field to shift their operations to Parks.

RUSSIANS OFFER PEACE TREATY TO UNIFY GERMANY

Starts Second Week.

The conference moved into East Berlin today at the start of its second week. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault spoke in turn.

The West stuck to plans for unifying Germany in such a manner that it will be able to be a member of the European Defense Community. Eden tried once more to allay Moscow fears about EDC.

"The treaty which sets up the European Defense Community lays down that the community is designed to contribute to the maintenance of peace, and that its purposes are exclusively defensive," Eden said.

"The Soviet government may say that mere verbal assurances are not enough, and that more concrete guarantees are needed. If the EDC treaty contained nothing more than verbal assurances, I would have some sympathy with such an objection to it. But, of course, it does contain much more."

Eden then emphasized that the six member countries of EDC would hand over conterol of their forces in Europe to a "supranational authority."

"There will be no nationeal armies," he said, "and the individual countries will not have the power or the means to engage in war on their own. This is a revolutionary conception. It is the heart of the whole matter."

He argued that even if Germany or any other member wanted to violate this EDC treaty pledge it would not "be in a position to do so" because it would not have the required national forces.

Furthermore, he said that the arms, equipment and supply of the international army would be the reesponsibility of a board of commissioners having supranational authority and the board itself would be subject to an assembly composed of members of the six parliaments, and a council of ministers.

"These are indeed far-reaching and effective guarantees," Eden said.

"It is our purpose to associate Geermany so closely with other peacee-loving states that she will neither seek nor be able to use her regained strength for aggressive purposes."

Bidault said "it would be up to the Geerman government itseelf to decide whether it wants to assume international obligations contracted earlier either by the Federal Republic or by the German Democratic Republic."

By throwing the peace treaty issue before the conference, Molotov was in the position of rejecting western proposals for a German settlement at this parley. His peace plan was regarded in western quarters as the same Moscow proposed two years ago, and rejected then.

First Session in East Zone.

Today's meeting was the first Big Four session held in Iron Curtain territory since the Moscow foreign ministers' meeting seven years ago. The Western Ministers drove 200 yards into East Berlin for the meeting in the Russian Embassy on the Unter den Linden boulevard.

They drove in separate motor cars, flanked by military police of their own armies.

Two green-painted Soviet army jeeps with an "honor guard" of Russian soldiers armed with tommy guns picked up Dulles's car as it entered East Berlin. A large crowd watched the cars.

Flags of the four powers flew on the Soviet embassy, the Russian flag on the left and the American, French and British flags respectively to the right of it.

The shiny new $5,000,000 Russian embassy is only a stone's throw from the ruins of the prewar American embassy.

The massive structure has 363 rooms. It took three years to build and is believed to be the most elaborate embassy the Russians have anywhere.

The foreign ministers are meeting in the large, well heated "Hall of Mirrors." Five huge mirrors reflect its splendor—pink marble columns, rich walnut and birch trim, and heavy ornate chandeliers with masses of lights.

Moscow Radio Quotes F.D.R. to Back Red China Claim.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Mosocw radio cited the views of the late President Roosevelt yesterday in an effort to back up Russia's call for a five-power parley including Red China.

A Soviet commentator named Timofeyev, in an English-language broadcast brimming with praise for the late President, said Roosevelt had urged constantly the need for five-power unanimity on world problems.

"The highly principled position and statements of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, one of the fathers of the United Nations, furnish additional proof, if any is needed, that opponents of a Big Five meeting are out of step with events," Timofeyev said.

The broadcast did not say that the Chinese government whose participation in the world's councils Roosevelt frequently advocated was headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The Chinese Communists, now accused by the free world of aggression in Korea and aiding rebellion in Indochina, did not conquer China until nearly four years after Roosevelt's death.

BRICKER, GEORGE BALK, TIE UP NEW TREATY PLAN

temporary abandonment of the international agreements clause.

Indicating his reaction to the proposal, Bricker told reporters: "I have always felt that the White House would never agree to anything of consequence."

Knowland and other G.O.P. leaders were in conference with the President for 2½ hours. When they left, Knowland was highly optimistic.

Bricker to Be Consulted.

He said he and his colleagues were returning to the Capitol to consult with the Democratic leaders of the Senate and with Bricker.

Knowland told reporters at the Capitol that there would be a meeting of Republican and Democratic leaders in the afternoon, with Bricker sitting in, in an effort to agree on clarifying language.

Bricker announced yesterday he would accept the compromise drafted by Senate G.O.P. leaders if Eisenhower in turn would agree to support it.

When today's White House conference broke up, Knowland was asked specifically whether Eisenhower had accepted the compromise which Bricker conditionally indorsed.

Knowland replied that "substantially all sections will have the support of the President."

Major Legal Question.

He went on to say, however, that certain legal questiops had been raised which would require further study on the part of both the executive branch and the Senate. As for the legal problems, Knowland described one as major and said considerably more study on that point would be required.

Asked whether Bricker would have to be satisfied as well as the President, Knowland replied that it was not a question of satisfying any one person.

He said again that everyone was "so close to agreement" that we want to make every effort to "reach a final concord."

Asked whether the "major legal problem" was the only obstacle to an agreement, Knowland said he saw "no particular problem" other than that one. As for that point, he indicated that the conferees were anxious to make the meaning of the proposed new language as clear as possible.

Bricker confirmed yesterday he had agreed to elimination of a clause that says "a treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation which would be valid in the absence of treaty."

Eisenhower Denounces Clause.

Eisenhower had denounced this clause, saying it would give the states power to repudiate some treaties. Bricker disputed that contention, but said that if his amendment were adopted some treaties bearing on domestic matters could be implemented only by state action.

Without detailing the exact language of the compromise, Bricker said on a television program he is satisfied it would "meet the cardinal principles" of his original proposal.

The compromise proposal was said to: (A) make treaties conform to the Constitution, (B) require an act of Congress before other international agreements could override domestic law and (C) make such agreements and treaties subject to court tests. Treaties are subject to ratification by the Senate; executive agreements with other nations are not.

Without specific reference to the latest compromise effort, Senator Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, said on a radio program yesterday he is opposed to Bricker's amendment and to all the substitutes so far offered. He said he would favor sending the whole issue back to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Cites Senate Powers.

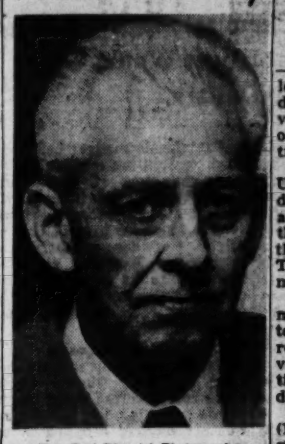

Fulbright said he could not understand "how Senators could go for something of this kind when, after all, they are the ones who determine whether any treaty is made or not, by their . . . ratification."

He said it seems to him that the efforts to adopt the Bricker amendment "must be the evidence of an underlying desire to withdraw from the world, to sort of slough off all our difficulties by gadgets. . . . It really does not make sense to me, because you cannot have a gadget, some little thing to take the place of exercise or discretion and good sense. That is what the Senate is for."

Actual floor debate, which started last week, was shunted aside today while the Senate considered a bill to restore $741,000,000 in lending authority to the Commodity Credit Corporation which operates the farm price support program. When it is disposed of, the Senate is due to take up the Bricker amendment again.

Bricker, on the television show "Meet the Press" yesterday, estimated that 150 drafts had been discussed in the compromise talks involving himself, the Administration and Republican Senate leaders over a period of several weeks, and commented that he had written 25 drafts which would be satisfactory to him.

5 ALLEGED REDS TAUGHT REVOLT, U.S. SAYS AT TRIAL

leader in France, accused Browder the following year of deviating from the basic teachings of Communism, Broome continued.

Subsequently, the party in the United States repudiated Browder, expelled him as a member and committed itself anew to the principles existing before the revisionism that followed the Tehran conference, the Government attorney said.

"The national leadership committed the party at all levels to a new program, which was really not new at all but a reversion to the policies and practices of the period before Browder's heresy," Broome stated.

"This program was threefold: (1) To reorganize the party structure, (2) to concentrate on key industries, and (3) to reeducate the membership in the principles of Marxism-Leninism. This program was put into effect throughout the nation.

"It was put into effect in St. Louis and it is precisely this program that will make up the heart and core of the evidence you will hear."

Dismissal Plea Overruled.

After Broome completed his address to the jury, Sidney L. Berger, Evansville (Ind.) attorney representing Sentner, moved for dismissal of the indictment against the defendants but was overruled by Judge Harper.

Berger contended the Government's case, as outlined by Broome, constituted insufficient ground for prosecution and also maintained that the statute under which the defendants are being tried violated civil liberties guaranteed by the Constitution, particularly in respect to freedom of speech and thought.

After being overruled on his motion, Berger began his opening statement in which he said that Sentner has been active in the labor movement for 22 years and that the present charge against him is a "frame-up."

The statute under which Sentner is charged is an "anti-labor" law and is being used, along with the Taft-Hartley act, to break the labor movement, Berger said. He declared: "This case is such that civil liberties are endangered. It doesn't involve just Bill Sentner, but all of us."

Fights 'For the Little Man.'

Continuing, Berger said: "What Sentner has done in the last 22 years is fight for the little man. No one can say that living standards in St. Louis and even in Evansville, Ind., aren't better now, at least to some degree, because of his union organizing efforts.

"It's his belief that the only form of government which can insure these gains is the socialistic form of government and the only truly socialistic political party in this country is the Communist party. Are you going to send him to jail because you think differently?"

W. L. Witherspoon, Negro, another attorney representing Sentner, told the jury his client never agreed to teach or advocate overthrow of the Government.

Charged with violating the Smith Act, the defendants, if convicted, would face maximum penalties of five years in prison and $10,000 fines. The case is being heard by a jury of 11 men and one woman, with four alternates. The trial is expected to last three to five months.

CITIZENS' COUNTY BOND GROUP BACKS COUNCIL ON ROAD

gether with the so-called "watchdog" citizens' committee and make an immediate start on all phases of the program.

"However, no bonds should be sold until money is actually needed for specific projects," he added. "This is essential to avoid payment of unnecessary interest."

Indorsements of all six bond propositions, calling for a broad program of public improvements, were announced yesterday by four county mayors, who asked voters to cast "yes" ballots at the election.

Mayors Indorsing Proposal.

Mayors were Sterling P. Davidson of Maplewood, Tom Jordan of Overland, Bill Bangert, Berkeley, and E. R. Goddard, Creve Coeur.

Added to the indorsement by more than 100 organizations was that of the executive council of the St. Louis Small Business Council, announced yesterday.

A council statement said:

"Not since 1928 has a major program been carried out in the county, and if the issue is put off, it would only increase the many problems and confusion already occurring in traffic, sanitation, and welfare. The population of the county has more than doubled, the number of automobiles has more than doubled, and unless a substantial program can be initiated at once the county will suffer tremendously."

In addition to the highway proposal, the bond program calls for $3,458,500 for health and welfare, mostly hospital construction, $3,000,000 for governmental buildings, $650,000 for voting machines, $1,000,000 for land for sanitary landfill refuse disposal and $4,500,000 for parks.

A two-thirds vote will be required on each of the six propositions.

Commission to Look for Useless or Overlapping Agencies, Try to Improve Services.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 1—The State Reorganization (Little Hoover) commission opened its official search today for ideas on overhauling the executiv departments of the state government, to insure more and better public servoce for less money.

The commission, created by the 1953 Legislature, has the statutory duty of developing methods which will promote efficiency, eliminate useless or conflicting state agencies, give better service and result in economy, in operation of the executive branch of the government.

Recommendations of the 12-member commission, made up of eight legislators and four public representatives, must be completed and submitted to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly and the 1955 regular session of the Legislature by Jan. 10, 1955.

Aims Outlined.

Former State Senator Francis Smith (Dem.), St. Joseph, chairman of the bipartisan group, briefly outlined the objectives of the commission when the first hearing, for state department heads, opened today.

He said the commission was not another "investigating committee" but was conducting a survey of the Government to determine means of improvement.

Chairman Smith asked the state department representatives to give the group any information they had concerning duplications or overlapping of governmental agencies, any instances of limitations which prevented departments from furnishing the service desired by the people, whether any departments were too large, and any recommendations they had in general to improve governmental service.

Milton M. Kinsey, chief engineer of the Bi-state Development Agency for the St. Louis metropolitan area, asked the commission to recommend legislation which will enable the agency to readily market its revenue bonds for public works.

The Illinois legislature already has passed such an act, Kinsey said, but enactment of a similar law by Missouri will be necessary before the bonds can be sold.

Requirements.

One of the requirements, Kinsey said, was that the bonds be declared eligible for purchase by trust funds. Another requirement, Kinsey said, was an amendment making the bonds negotiable, so that they may be resold by investors.

"We do not now have an adequate law," Kinsey told the commission. "Enactment of amendments to make the Missouri act conform to that of Illinois is desired so that the agency may issue revenue bonds and be self-supporting."

Michael J. Doherty, chairman of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners, submitted three recommendations on improvement of election service in the city.

He suggested amendment of the present state law which limits the size of voting precincts in St. Louis to not more than 500 registered voters, to permit an increase to 800. Such a change, he said, would enable the board to make more effective use of voting machines, at less over-all cost, if use of such equipment is authorized by the city.

Doherty recommended establishment of a five-day work week for employes of the board, instead of the present five and one-half day schedule, and that the law on appointment of the board be changed to provide for staggered expiration of terms of members. He said the latter provision would eliminate complete turnovers in board members with each change in governors.

Polling Buildings.

Doherty also suggested a change in St. Louis election laws to permit the same building to be used for polling places for two adjoining precincts, with a dividing line between them, where this was feasible.

Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. recommended the commission look into the necessity of retaining various state boards made up, ex-officio, of elective state officials, particularly the bank appeal board.

Blair pointed out the board, made up of the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and Attorney General, had the statutory duty of hearing appeals in cases where the State Director of Finance refuses to issue a state charter for a bank or trust company.

Such officials, Blair said, usually have little knowledge of banking, but are required to pass on financial questions, in closed hearings, with much of the evidence classed as confidential under the law. No appeal was allowed to opponents of a new bank, if a bank charter were granted, he said.

AFL Seeks to End Practices That Increase Building Costs

Goal Is to Make Union Work More Efficient Than Non-Union Labor Which Is Increasing.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 1—Elimination of practices tending to increase building costs, which have caused some contractors to turn to non-union labor, is among matters to be discussed by the American Federation of Labor Executive Council at its annual conference opening here today.

The AFL Building Trades Department, meeting here last week, heard reports by representatives of two large contractors' groups indicating the days of construction without thought of cost, prevalent during wartime and postwar prosperity, are near an end.

Representatives of the Associated General Contractors and of the National Contractors Association said non-union labor was being employed on large building jobs, notably in Texas.

Two committees were authorized to work with contractors in reviewing work practices, and to effect remedial measures to discourage the non-union employment trend.

Joseph D. Keenan, secretary-treasurer of the Building Trades Department, said the important problem facing AFL construction unions is to convince those individuals and commercial organizations financing large building projects that they can obtain more efficient results by employing union labor.

"Slow production" on cost-plus jobs was one of the serious complaints made by the contractors' representatives in talks with labor heads. Complaints involving various sections of the country were voiced.

Nothing specific was said about the St. Louis area, and apparently no direct mention was made of labor racketeering, now under investigation by the Government.

The 17-man executive council, representing 10,000,000 AFL members, is expected to give careful consideration to the nation's economic situation and growing unemployment. Labor leaders are concerned that increasing job layoffs in manufacturing may spread to construction and other industries in which the AFL has its heaviest membership.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell is due here Friday for a meeting with the AFL chiefs. The visit is intended to repair strained relations between the AFL and the Eisenhower administration. Mitchell's predecessor, Martin Durkin, who quit the cabinet in disagreement with the Administration over proposed changes in the Taft-Hartley law, is head of the Plumbers' Union and a member of the AFL executive council.

Another important problem due for serious consideration at the 10-day meeting is the peace plan for settling disputes with the CIO and between AFL unions. The AFL and CIO have negotiated a "no raiding" pact prohibiting a union in either organization from trying to take over members of a union in the other organization. However, it will become effective only for unions specifically signing it.

Some major AFL unions, such as the Carpenters, have indicated they will not sign the AFL-CIO pact until an arrangement for setting feuds among AFL organizations is worked out satisfactorily. Should several major AFL unions balk at ratifying the AFL-CIO deal, the plan might be abandoned. This would also serve to kill any chance for an AFL-CIO merger for some time to come.

SCREENINGS SAID TO KEEP U.N. FROM HIRING AMERICANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Americans are losing chances for United Nations jobs in Europe, some Congressmen say, because the loyalty investigations this country conducts take so long.

A House Foreign Affairs subcommittee reported yesterday recruitment of United States nationals was off drastically, other nationals "who probably involve a much greater risk" for United States interests were being hired and United States technical leadership in special fields was threatened.

The subcommittee said the loyalty standards should not be lowered, but it urged a speedup of investigations which now take as long as six months.

BURGLAR ESCAPES WITH $150 UNDER FIRE OF POLICEMAN

About $150 was stolen early today from a tavern at 1245 Hodiamont avenue by a burglar who escaped under fire from a policeman who surprised him in the act.

Patrolman Robert Casey, noticing jimmy marks on a door of the tavern, was investigating when the burglar ran out a rear door. Casey said he fired two warning shots, and a third shot at the fleeing man, who escaped.

About $535 was stolen Saturday night by two armed men who held up the Juke Club, 9801 South Broadway, Lemay, deputy sheriffs were told.

Fred Lehmkuhl Jr., proprietor, said the men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun and one with a pistol, took $510 from a cash register and a total of $25 from three customers.

MOTORISTS WARNED TO GIVE FIRE VEHICLES RIGHT-OF-WAY

Director of Public Safety Joseph P. Sestric today urged motorists to comply with ordinances dealing with right-of-way for fire vehicles.

Failure of drivers to pull over to the curb when they hear a fire siren or bell has resulted in three accidents since Dec. 1, Sestric said, accidents which caused injury to one fireman, two children and a woman, plus property damage.

Failure to comply with the ordinances can result in a fine or workhouse sentence, he said.

CITY DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN BACKS SEWER PROPOSAL

Calls Plan 'Vital Step in Health, Safety and Economic Program, of Area.

Support of the proposed Metropolitan Sewer District plan "as a vital forward step for the health, safety and economic program of the City of St. Louis and the entire metropolitan St. Louis area" was pledged today by John J. Dwyer, chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee.

The proposal for a unified administration of the sewage systems of city and county on a watershed basis will be before the voters of both areas at special elections Feb. 9.

All taverns and package-liquor stores having 5 per cent beer or full liquor licenses must close Feb. 9 in St. Louis and St. Louis county because of the election, Albert L. Lucas, district supervisor for the state liquor control department, said today.

Cites Health Warnings.

Dwyer cited warnings by health authorities of the city, county and state that sewage problems in the area constituted a health menace to all residents, and he called attention to the millions of dollars in damages caused by floods from overtaxed sewers since 1946.

"We are faced with a hard fact of geography," he said, "namely, that most of our city lies at the bottom of a slope and that most of the county is at the top of that slope. We are at the bottom of a watershed. Consequently, a great volume of sanitary sewage and storm water flows naturally from the county, through the city and into the Mississippi river.

"Common Sense" Plan.

"It is only common sense, therefore, that the sewage problems of both city and county be handled on a watershed basis by one central agency, the Metropolitan Sewer District. This plan provides, among other things, for the establishment of subdistricts in which local sewers will be built at the expense of the people who will get the most use from them.

"Finally, and most powerfully of all, we are aware that a sewage-born epidemic — wherever started in this metropolitan area —will not stop at a city-county line or any other political boundary."

Savings through lower maintenance and operation costs under the metropolitan plan likely will be passed on to taxpayers by local governments, members of the board of freeholders which drafted the plan agreed yesterday in a radio forum discussion.

Panel speakers on the "Operation Progress" program over Station KWK were J. Eugene Auchly, board chairman; John R. Shepley, vice chairman; John C. Casey, chairman of the board's committtee on governmental machinery, and William A. O'Connell, president of Local 513, AFL Operating Engineers Union.

JAMES ROOSEVELT FREES BACKERS IN HOUSE RACE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1 (AP)—James Roosevelt, urged by Democratic leaders to give up his hopes for a seat in Congress as a result of his wife's charges of infidelity today released his supporters "from any further obligation."

He left the door open, however, for a "final decision" on his candidacy later. Roosevelt's wife is suing for separate maintenance.

Roosevelt's attorney quoted him as saying that the candidacy filing time doesn't begin officially until March 10 and continues until April 2, "which gives me plenty of time to make a final decision."

ULLES AND HIS WIFE ATTEND U.S. ARMY CHAPEL SERVICES

BERLIN, Feb. 1 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his wife went to church yesterday in an American Army chapel. They heard a sermon, "Seeing Is Believing," by Protestant chaplain Erich Swadell, of Pittsburg, Calif. A prayer was said for the Big Four statesman.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault went to mass at Napoleon Barracks, French military headquarters in Berlin.

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden relaxed by watching an international horse show.

The union gave this list to the Byers firm. Boston said the result was that he was denied job assignments which he otherwise would have obtained.

The NLRB said the union violated Taft-Hartley, but its ruling was set aside by the United States circuit court in St. Louis. The board then asked the Supreme Court to overturn the circuit court.

'Deprived of Right.'

Doing this today, Reed said Boston had been denied employment to which he otherwise was entitled "for no reason other than his tardy payment of union dues."

"Thus," Reed added, "the union by requesting such discrimination, and the employer by submitting to such an illegal request, deprived Boston of the right guaranteed by the act to join in or abstain from union activities without thereby affecting his job."

The third case involved the complaint of radioman Fowler that he had been accused of violating union rules by not getting "clearance" from a union officer before making arrangements for a job on a Bull Co. vessel in New York City. The company was unable to get a union OK on Fowler, so the job went to another man provided by the union.

The union appealed after the United States circuit court in New York City upheld the NLRB's finding of Taft-Hartley violation.

Reed said the circuit court "correctly concluded that encouragement to remain in good standing in a union is proscribed."

Black and Douglas, dissenting, said there had been no finding by the NLRB that either employers' discrimination "occurred in order to encourage union membership" and that the unions accordingly should not have been ruled against by the NLRB.

In another case, Morton Sobell, convicted as a co-conspirator of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, was denied a Supreme Court review of his unsuccessful attempt to get a new trial.

Sobell is in Alcatraz Prison, serving a 30-year sentence for conspiracy to commit wartime espionage. The Rosenbergs were executed last June 19 in Sing Sing prison.

In his new appeal, Sobell claimed "newly discovered evidence" tended to show "fabrications and pre-trial inconsistencies by two indispensable prosecution witnesses." The Supreme Court previously refused to review Sobell's trial.

The Supreme Court refused also to permit Dr. Harold C. Urey, Chicago scientist, and 57 other persons to file a brief in support of Sobell's latest appeal.

Airmail Subsidies.

The court ruled unanimously that the Government, in awarding mail subsidies, must consider the over-all financial needs of airlines—not the need of an international operation only.

Under the law the Civil Aeronautics Board fixes the amount paid to airlines by the Government for carrying mail. Self-sufficient carriers get compensation for the service without an outright subsidy. Airlines not operating profitably are paid on a basis of "need" which has no relation to the service itself. Domestic and international operations are considered separately.

The Supreme Court decision came in a ruling on a subsidy for Delta Air Lines' Latin-American division for 1948-49-50.

3 STUDENTS GET 6 MONTHS, 4TH FINED IN DORMITORY RAID

Three Washington University students were sentenced today to six months each in St. Charles county jail on charges of malicious trespassing but were paroled immediately. A fourth youth was fined $25 for trespassing.

The four students pleaded guilty to the charges which stemmed from an early morning raid last November 6n a girls' dormitory at Lindenwood College, St. Charles. A lamp, clock and pajama top were taken.

The paroled youths, who appeared before Circuit Judge B. Richards Creech at St. Charles, said they were John M. Stephens, 19 years old, Peoria, Ill.; Daniel B. Gale, 20, 21 Daniel road, Ladue, and Mark Bollinger, 18, 446 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves. Edgar Bland, 19, 20 Crestwood drive, Clayton, was fined $25.

A fifth youth, a student at John Burroughs school, was scheduled to appear before juvenile authorities. Frank McKin, attorney for the youths, described the episode as a "college prank."

Coffee valued at $1184—1188 pounds of it—was stolen from the warehouse of Standard Brands, Inc., 4565 DeTonty street, Wilson Ward, branch manager, reported yesterday.

The thieves, who forced open a door, also stole $799 worth of instant coffee, gelatin, bouillon stock, cocoa, tea, salad dressing, cheese and canned beef, Ward reported after an inventory.

A truck apparently was backed up to a loading platform by the burglars to remove the merchandise. The theft was discovered yesterday after a policeman found a warehouse door open.

POLICE ARRIVE, THIEVES LEAP THROUGH WINDOW, LOSE LOOT

Thieves who broke into a tavern early today broke out again with a smash and left so fast they dropped their loot, after being surprised by police. They leaped through a plate glass window.

Sgt. Emile Fett and Patrolman Harold Macon, making their rounds in a cruiser, saw a window forced open at the rear of the Car Turn Tavern, 920 South Vandeventer avenue. As they investigated, two men crashed through a large front window of the tavern and ran.

A bag containing $61 in change taken from coin machines in the tavern was found in an alley.

DEMOCRATS ASK BEESON'S NAME BE SENT BACK

All 6 on Senate Committee Demand Further Hearings on NLRB Nominee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—Democratic members of the Senate Labor Committee formally recommended today that the nomination of Albert C. Beeson to the National Labor Relations Board be returned to the committee for further investigation.

The six Democratic committee members made their unanimous recommendation in a formal minority report to be filed in the Senate. It was the latest salvo in two weeks of party-line skirmishes over President Eisenhower's nominee.

Chairman H. Alexander Smith (Rep.), New Jersey, has announced that Beeson, a San Jose (Calif.) business man, will appear before the committee for further testimony tomorrow. But Smith's announcement made it clear that the committee was not suggesting that the nomination be recommitted—as proposed by the Democrats—and was not reopening its hearings.

The Democrats said:

1. They were "arbitrarily" refused an adequate opportunity to question Beeson before the committee approved the nomination by a 7-to-6 party-line vote last Tuesday.

2. Beeson's own testimony raised "serious doubts of his impartiality." They said his outlook "has been influenced by his acting exclusively as an advocate of the cause of management in labor disputes."

3. Beeson's former employer, the Food Machinery & Chemical Corp., was formerly represented by Attorney Guy Farmer, now chairman of the NLRB. They said this raises the question of whether Beeson "would continue to rely on Mr. Farmer" on legal issues arising in the board.

The report referred only briefly to a question at issue for several days: Whether Beeson plans to return to his $30,000-a-year job at Food Machinery & Chemical Corp. after his one-year term on the board. The federal post pays $15,000 a year.

Beeson stated in his testimony that he has no commitment whatever to return. He denied a San Jose newspaper story quoting him as saying that he would be back at the end of a year. The newspaper has repeated its statement and printed a Food Machinery press release referring to Beeson's departure as a leave of absence.

Beeson testified to the committee he had "no agreement of any kind, oral or written, requiring my return after the end of this assignment."

HELD AFTER FORCING WOMAN TO TAKE HIM ON WILD RIDE

A man was arrested in St. Louis county yesterday after he forced his way into the automobile of Mrs. Terry F. Poe, robbed her of $7 and then forced her to take him on a wild ride of about five miles before she ran her machine into a curb and screamed for help.

The prisoner, booked at Clayton as Frank Hall, a city garbage collector living in the 1000 block of North Newstead avenue, told deputies he was drunk and does not recall what occurred. His pockets contained $75 and six cartridges for a pistol he dropped in Mrs. Poe's automobile. The Sheriff's office said Hall, a Negro, is a former convict.

Mrs. Poe, 1321 Odessa drive, Bellefontaine Neighbors, said she was getting out of her automobile in the 3900 block of Easton avenue yesterday morning. Hall approached, pointed a pistol at her and ordered her to get back in the machine under a threat he would kill her. The ride followed, with Hall holding his pistol against Mrs. Poe's side. He was arrested and identified by Mrs. Poe, shortly after fleeing from the machine in Hanley Hills.

INDOCHINA REDS OPEN NEW DRIVE SOUTH IN LAOS

Bypass French Stronghold — Troops at 38 Outposts Desert to Rebels.

HANOI, Indochina, Feb. 1 (AP) — Vietminh rebels swept around Dien Bien Phu today and headed south on a new invasion of Laos. A French spokesman in Saigon said there had been heavy fighting at Muong Khoua, 75 miles north of the Laotian royal capital of Luang Prabang.

The spokesman said such heavy losses had been inflicted on the Communist-led rebels by air and ground fire at Muong Khoua that it might slow their advance. Nevertheless, the French abandoned Muong and the rebels headed for Muong Ngoi, 15 miles nearer to Luang Prabang. French forces are being rushed to Luang Prabang by air.

The French said Vietminh Division 308 is leading the sweep, one of the targets of which may also be the Mekong river, bordering Thailand.

French authorities disclosed yesterday that Vietnamese troops, won over by Communist propaganda, have abandoned 38 outposts in Cochin China, south of Saigon, and deserted to the Vietminh.

In an attempt to check the defection, French Union and loyal Viet Namese units have been rushed to the area. Authorities said 26 deserters and 20 suspected Vietminh irregulars have been picked up.

The report caused considerable anxiety in Saigon. This part of Cochin China has been quiet for about a year, during which there has been no notable military activity. Cochin China is the southern province of Viet Nam. Annam and Tonkin are the other two.

Meanwhile, Viet Namese authorities ordered mountain troops mobilized in the Sedang region about 300 miles northeast of Saigon to counter an offensive launched there four days ago by the Vietminh. The rebel forces, pulling back from the Annam coast, where a French Union offensive is in progress, thrust columns into the mountainous plateau country around Sedang in an apparent effort to divert French strength.

In central Laos—for the first time since they recaptured Thakhek—French columns moving east on route No. 11, have met strong Vietminh resistance. On route No. 9, east of Sepo, the French forces have been unable to make contact with the Vietminh who last week seized control of about 60 miles of the road.

FEELS 'ASSURED' OF SPAIN'S OK TO USE BASES IN WAR

Defense Department Explains — British Paying Less Than Half on 19 Intallations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)— The Government says Spain would have to agree before United States bases on its soil could be used in war, but that it feels "assured . . . there would be no problem."

A House Appropriations subcommittee got this information at a closed meeting, along with word that Britain will pay less than the half share originally planned of the cost of 19 British bases to be used by the United States Air Force.

Testimony taken at the session Jan. 7 and 8 was made public yesterday.

The Air Force is seeking $40,000,000 to start work on four bases in Spain, near Madrid, Seville (two locations) and Zaragoza. The Navy indicated it planned to spend $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 on seven installations.

Congressman Objects.

The transcript showed Representative Cederberg (Rep.), Michigan, remarked he opposed building the bases "unless we have an ironclad agreement that we can use them in case of war."

The Defense Department submitted a statement approved by the State Department saying the pact with Spain provided that "the time and manner of any possible wartime use will be mutually agreed upon."

The statement continued, "from the discussions we have had on this point, we feel assured that there would be no problem regarding effective use in time of emergency and that United States interests in this regard are fully protected."

On the cost of the British bases, Brig. Gen. Stanley T. Wray, deputy director of Air Force installations, told the subcommittee the governments had reached an agreement "on the order of 59 per cent United States to 41 per cent United Kingdom . . . considering the facilities and so forth that they have given us at no cost, excluding the land."

How Cost Is Split Up.

He said the agreement "confirmed our impression that the the economics of the United Kingdom woud not permit the 50-50 cost sharing to proceed completely through the whole program."

Total cost was put at $570,000,000 dollars, with the United States providing $276,000,000 in cash and $22,000,000 worth of engineer troop labor, Britain $209,000,000 in usable facilities and $63,000,000 worth of cash outlay, plus free land.

Wray said all but three of the bases now are in condition for at least limited operations. Most of the bases are for medium bombers.

Wray said that in addition the British are contributing a 400-mile pipeline built in World War II, which cost about $80,000,000.

SCHOOL BIDS HELD TOO HIGH

Low bids received for three Granite City school-construction projects totaled $40,000 higher than estimates, and bidders have been asked to reduce costs to match the estimates, it was announced today by Paul Grigsby, superintendent of Granite City Community Unit School District.

The bid total was $989,293, he said, for construction of Logan and Johnson Road schools and an addition to Marshall School. The projects were authorized by voters last year in a $3,840,000 bond issue.

25,269 AUTO SHOW VISITORS

Attendance of more than 17,000 persons at the St. Louis Automobile Show yesterday brought the total for the first two days to 25,269.

The visitors divided their interest between the newest production models of 18 makes and seven experimental models of revolutionary design, most of them along the lines of sports cars.

Flashes of Life

Swath of Parking Meters.

CHICAGO.—Police said they had evidence—a piece of a 1953 Buick bumper and blue paint chips—that an auto mowed down six parking meters. What is more, the driver apparently looted the coin boxes of each meter.

Driver's Excuse.

INDIANAPOLIS — Bennie Hatchett thought he had a good excuse for hitting a car and skidding against another.

Hatchett said he couldn't drive very well because a woman had just stabbed him eight times at a party. Police took him to General Hospital, saying he'd have to answer later to charges of reckless driving and disobeying a traffic light.

Big Check.

SEDALIA, Mo.—The Sedalia Elks lodge gave the March of Dimes fund $661.35 and did it with a check written on a sheet of paper 11 inches wide and 26 inches long. The Sedalia Bank and Trust Co. honored the check.

$10.26 Bowl of Chili.

CHICAGO — Patrick O'Donnell refused to pay 26 cents for a bowl of chili at a restaurant because he got no crackers. O'Donnell was arrested after a quarrel.

Judge W. V. Daly first ordered O'Donnell to pay for the chili and then fined him $5 plus $5 costs for disorderly conduct. O'Donnell shelled out $10.26.

51 KILLED, 100 HURT IN TRAIN CRASH IN SOUTH KOREA

SEOUL, Feb. 1 (AP) — A rickety South Korean train plunged off the tracks last night after hitting a truck 30 miles south of here. Fifty-one persons were killed and more than 100 injured. Many of the victims were school children.

Both the truck driver and engine crew were killed.

An Army doctor said American Air Force men "did a really heroic job" removing injured, administering aid.

TESTIMONY BEGUN IN SECOND TRIAL OF GLENN CHERNICK

Testimony was begun today in Glenn Chernick's second trial on a charge of taking part in the attempted holdup of Southwest Bank last April 24. Selection of a jury, in Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield's court, was completed last Friday.

First witness today was Detective George Hawthorne, who repeated the testimony and description of a chart of the bank layout which he gave at the first trial. Chernick was found guilty of robbery at that trial, which ended last Monday, by a jury which recommended a five-year term.

First Assistant Circuit Attorney Raymond A. Bruntrager considered that sentence too light and immediately proceeded with the present trial, in which Chernick is charged with assault with intent to kill Police Sgt. Robert Heitz, wounded in the robbery attempt. Chernick also faces three other armed robbery charges.

$3500 RAISED BY MUSICAL REVIEW FOR POLIO FUND

About $3500 was raised last night for the March of Dimes in box office receipts for the All-Star Musical Review presented by the Order of Mascos at Kiel Auditorium.

A near capacity audience filled the Opera House to see such entertainers as the George Shearing Quintet, the Mary Kaye Trio and the Ames Brothers. Russ David and Charlotte Peters were among local performers.

The review was produced by Max Fox, St. Louis accountant, under the general chairmanship of Norman Golbart, dress manufacturer. Masco is the abbreviation for Men's Athletic, Social and Charitable Organizations.

The Public Can Choose with Confidence

IN the smoker's interest Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has maintained for 4 years an intensified, larger scale diversified research program. A half-million dollar 30-ton machine, the world's most powerful source of high voltage electrons, designed solely for our use has tested tens of thousands of cigarettes. This program has already given to us direct and significant information of benefit to the smoking public.

Our consultants include Arthur D. Little, Inc. of Cambridge, Massachusetts, "one of the largest and most reputable industrial research organizations in the country,"* and eminent scientists from leading universities.

For more than thirty years we have used research day in and day out learning about tobaccos and cigarettes in the public's interest.

Continuously we and our consultants have analyzed, experimented with and smoked all kinds of tobaccos... especially Southern Bright, Burley, Maryland and Turkish cigarette tobaccos.

Our own cigarettes and competitive brands have been submitted to the most exacting scientific scrutiny including thousands of analyses of millions of pounds of tobaccos.

From all these thousands of analyses, and other findings reported in the leading technical journals, our Research Department has found no reason to believe that the isolation and elimination of any element native to cigarette tobaccos today would improve smoking.

Today the public can confidently choose from a variety of brands—by far the best cigarettes ever made by the tobacco industry.

Senators Say Alien Property Managers Did Efficient Job

Subcommittee Recommends $200,000,000 Worth of Holdings Be Returned to Former Owners.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP) —A Senate Judiciary subcommittee charged today that the Truman Administration used "personal and political" considerations" in selecting officials to manage enemy firms seized during World War II.

The subcommittee in a report on its investigation of the Alien Property Office, said some officials formerly connected with that agency of the Department of Justice now are drawing "substantial salaries" as officers of the confiscated enemy concerns.

However the report said management of the seized foreign businesses "has been efficient and financially sound within the restrictive limits of Government operation."

Return of Property Urged.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep.), Illinois, recommended that $200,000,000 worth of property confiscated by the Government from enemy aliens be returned to its former owners provided they are not "convicted war criminals."

It found also that the "trading with the enemy act" is inconsistent with present United States foreign policy. It said the act "may operate to destroy the effects of a foreign policy designed to build a strong western Germany and Japan as bulwarks against further Communist aggression."

The report said officials of seized enterprises drew salaries ranging from $97,000 a year to $50 a week.

In a "supplemental" report, Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, a subcommittee member, objected that some of the group's criticism "may well be unfounded and is certainly unfair" in cases where the officials properly performed their duties.

The other subcommittee member was Senator John M. Butler (Rep.), Maryland.

Paying P.O.W.s.

The subcommittee recommended paying claims of World War II prisoners and civilian internees from appropriations rather than from sale of confiscated property—a reversal of the policy set by Congress in the trading-with-th -enemy act.

The report said the present policy was "formulated" by V. Frank Coe and the late Harry Dexter White, whom Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., has named as members of a Communist spy ring. It said Harold Glasser, also cited by Brownell, helped draft the policy.

The subcommittee recommended that the President be allowed to sell alien property to Americans in cases where the national interest is involved and given the alien owners the proceeds. Dirksen had said earlier that about $200,000,000 of the $500,000,000 worth of property seized from German and Japanese nationals would be returned under such a provision.

NIXON CONFESSES: HE USED TO PLAY PIANO IN CHURCH

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP) —"When I was a boy," Vice President Nixon told a Youth Sunday congregation yesterday, "I took part in many of these Sunday programs put on from time to time by the young people of our church.

"And you might ask, what was my part in these observances?

"Well, my job was one which perhaps a Republican should not admit.

"I played the piano."

Access to Communist Writings Called Necessary for Pupils

School Group Says Children Must Learn to Understand Totalitarian Ideologies in Order to Resist Them.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)— School children should have access to books and materials dealing with Communism as "we cannot fight totalitarian ideologies without understanding them," the American Association of School Administrators said yesterday.

In support of its position the association quoted a June 1953, statement by President Eisenhower in which he said "We must in these times be intelligently alert not only to the fanatic cunning of Communist conspiracy—but also to the grave dangers in meeting fanaticism with ignorance."

The association, a department of the National Education Association, which is the national professional organization of educators, made public its year book, which says:

"To have merely an emotional basis for or against an idea is not sufficient.

"Rather, the individual must possess specific knowledge and intellectual resources with which to sustain his beliefs.

"This is particularly true of the great world issue . . . the current challenge of Communism to the free world.

"We cannot fight totalitarian ideologies without understanding them. Nor can we understand them unless we read what their adherents say, argue their faults and merits, and know their strategy and their great weaknesses.

"That young people have access to books and materials dealing with Communism is important. If such materials are on the shelves of school libraries, they must be labeled clearly to indicate their Communist bias. It is essential also that we know the full story, as far as it is available, of the devices used by Communism in making its doctrines seem attractive in some parts of the world."

The year book was prepared by a special commission of nine prominent educators. Benjamin C. Willis, general superintendent of Chicago schools, was chairman.

DOUGLAS URGES U.S. ACT AGAINST POLAND

Charges Warsaw Seeks Control of Relief Packages for Subversive Ends.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP) — Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, called for swift government action today to prevent American relief packages from helping Communist Poland finance subervise activities in the United States.

He urged Atorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., in a letter to investigate the official Polish agency—PKO Trade Incorporation in New York—with a view to withdrawing its license.

At the same time, he made public a proposed Senate resolution asking President Eisenhower to cut off all imports from Poland immediately because of "unjust discrimination" against the United States.

Douglas said these actions are warranted because of the "prohibitive' 'taxes the Polish government plans to slap on all imports from the United States beginning next Monday.

He charged that the move amounts to "international blackmail." It is designed, he said, to strangle the flow of American relief packages to the Polish people—now averaging 100,000 a month—and to back propaganda claims that there is a food shortage in this country.

"A more sinister" motive behind the action, he declared, is to feed dollars into the trade agency in New York which "could use those dollars to finance Communist activity and groups in this country."

Douglas said the taxes would run to $125 on a new or used dress, $37.50 on a pair of men's shoes and $15 on a pound of coffee. They would be collected from Poles receiving the relief packages.

But there would be no tax at all, Douglas said, if the packages are purchased through the trade agency.

"If this is permitted," he wrote Brownell, "American dollars can be wrung from relief purposes and used to finance subversive activities."

If his findings prove right, Douglas urged Brownell to force the agency to close and, if laws have been violated, to prosecute those involved.

2000-CAR PARKING GARAGE

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—One of the largest parking garages in the world, costing $3,000,000 and capable of handling 2000 cars, is now under construction in the vicinity of Pennsylvania Station, it was announced yesterday by Henry Wolf, president of the Hotel Garage Co.

G.O.P. EXPECTS TO DOUBLE 1950 SPENDING IN FALL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP) — Republicans expect to set aside the biggest off-year budget in their history—perhaps double the $1,900,000 of 1950—to wage this year's crucial election campaign for control of Congress.

The figures are to be presented to party fund-raisers when they meet here late this week to lay campaign plans, honor Abraham Lincoln and kick off the G.O.P.'s 100th birthday celebration.

Rising costs of political campaigning, particularly in the field of television, and a firm determination to spare no effort to win next fall arelargely responsible for the bigger budget.

The Republicans cannot afford to lose a single seat in this mid-term election. Their house membership has been cut to 219 members, just one more than a bare majority. In the Senate, they have 47 members to the Democrats' 48.

In addition to greater use of television than ever before, the budget contemplates production of motion pictures to show at party rallies and $85,000 for a new publication — "Straight From the Shoulder."

ALSOP

'Security Risk' Tagged on Many Leaving U.S. Jobs as Political Move, but It Is Backfiring

Democrats Seek to Keep 'Fakery' Issue Alive — Files Containing Derogatory Gossip Used as Basis of Charges Against Employes.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

MORE and more is coming out about the fakery practiced by certain persons in the Administration in the matter of the so-called "security firings." Consider, for example, the following figures in the "firings" from the State Department, the first detailed breakdown available.

When is was first announced that 1456 "security risks" had been dismissed from government service, the State Department's impressive share of this grand total was put at 306. Yet the fact is that the actual number of people "dismissed for cause" from the State Department since January a year ago is not 306. It is 29.

Most of these 29, moreover, were dismissed for such mundane sins as excessive drinking, blab - mouthing, or money troubles. Not a single case of actual subversion was involved. How then, were the figures on the State Department's share of the security firings arrived at?

Many Resigning.

The answer is a little hard to believe. W. Scott McLeod's security and personnel divisions checked through the files of everyone in the process of resigning from the State Department — always a considerable number, since the turnover in the department is high. The "security risk" tag was then simply hung on the names of 188 of these people, on their way out, without their knowledge. The total was further fattened up by adding the names of people who were being transferred from the State Department to other departments or agencies. In short, a large proportion of the "security firings" were never fired at all.

The figures given above are of course subject to change, since the grand total of "security firings" is also subject to change. But these figures suggest how completely phony this numbers game is. Moreover, the fact is that there is nothing easier than to hang the "security risk" tag on a government worker.

'Derogatory Information.'

For example, when the files of some 15,000 State Department employes were examined, it was found that only about 3000 did not contain some sort of "derogatory information" — a morsel of malicious gossip, a poison pen letter, something of the sort. Thus, in four cases out of five, some pretext exists for labeling anyone who resigns or transfers a "security risk." No doubt the same proportion would hold true in any great private industrial organization, if everybody in it were encouraged to supply "derogatory information" about everybody else.

The purpose of the whole "security firing" operation has been, of course, to convey the impression of a tremendous house-cleaning, with subversives being hurled out of the Government in droves. Because the State Department has long been the chief target of the congressional primitives, special pressure was brought on McLeod to deliver up a maximum number of sacrificial lambs. He appears to have delivered handsomely.

One of the chief authors of the scheme is supposed to be Attorney General Herbert Brownell. It is known, at least, that Brownell gave the order permitting people who were resigning to be labeled "security risks" without their knowledge —which seems about as sportsmanlike as shooting a tethered rabbit with an elephant gun. At any rate, whoever its author, the scheme is now beginning to backfire badly.

The Democrats are belatedly realizing that this transparent fake gives them a useful stick with which to beat the Administration—and keep beating it. Already, under Democratic prodding, three congressional committees have asked Philip Reed, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, for a breakdown of the "security firings," to Reed's anguished embarrassment. House Democratic whip John McCormack and other congressional leaders have discussed parliamentary and other techniques for keeping the issue alive indefinitely.

Debate at White House.

In this situation, the next step is being angrily debated at the White House. One group (reportedly including Presidential Adviser Sherman Adams) favors killing the issue once and for all by publishing an honest breakdown, however temporarily embarrassing this may be. Another group (reportedly including Brownell) favors riding the whole thing out, claiming meanwhile that nobody said anything about the "security risks" being fired for subversion.

This claim, however, is unlikely to hold water. For example, in a speech some days ago in New York, Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield spoke of "2200 people who were security risks," remarking rather smugly that "somehow I do not feel too amiably inclined towards people who make treason a pre-occupation." Some weeks earlier, able presidential counsel Bernard Shanley claimed in a speech in New Jersey that "1456 subversives have been kicked out of Government since the President took office."

No doubt Summerfield and Shanley were quite honestly misinformed, and this may have been true of a number of other Republican leaders who may have talked the same way. Yet the fact that men like Shanley and Summerfield could be so misled itself suggests what a really inexcusable piece of fakery the whole thing has been. It has also, of course, been incredibly stupid politics. A central asset of the Administration is the atmosphere of integrity which surrounds President Eisenhower. Some of the Administration's backroom boys seem determined to dissipate this asset, in the name of "smart" politics.

DRUMMOND

Eisenhower to Give Breakdown Of 'Security Risk' Dismissals

Seeks to Clear Up Distortion by Both Parties Resulting From Previous Lack of Information on Firings.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER will make public shortly an informative breakdown and explanation of the 2200 federal employes who have been separated from the Government in the last year as "security risks."

The President is taking this action because in his judgment, the 2200 figure has been misused and the true situation distorted for political advantage by both Republican and Democratic spokesmen.

These facts can now be stated:

1. The breakdown will be in two categories showing the number who have been separated primarily because of doubtful loyalty and the number separated primarily because of character defects such as talking too much, drinking too much, etc.

2. Although the full analysis of all the separations has not yet been completed, it is far enough ahead to show that only a small percentage is connected with subversion.

3. Within the whole range of security risk, the Administration is continuing to press its program to free the Government from unworthy and untrustworthy employes and when the next announcement is made in about two weeks the 2200 figure will be appreciably increased.

4. A full, undated report on the operation of the whole program will soon be made to the National Security Council and the President is expected to use that occasion to provide the two-category breakdown which he has now decided is necessary and desirable.

In order to understand why the White House did not break down the separations in the first place it is necessary to bear in mind that, while the Truman Administration had made loyalty the principal test for firing, the Eisenhower Administration has made security the principal test. The network of special boards which President Truman had set up was charged with weighing the issues of loyalty or disloyalty. Under the system which has prevailed for the last year doubtful loyalty or Communist association is simply one of the eight categories of disqualification.

The President felt that, since many of the separations would be for mixed reasons, it was wrong and misleading to attach the label of disloyalty in dealing with these separations. Hence they were all listed as "security risks"—the whole 2200 of them.

However, this figure was implicitly, even if unintentionally, misleading.

Rightly, it did show that the Eisenhower Administration was

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has quietly switched from kid gloves to spurs in handling Congress. The first straw vote on the St. Lawrence Seaway showed the President's supporters six votes behind in the Senate. After the White House turned on the heat the Senate approved the seaway by 51 to 33 majority.

Last year the President tried to charm members of Congress over to his side by inviting them to White House breakfasts. He learned, however, that it took more than breakfast personal radiance to thaw out hard-crusted Congressmen. Now, instead of sweet talk, he has let it be known that patronage and campaign help will be rationed out to Republicans in proportion to the support they give his program.

This kind of party discipline, familiar to Democrats, is new to the Republicans on Capitol Hill, and some of the G.O.P. veterans don't like it. They are growling and muttering, but the showdown on the seaway indicates they will toe the line.

BRICKER BATTLE — The Bricker amendment, however, has proven to be a much more acid test of Eisenhower's leadership. Sixty-three Senators, all but three Republicans, originally signed up with the Senator from Ohio, indorsing a constitutional amendment to curb the President's treaty-making powers. This has grown into a major controversy, threatening a deep split in G..OP. ranks.

The President's own backbone had to be stiffened by Secretary of State Dulles. Eisenhower was loath to take off the gloves at first, but Dulles privately persuaded powerful Republican friends to bombard the White House with letters, urging Eisenhower to get in and pitch.

OTHER TESTS COMING UP —Here is the outlook on other features of the President's program:

Farm Program—The bipartisan farm bloc, unnerved by the surprise Democratic victory in Wisconsin's rural ninth district, will do its best to pitchfork the President's plan for tapering price supports. In this case, presidential pressure won't change many votes. No matter what Eisenhower threatens, farm Senators won't budge.

Secretary of Agriculture Benson's surplus butter can go on piling up, but farm Congressmen will keep on buttering up the farmers.

The President has one ace up his sleeve. He can veto any farm legislation he doesn't like. When the present farm law expires, this would leave the country with flexible price supports even more elastic than those of the White House plan, and farm leaders would be out of luck.

Taft-Hartley Changes—Secretary of Labor Jim Mitchell personally opposed the President's plan for government-sponsored strike votes, but agreed to go along. However, organized labor is so bitterly opposed that G.O.P. political strategists have recommended holding up the Taft-Hartley revisions until after the elections.

In a showdown, the President might muster up enough votes to put across his proposals, but it's doubtful.

Housing Program—The G.O.P. Old Guard considers Eisenhower's housing proposals too liberal, but the White House has sent word to Capitol Hill that a liberal housing program is necessary to help stave off recession. The real estate lobby itself is split over the President's plan. The home builders

Says Such Retaliation Would Kill Innocent, Turn World Against Us.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP).

DR. HAROLD UREY, Nobel prize winning atomic scientist, asserted yesterday that the United States should not adopt the threat of atomic war as its policy for policing the world, but should emphasize weapons of more limited scope.

Urey, who helped develop the first atomic bomb, said he is "very unhappy" over what he termed the Eisenhower Administration's threat of massive retaliation for any new aggression.

Speaking on the University of Chicago's Round Table broadcast ober NBC, Urey said:

"If we ever get to the place where we use atomic bombs, we can expect World War III with atomic bombs being dropped on us. It's something we should avoid."

However, Dr. Hans Morgenthau, director of the University's center for study of American foreign policy, said the threat of United States retaliation has been the main deterrent against aggression in Europe since World War II.

"If we say another Korea will be ground for an atom bomb attack, there won't be another Korea," he said.

Urey asked what the United States was prepared to do if the Chinese launch a strong offensive in Indochina.

"Do we propose to drop bombs on Peiping?" he asked. "If it means we are to pulverize Chinese cities, it means we are going to kill a lot of innocent people.

"Many people in Asia and Europe would turn against us and there would be many people against it in the United States.

"A few Koreas in the future is a better prospect than the start of World War III."

Urey and Morgenthau agreed it would be "a catastrophe" in the light of new American policy if Russia now accepted the Baruch proposals for inspection and limitation of atomic material.

They said that is because America's present policy is based on the threat of atomic retaliation.

Urey said he was enthusiastic about President Eisenhower's proposals for a pooling of atomic materials for the benefit of countries throughout the world, but said "it has nothing to do with the military problem."

Morgenthau said, however, that an agreement between Russia and the United States on such a pool would be "an important step toward lessening international tension."

'Frightening Prospect' of Red Trans-Ocean Missile Is Raised

Air Force Magazine Says Russians May Be Ahead of Us, Warns U.S. Couldn't Stop Piloted Bombers at Present.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP).

RUSSIA may well be ahead of America in developing intercontinental missiles with nuclear warheads which would render any known air defense system obsolete, Air Force magazine said today.

The publication, which often reflects United States Air Force views, also struck out at the "naive" idea that this nation would be able in the near future to stop an atomic attack delivered by piloted bombers.

While air defense is steadily improving, the Air Force Association magazine said, "the blunt truth is today, as it was a year ago, that this country is tragically unprepared to ward off a full-scale atomic attack."

It warned of the "frightening" prospect of the intercontinental ballistic missile—a vehicle delivering nuclear weapons at bullet-like speed—that would "render any conventional (defense) system almost wholly obsolete."

The magazine disparaged "talk about fantastic new weapons which are neither fantastic nor available yet for combat."

"Don't count your missiles before they are hatched" was the title of a special study published to counteract the idea that the nation can be protected now from atomic disaster. That idea can "sabotage our most priceless national asset, the American public's sense of urgency," the magazine said.

The publication pointed out that such new weapons as the Army's anti-aircraft missle "Nike" and the Air Force's airborne missile "Falcon" are not yet in operating units. It added that even when they are Russia will have other means than big bombers to deliver atomic attacks.

It noted that the United States Air Force now can launch jet fighters with A-bombs from B-36 superbombers. The next step would be to launch guided missiles from the B-36s. The Navy has a 500-mile-range missile, "Regulus," which can be launched from submarines.

It would be "shockingly shortsighted" to assume that Russia could not do the same thing, with the help of its German missile and submarine experts.

U.S. TO SPEND $85,000,000 FOR ARMS MADE IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (UP)—Headquarters of the United States armed forces of the Far East announced today that $85,000,000 will be spent by the Army in ordnance contracts let to Japanese industries between now and June 30, 1954.

A spokesman said the orders will be primarily for ordnance equipment already in production and previously contracted for by the United States security forces here.

But there will also be negotiations for new orders for production of other types of ammunition, the spokesman said.

SOUTH CHINA FOOD RIOTS REPORTED BY HONG KONG PRESS

HONG KONG, Feb. 1 (AP)—Food riots were reported from various parts of South China today by Hong Kong's independent Chinese press, which has fairly reliable news connections in many areas.

Wah Kiu Yat Po, whose reports of mass purges at Swatow in 1951 were confirmed later by Communist admissions, reported from Swatow that East Kwangtung province villagers were attacking government grain storage depots.

The paper's underground correspondent estimated 200 persons were killed in January by Red army garrisons trying to halt such food raids around Kweilai village.

The paper said at Lufkung 400 hungry persons overpowered guards and helped themselves to government rice at a storage depot on Jan. 23. Reinforcements for the guards arrived and were reported to have shot 100 persons and arrested 90 others.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Holding the Coffee Bag

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I want to congratulate Congresswoman Leonor Sullivan for calling attention to the high price of coffee.

The President or Congress cannot and will not do anything about the price of coffee. The speculators have bought up the available supply, and now they propose to rob the general public.

Clerks, stenographers and almost all other employes have to have a break for coffee in the forenoon and again in the afternoon. Employers can do nothing about it. People think they must have their coffee. This is a very silly and harmful habit; the speculators know this and they intend to cash in.

There is only one way to break these robbers: Everyone resolve to abstain from drinking coffee for a period of at least six months, and by that time your health will be so much better that you will continue to boycott coffee and these old boys will be left holding the coffee bag.

TOM A. SHOCKLEY.
Waynesville, Mo.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

So, there has been a freeze in the coffee countries! Let's give them the freeze here in America. A week or two of sacrifice and will power would do it. Buy none. Drink none.

This would not hurt our local merchants. In the last few years the handling of coffee has been more or less a service. Their markup has been from zero to perhaps 4 or 5 per cent, and you cannot exist on a markup of that kind. In fact, when you consider the cost of store operation or overhead, you lose money every time you sell a pound of coffee.

A few more Leonor Sullivans throughout the country would help shape the coffee price tomorrow.

FORMER MERCHANT.

Hope for the Living

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In selecting names for the proposed new Plaza development and corollary projects, why not choose words denoting happy beauty? No more memorials to the dead, war or civilian.

Let the new names be for the hope of the living and all the future living, an illumination, an introduction to a happier era, showing appreciation for the fantasies and joyous peace and wondrous design of which the living are capable.

CATHERINE BROWN.

Why Three Academies?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Why the agitation now for an air academy? It seems to me that consolidation of the naval and military academies might go far toward eventual elimination of the inter-service rivalry that has so vexed the country's leaders and which has hampered and increased the cost of the military establishments.

Why build up a third set of traditions and privileges and a new clique to scramble for power and prestige and to maneuver for more funds and preferred position?

Abandon West Point and Annapolis, or turn them over to some girls' schools! Do away with the class ring and the monkey suits that our cadets and midshipmen now wear. Instead, put all of our future military moguls in one big institution. Dress them alike and teach them the same basic subjects in the first two years and permit specialization in the last two. And when they are graduated, give them all the same ring to wear and the same memories to share.

It is at the academies that are planted the seeds of the rivalry which has blossomed into open hostility at times. Let's do away with them as separate entities and avoid a third complicating factor by forgetting about an air academy, too.

E. PLURIBUS UNUM.

The Best Safety Device

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I agree with Mrs. Skip Ringhofer that the new automobiles are beautiful, but as to the safety factor, a little knowledge of cars would show her that their horsepower and their lower build are two of the best if used correctly.

The manufacturers could put in safety belts, one of their best single safety devices on the market, but 99 per cent of the people wouldn't even bother using them.

It all adds up to the fact that Detroit can't build into the car the best safety device of all, "The cautious and courteous driver."

MIDWEST HOT ROD CLUB.

What's the Joke?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is the laughingest Administration I have ever known and I can remember clear back to Harding.

Pick up any newspaper or magazine any day, any time. The President grins broadly up at you. Catch him with his Cabinet (including Nixon) and they're all in hysterics. What's the joke?

Secretary Dulles seems to be the exception. He looks mighty sad. Maybe he's like me; he doesn't know the joke either. But I've a strong suspicion whatever it is—it's on the voters.

JUST ANOTHER VOTER.

Nothing to Compromise

Compromise, compromise, compromise!

That is all the talk in Washington now about the Bricker amendment to limit the authority of the President in the conduct of the country's foreign relations.

Compromise, compromise, compromise!

The Ohio Republican who is the sponsor of the resolution says he will accept a compromise draft worked out by Senator Knowland, Republican leader in the Senate, and other would-be peacemakers. His one condition is that the compromise also be supported by President Eisenhower.

Compromise, compromise, compromise!

Yet what is there to compromise?

President Eisenhower has declared himself "unalterably opposed" to the Bricker plan to make it more difficult and involved and time-consuming for the United States Government to handle its treaties and executive agreements with other countries.

Only last week Senator Bricker was standing on the floor of the Senate denouncing President Eisenhower's arguments as "emotional" and "utterly without foundation." He used the word "untrue" to describe the President's statement that adoption of the Bricker amendment would make it "impossible to deal effectively with friendly nations for mutual defense."

The Ohioan said the President's remark that the amendment would impair plans for peaceful use of atomic energy was "100 per cent wrong."

A genuine compromise is not possible in such a situation. The only thing that is possible is a surrender. One side or the other must capitulate, if there is not to be a showdown vote.

That is what Senator Knowland of California, Senator Ferguson of Michigan and other Administration leaders are trying so hard to avoid. They do not want this issue to come to a vote on the Senate floor with Senator Bricker and his followers on one side and the President and his supporters on the other.

But what is the harm of disposing of the Bricker scheme by a vote in the Senate? The Judiciary Committee mistakenly reported the resolution out 11 to 4 last year. Now either it should be returned to the committee to be buried there, as Senator Morse, Oregon Independent, proposes, or it should be voted down, as many observers think would be better.

The Bricker issue was admirably summarized by former Gov. Stevenson four days ago. He said:

> The issue is one of confidence in the wisdom of the Founding Fathers who gave us our remarkable Constitution; confidence in the Supreme Court which interprets and protects it; confidence in our President, whoever he may be; confidence in the Senate of the United States, and finally confidence in the American people themselves who elect the President and Congress and from whom, in a democratic society, all power springs.

There is nothing to compromise and so there is no need of a compromise amendment merely to pacify Senator Bricker. The President's constitutional treaty power is not to be tinkered with any more than it is to be severely curtailed.

The great United States Constitution is involved. That means this is no time for a face-saving flim-flam.

That's a Man for You

There is a kind of similarity between a fashion show and the Auto Show at Kiel Auditorium. There is a comparable glitter of sequins or chrome, the relative discussions of hemlines going down or horsepower going up. Yet the American male who crowds around these new automotive debutantes generally couldn't be dragged to a fashion show despite the beautiful lively models. Just what does a car have that makes it the quintessence of glamor to so many men? Pushbuttons? High compression? Streamlined fenders? Just can't figure it.

Pleasures of Growing Old

Somerset Maugham, just turned 80, says he has written his last line and proposes "to begin living." This does not, perhaps, mean precisely what it says. Maugham would be the first to admit that he has lived, even while writing. His design all along, as he explained in "The Summing Up," was to make writing "an essential element" in his life, which "would include all the other activities proper to man."

But, as he went on to make clear in that same summing up, another kind of living becomes possible when one grows old. "I look forward to old age without dismay," he wrote in that book first published 16 years ago. "The young man turns away from it with horror because he thinks that when he reaches it, he will still yearn for the things that gave variety and gusto to his youth. He is mistaken.

"Old age, paradoxical as it may sound, has more time. When I was young I was amazed at Plutarch's statement that the elder Cato began at the age of 80 to learn Greek. I am amazed no longer. Old age is ready to undertake tasks that youth shirked because they would take too long."

Maugham, and those who are 80 or more with him, are ready to begin the kind of living that takes time. Time to prepare for it, time to perform. Eighty is an age for projects, plainly. For projects a younger man has been rushed or intimidated out of. Much joy with those projects to Somerset Maugham and all of his generation who are ready now to undertake long tasks!

Doubts on Surplus Giveaways

Congressional doubts about the Eisenhower-Benson farm program extend even to the proposal to dispose of surplus commodities overseas. Senator Schoeppel of Kansas made that clear when he protested that "dumping" could disrupt world markets. Agriculture Secretary Benson replied with assurances that "dumping" of that sort will be avoided.

Mr. Benson hopes it will be possible to use some farm surpluses to pay for American bases overseas, and others as gifts to spark economic self-help among underdeveloped lands. Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois has urged the exchange of surpluses for scarce metals to be added to our national stockpiles.

Everything that can be worked out along this line would be useful in solving the short-run problem of getting rid of existing surpluses. But Congress ought to ask whether it is sound policy in the long run for this nation to produce huge stores of farm commodities which must be exported under one form or another of subsidy or artificial inducement. Does this not mean assessing the American taxpayer (through price supports) for the export of our soil fertility?

The heart of the surplus problem, in short, is how to avoid having a surplus. Basically that can be done either by not producing it, or by arranging for its consumption. Which brings us to the unanswered question of the farm policy debate. Are price supports, whether flexible or rigid, the best method of farm aid in all cases? Mr. Benson has evidently decided that direct subsidies are better than price supports in the case of wool. He proposes to pay wool growers directly the difference between the average market price of wool, and a price which represents 90 per cent of parity. Inevitably the question arises: if this is a good idea for wool, why not for other products, especially such products as butter? Congress would perform a useful service if it would sincerely devote itself to that question instead of merely debating rigid vs. flexible price supports.

Good Manners, Crossed Fingers

The big news from Berlin is the good feeling which has pervaded the first week of the Big Four meetings. This became almost disarming on the eve of the shift from West to East Berlin with the western foreign ministers beamingly insisting that Molotov preside over the first gathering in the Russian Embassy. Also beamingly, the Russian declined, saying he wanted no special consideration, that it was Mr. Eden's turn, and so on and on.

It would be naive optimism to see the future of nations reflected in the manners of four diplomats. Yet considering previous Russian truculence and western firmness, the new courtesy need not be taken as a bad sign. Actually Berlin has not yet produced results. Yet the amenities may be reckoned a gain. The Paris meeting of the deputies of the foreign ministers broke up after three and a half months without being able to agree on what their chiefs were to talk about.

Now in a week of sessions lasting only a few hours a day, Molotov, Bidault, Eden and Dulles have gotten down to the big issue, Germany, and have put their positions in the record. They may not get an inch beyond this point, no matter how long they remain in Berlin. Good manners are no guaranteed indication of good intentions. But they do encourage us to watch a second week of the talks—with fingers crossed.

A Reasonable Request

A group of citizens has been organized in the Granite City-Madison-Venice area for the purpose of opposing the application of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. for an increase in rates. The group, which includes five lawyers who will serve without fee, contends that the rates proposed are excessive. Its first move is to ask the Illinois Commerce Commission to hold a hearing in the local area rather than in Springfield. This is a reasonable request. The State of Illinois maintains a virtual second capital in Chicago in a large office building for the convenience of Chicago residents. Representatives of the utility regulating body can go to Madison or St. Clair county at much less expense than citizen witnesses can go to Springfield.

One or the Other

President Eisenhower has agreed to look into the possibility of publishing a breakdown of "security risk" dismissals. If he gives the question serious thought, we have no doubt that he will come to the conclusion which any fair-minded person must reach. The conclusion is this:

In fairness, the Administration has an obligation either to publish the breakdown, so that the public can know how many of the 2200 "security risk" cases involved actual disloyalty charges, or to stop using the statistics as if they did involve 2200 disloyalty cases.

Surely the President recognizes the obvious injustice of talking about 2200 "spies or Communists" being dismissed from the Government when that figure includes separations for many other reasons than suspected disloyalty. That the President appreciates the injustice may be inferred from his denial that anybody in the Administration has used the statistics in a misleading way.

But in that denial the President is mistaken. As Doris Fleeson reports from Washington, Postmaster General Summerfield, in addition to Attorney General Brownell, has recently referred to 2200 "security risk" cases as if they were all concerned with espionage or subversion. In a speech at New York, Mr. Summerfield cited the 2200 "security risks" and then went on: "I am here to tell you we are not hiring any new ones. Somehow, I do not feel too amiably inclined toward people who make treason a preoccupation."

Can anybody doubt that the Postmaster General conveyed to his audience the impression that the Administration has got rid of 2200 persons who "make treason a preoccupation"? Unless the President wishes to sanction this kind of misrepresentation, he should either publicly forbid such political exploitation of the issue, or publish a breakdown.

The Legions Were There

Army engineers building homes for the Twenty-second Infantry in Germany have uncovered homes built for the the Twenty-second Roman Legion a good 2000 years earlier. So no matter how well he has read his history books, a modern man is impressed again that the Romans have been before him, that the Eagles were carried even beyond Germany—all the way across Britain to the great wall built to keep out the Painted People.

To most men of the Roman world, the legions must have seemed irresistible. Marching with that long, slow, unvarying stride—24 miles in eight hours, neither more nor less—who was to stop them? Rome's race, Rome's pace. Yet there was a trace of a doubt in the mind of Parnesius, centurion of the Seventh Cohort of the Thirteenth Legion, the Ulpia Victrix, as in his hoop-armor and with a red horse-tail on his helmet he made the Long March:

> The farther North you go the emptier are the roads. At last you fetch clear of the forests and climb bare hills, where wolves howl in the ruins of our cities that have been. No more pretty girls; no more jolly magistrates who knew your Father when he was young, and invite you to stay with them; no news at the temples and way-stations except bad news of wild beasts. . . .
> The houses change from gardened villas to shut forts with watch-towers of grey stone. . . . The hard road goes on and on—and the wind sings through your helmet-plume—past altars to Legions and Generals forgotten, and broken statues of Gods and Heroes, and thousands of graves where the mountain foxes and the hares peep at you. . . .

Oh, Parnesius got to the Wall and the "roaring, rioting, cock-fighting, wolf-baiting, horse-racing town" that stretched "long like a snake, and wicked like a snake" along its safe, southern side. But even there his doubts did not fade.

Or were they not his doubts at all? Were they only written into his mind centuries later when Kipling took to telling of him in "Puck of Pook's Hill," a book which we commend for re-reading, be you young child or old man.

Progress—Or Rackets?

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Abuses by labor unions here pushing building costs up to prohibitive levels, says national magazine of construction industry; St. Louis's physical growth stifled by organized hoodlums; contractors who reject shakedowns suffer losses on contracts.

From Engineering News-Record

The harsh realities of how racketeer infiltration of honest trade unions can push construction costs up to prohibitive levels and stifle physical growth of a city have been made painfully apparent in St. Louis, Mo.

Shakedowns, restrictive labor practices and discriminations against out-of-town contractors, detailed by a crusading newspaper and given further impact by indictment and conviction of a lengthening string of racketeers, have amounted to something of an economic education for the city.

Engineering News-Record's figures show construction costs in St. Louis are 7 per cent higher than the average for the 20 principal cities in the United States.

Paul Hulahan

Antics of the St. Louis bricklayers have resulted in reduction in demand for their services as builders turned to substitute materials.

The major disclosures, together with subsequent indictments, stemmed from spadework done during the past two years by Carl Baldwin, a reporter for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Baldwin, a quiet man whose perpetual look of round-eyed incredulity elicits confidence after confidence, was able to find contractors who would cite figures and facts about their experiences.

In St. Louis, as elsewhere, most union leaders are honest. It's the minority who can damage labor's reputation in a city.

Paul H. Hulahan, business agent of Local 42, AFL Building Laborers' and Hod Carriers' Union, was first to go to trial of 16 AFL leaders who were indicted last year on charges of violating the federal anti-racketeering law. On Jan. 7, a jury which heard four days of testimony found him guilty in less than two hours.

Both the business agents named as co-conspirators with Hulahan were murdered in 1952.

In their testimony, witnesses told of being approached with requests for money in return for which labor peace would be insured. One company had to obtain an extension of time because of work stoppages. The work cost $429,899 more than had been estimated.

Another company lost $411,000 on the contract.

Boss of the steamfitters' local is Lawrence Callanan, an ex-convict and one of the AFL leaders under indictment on charges of racketeering. He is a power in politics and his brother Thomas was until recently Sheriff of St. Louis.

In 1951 disclosures by the Post-Dispatch, two Chicago contractors reported they withdrew as competitors in the East Side construction field after suffering heavy losses on Government contracts. They said labor costs on their St. Louis area jobs ran to three and a half times what they would have been around Chicago.

St. Louis has its share of complaints that out-of-town contractors are discriminated against while certain local ones seem to find labor seas calm.

Leo F. Havey, business agent of the AFL bricklayers' union in St. Louis, prominent in civil and political affairs, is one of the AFL group under federal indictment. He is charged with threatening violence to prevent Negro union bricklayers, and other bricklayers living outside the state, from being brought there for work.

Following his indictment, Havey resigned as chairman of the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority in St. Louis. He served on the St. Louis Housing Authority in 1950-1952, and is considered one of the most politically influential labor leaders in the city.

Union Electric Co. switched to masonry substitutes after the company took a "terrific beating" on a construction job in 1948. Workers laid an average of only 200 bricks a day, so that walls cost $7.60 a sq. ft.

In consequence Union Electric used substitutes on a subsequent construction job and estimated it saved $580,000.

. Must Be in How You Look at It

From the Chicago Daily Tribune

A defection is reported from the strange coalition that promoted Mr. Eisenhower into the White House as a Republican. H. Glenn Weber of St. Louis, chairman of the Missouri delegation to the Republican National Convention last year, who was one of the Eisenhower floor managers at the convention, has deserted and has announced that he is switching his support to the Democrats.

Mr. Weber said that "reactionary Old Guard Republicans are in complete control of the Administration in Washington." He said he was disappointed in Eisenhower, whom he had counted upon to "revitalize the Republican party along truly liberal and progressive lines."

Mr. Weber's charges will come as a surprise to Republicans of less flexible persuasion. They had thought that, far from being a symbol of Old Guard Republicanism, Eisenhower could more accurately be described as a Republican New Dealer. His most vociferous support comes from that wing of the party. It is members of Congress like Representatives Jacob Javits, Hugh Scott and the like who are among the dozen members of the House to acclaim the new Eisenhower program, whatever it is, while the rest of the members manage to preserve a somewhat loud silence.

The case of Mr. Weber suggests that it all depends on what you expect and want. He and the strange crowd of reformed New Dealers, Southern Democratic renegades and dubious Republicans from the East who flocked to Mr. Eisenhower at the convention apparently wanted a full fledged New Dealer elected as a Republican. They must have felt that Mr. Truman had so queered the New Deal that Adlai Stevenson or anyone else didn't have a prayer to get elected under the true New Deal colors.

Mr. Eisenhower seemed to them to meet the specification. Judging from his performance, a great many voters would be at a loss to determine what Mr. Weber is complaining about. What more does he want? Would it take the election of Herbert Lehman, Hubert Humphrey or Junior Roosevelt on the Republican ticket to satisfy his requirements concerning a "liberal and progressive" Republican?

TWO CAN LIVE CHEAPER . . .

From the CIO Political Action of the Week.

The Wall Street Journal advises that a man with an income of $12,000 a year planning to get married by Jan. 3 could have saved $938 in taxes by getting married on Dec. 27 instead. "If," the paper added, "the bride-to-be had 1953 income, of course, the advantage of an early marriage would be reduced."

Between Book Ends

Three Mixed Up People

THE FINAL HOURS, by Jose Suarez Carreno, and translated from the Spanish by Anthony Kerrigan. (Alfred A. Knopf, 273 pgs., $3.50.)

In "The Final Hours" Jose Suarez Carreno presents the misfortunes of three mixed-up people adrift one night in Madrid. Exactly what is wrong with them is never clear, but there is certainly no doubt that they are mixed up.

Angel Aguado, a wealthy middle-aged business man of a type familiar to all movie-goers, is unable to make up his mind whether he is in love with his wife or with Carmen, a virtuous prostitute haunted by the memory of a former love and therefore unable to love Angel—who is rather a cold fish anyway. Manolo is a boy of the streets who gets involved with the unhappy couple during the course of the evening. Although he doesn't have any money, he seems to have a good time.

Given these characters, the reader has a right to expect a story which at least will come up to the standards of a grade-B movie. But nothing at all happens. That is because this book tries very hard to become Art—even though the materials it works with are those of Cheap Fiction.

Being an artist, the author feels it best to keep the action down to a minimum. The book comes to an end only when two of the characters manage to get themselves killed in an automobile crash.

The most that can be said for the book is that part of the fault may lie with the translation, which is somewhat unwieldy. The second sentence in the book reads: "Her mouth was fixed in a distracted smile, the kind of smile habitual with people who know the necessity of suffering."

Play by a St. Louisan

EVERYNUN, by Danle' A. Lord, S. J. (The Eucharistic Crusade of the Knights and Handmaids of the Blessed Sacrament, 143 pgs., $3.00.)

Known throughout the country for his work among Catholic young people, Father Lord of St. Louis is a prodigious and untiring writer and producer. Taking his cue from the medieval drama, "Everyman," he has written "Everynun" to pay tribute to "wonderful women doing miracles in everyday life." Briefly, the play by a series of flashbacks portrays the life of an old nun who is celebrating her diamond jubilee. Pathos and humor, color and emotion are mingled in the various scenes of her girlhood and her convent life. Primarily intended for production in a girls' school, the play affords many opportunities for presenting large groups in singing and dancing choruses. Besides three important roles, there is a long list of minor characters.

In his years of experience in producing pageants, plays and musicals, Father Lord has become a true craftsman of the theater, evidenced by the detailed and practical directions regarding staging, costuming, lighting, etc. A useful volume for a Catholic girls' high school.

Life of an Early Gun Maker

THE STORY OF COLT'S REVOLVER, by William B. Edwards. (Stackpole, 470 pgs., $10.)

Gun collectors will revel in this story of how a determined young Yankee developed the repeating hand gun that played a part in molding the history of the United States. Basically the early Colt revolver was the civilian's weapon for, despite his ability as a salesman, Samuel Colt was repeatedly rebuffed by the politician and the bigwig of Army and Navy. The miner forty-niner, the western scout and the gun fighter used his weapons to blaze a smoky, black powder trail across the plains but it took the Civil War to bring Colt's revolvers and rifles into their own. The book is profusely illustrated, replete with diagrams and easy to read.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Pakistan, Dangerous Gap to Fill

WASHINGTON.

ONE of the most tricky, difficult and dubious undertakings in the short but crowded record of America's effort to assume the leadership of the non-Communist world is now in process. That is to fill the power vacuum of the Middle East.

To put it bluntly, the effort is to close the ring around the Soviet Union in the West from Communist aggression. For many months American policy makers have been casting about for ways and means to do this job. At one point hopes were centered on what would have been a Middle East branch of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This was to have been built around Egypt.

Nehru

The belief then was that the British and the Egyptians could resolve their differences over combined defense forces in the Suez Canal Zone. That has not been possible.

Turkey Helped by Truman.

The new effort is to form a nucleus with Turkey at one end and Pakistan at the other end of the troubled area stretching between Europe and Asia. If this could seem to come by spontaneous generation, with America merely looking on benignly, the State Department would be happier about it.

But given the inquiring persistency of the press in a democracy, there has been a flood of speculative stories about the countries — Iraq and Saudi Arabia as well as Pakistan—to be included in such a pact under America's aegis.

Turkey has been receiving military and economic aid ever since President Truman's dramatic proclaiming the Greek-Turkish doctrine of resisting Communism.

Talbott on Spain.

Now Pakistan is also to get military assistance, the initial amount ranging according to rumor anywhere from $25,000,000 to $100,000,000. The Pakistani government welcomes this help.

It is said here that Pakistan's chief of staff, Gen. Ayub Kahn, asked for it on his recent visit and on his return took the first steps toward a pact with Turkey.

Two grave doubts hang over this proposal and they deserve the most careful exploration. The first has to do with the fact of closing the ring with bases in Pakistan that would be available to the United States in one way or another.

Availability of such bases in an emergency would be for the United States the real quid pro quo for the cost of furnishing arms to modernize Pakistan's force of 240,000.

Such availability would not be publicly spelled out as it is not in relation to the military aid being furnished Spain. But what Secretary of the Air Force Harold Talbott expressed so crudely and at such an inopportune time about Spain—that of course we would use the bases when the balloon goes up—would be true also of Pakistan.

That is not a secret to anyone, including Moscow. Bases in Pakistan would be much nearer Russia's new industrial centers in Asia than any other bases to which America now has rights. Those industrial centers began to be augmented during World War II. They have been enlarged since 1945 as part of the Soviet process of building an inner core of security.

Hindu-Moslem Rivalry.

This—the ability to hit those targets readily—is the real meaning of the closing of the ring. Russian reaction to such bases could be one of fear and desperate retaliation.

The second reason for doubt is at least as grave as the concern over how the Soviet Union may react and the consequences of such reaction. Prime Minister Nehru of India denounced the prospect of American military aid to Pakistan.

The press in India has seen it as a move intended to build up a rival in the contest over Kashmir. Not alone intense nationalist rivalry has been stirred but the cauldron of bitter religious hatred between Hindu and Moslem may boil over again.

Risk of Losing India.

Many Americans would brush Nehru off as a neutralist or worse. But for others who know that part of the world he is still the leader of a large part of Asia, representing the reaction against colonialism, the pacifist tradition of Gandhi and the passionate desire for independent statehood.

This is the view of former Ambassador to India Chester Bowles, expressed in his best selling book "Ambassador's Report."

If Nehru turns against the West or if his position is so weakened by the pro-Communist, anti-American feeling, then India and most of what is left of Asia will be lost. This is too real a danger to be dismissed by easy talk of filling a power vacuum.

Most signs indicate that Soviet Russia has shifted the line of aggression from the military to the more insidious line of economic and political infiltration. Filling the vacuum with guns and tanks will be of little avail if Asia's millions and their leaders are thereby alienated.

GRADUATES WARNED OF ORGANIZED EVIL

Prof. Walter F. Gast Speaks at Midyear Exercises at St. Louis U.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Communism, dictatorship and other evils menace society only when implemented with organization, Walter F. Gast, professor of business administration and director of the department of management at St. Louis University, said yesterday.

He was the principal speaker at midyear commencement exercises in the university's gymnasium. Degrees were awarded to 235 graduates of the various schools. Ten of those given degrees were graduated with honors.

"While these evils (Communism, dictatorship) are by no means to be taken lightly, they themselves do not describe the really serious omens of the present decade," Gast said. "Only when these evil forces are implemented with the vehicle of organization are they capable of great damage to human society."

The persistent presence of evil demands constant vigil by man, lest it be organized to his disadvantage, he said. The natural sciences, technology and the social sciences have contributed to organization a potency and speed which greatly multiply its hazards, he added.

Gast spoke after the very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., president of the university, delivered the salutation. Commencement exercises began with a special mass for the graduates, celebrated by Father Reinert, in the lower St. Francis Xavier (College) church.

Students graduated with honors were:

Magna cum laude: Charles Edward Frame, 3473 McKibbon road, Overland, School of Commerce and Finance; Sister Mary Roberta Frohnapfel, C.M.P., Huntington, W.Va., School of Commerce and Finance; Sister Mary Domanic Sweeney, C.C.V.I., Houston, Tex., School of Nursing.

Cum laude: Edmund J. Raczka, C.R., 3589 West Pine boulevard, College of Arts and Sciences; Joseph J. Walsh, 3431A Michigan avenue, School of Commerce and Finance; Sister Corde Marie Jones, S.S.M., 1100 Bellevue avenue, Richmond Heights, School of Nursing; Sister Mary of the Immaculate Heart Ryan, R.S.M., Limerick, Ireland, School of Nursing; Paul Q. Beeching, Gary, Ind., College of Arts and Sciences; Harold G. Smith, Astoria, Ore., School of Nursing, and Sister Mary Solona Schmeidler, C.S.A., Fond du Lac, Wisc.

Corot Painting Given to Art Museum

Art Museum Is Given Pictures By Manet, Corot and Jacque

Donors Are Busch Heirs of New York, J. Lionberger Davis and Mrs. Jeanette L. Windegger.

Two paintings and a drawing by noted French artists of the last century have been given to City Art Museum and were placed on exhibit today in the museum's recent accessions gallery. The three works form a related, harmonious group.

"Portrait of a Girl," a painting by Edouard Manet (1832-1887), a pioneer impressionist, is the gift of Mrs. Busch Greenough of New York, daughter of Adolphus Busch, cofounder of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., and of Mrs. Greenough's son, Curt Reisinger, also of New New, a director of the brewery corporation.

J. Lionberger Davis, St. Louis collector who has made numerous major benefactions to the museum in the past, is the donor of "La Rochelle," a characteristic small landscape by J. B. C. Corot (1796-1875), prized for his casual simplicity and charm of ease.

The drawing is Charles Emil Jacque's "Pastoral Scene," presented to the museum by Mrs. Jeanette L. Windegger, 4615 Lindell boulevard, in memory of the late Cap Andrew Tilles, St. Louis philanthropist. Like Corot, Jacque was a member of the Barbizon group, which helped revolutionize French painting by a quiet, earnest return to nature for subject matter.

"Pastoral Scene," by Jacque (1813-1894), depicts a shepherd with his sheep. The artist and his fellows in such works served as immediate artistic ancestors of Manet and the other impressionists, who also painted out-of-doors and explored fleeting light effects in nature.

As is customary with acquisitions by presentation, Perry T. Rathbone, director of the museum, declined to place a monetary value on any of the accessions.

In comment on the Manet painting, he said, "The museum is very fortunate to receive this valuable painting, a treasured possession of Mrs. Greenough for nearly 50 years. It is gratifying that Mrs. Greenough, who has lived away from St. Louis for many years, should remember her native city in her benefactions."

Speaking of the Corot, Rathbone said, "Once again Mr. Davis has shown his unfailing devotion to the museum and the enrichment of its collections. Like so many of his previous gifts, this Corot reflects the taste of the true connoisseur."

The drawing, by an artist known especially for his paintings of sheep, has remarkable merit of its own. When Maurice Serullaz, assistant curator of drawings at the Louvre Museum, visited St. Louis a year ago for the French drawing exhibition, he examined Mrs. Windegger's drawing by Jacque and pronounced it superior in quality to any Jacque work owned by the Louvre, Rathbone said.

OBERLIN MUSEUM DIRECTOR TO JUDGE STATE ART SHOW

Charles P. Parkhurst, director of the Oberlin (O.) College art museum, will serve as sole juror for the thirteenth annual Missouri exhibition, which will open Feb. 15 at the City Art Museum.

Entries closed Saturday in the competition, in which prizes totaling about $1000 will be awarded. The contest was open to all artists who had lived in Missouri or within 50 miles of the state's borders within the last year.

Included will be oil paintings, drawings, prints, water colors, ceramics, sculpture and craftwork. The show, displaced from its normal position on the fall exhibition calendar by the Van Gogh exhibition, will last a month.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Responsibility in President's Report

WASHINGTON.

IN President Eisenhower's economic report to Congress there is a broad hint to that legislative body. In drafting the report the President's Council of Economic Advisers was very frank about what it called "the current economic readjustment."

This, it said, seems likely to be brief and self-corrective, as our economy is basically strong. But we must not view it "with complacency." Therefore we should take no chances. A way to make sure we get into no trouble, now or in the future, is for Congress to enact the President's program. Or, as the report put it:

Stokes.

"These measures for strengthening our economy constitute, taken together, a program of immediate advisable action. It is not a legislative program of emergency measures, for the current situation clearly does not require one.

Responsibility to Citizens.

"Instead, it is a program for stimulating economic growth and minimizing any chance there may be of serious economic difficulty in the future. The program will contribute materially to the requisites for continued economic progress set out in the beginning of this report."

That is polite, careful, restrained. But Congress should get the point—"immediately advisable action."

For the public at large the report is encouraging in its frankness. It is frank about our present economic situation, what happened and where we are today. It is frank about how the Administration had to switch from its "tight money" policy that was "new and startling to many bankers, mortgage lenders and business men" and ease credit.

Against Personal Disaster.

But, above all, the report expounds a philosophy of Government responsibility to its citizens which will be welcome far and wide, though not to some "mossbacks," as President Truman once called the breed, in Congress and outside.

It implements the statement of this philosophy with a pledge that that Administration "will not hesitate to use any or all" of the various weapons and measures at its disposal to maintain prosperity.

Never were President Eisenhower's two Democratic predecessors more emphatic about the use of Government's powers for the people, nor more eloquent, than this economic report to Congress. Random excerpts will demonstrate:

"The demands of modern life and the unsettled status of the world require a more important role for Government than it played in earlier and quieter times. . . . To help build a floor over the pit of personal disaster, Government must concern itself with the health, security and welfare of the individual citizen. . . .

"Government must use its vast power to help maintain employment and purchasing power as well as to maintain reasonably stable prices . . ." and so on.

Words Congress Spurned.

Incidentally, when Congress was writing the Full Employment Act of 1946, it refused to accept in its preamble language similar to that last sentence quoted. A majority gulped at such a strong commitment as too radical.

It was the 1946 act that set up the Council of Economic Advisers who counsel the President on economic conditions and policy and submit periodic reports to Congress, including the annual report. Today it consists of Arthur F. Burns, chairman; Neil H. Jacoby and Walter W. Stewart.

In its story of what happened during the past year, the contraction of our economy and its effects, the report explains that it was important that the transition be carried through "without shock and that the readjustment be moderate and not cumulate" and then added, significantly:

"The once fashionable theory that a sharp liquidation was good for the economy could not be trusted."

Public Works Program.

That represents the end of something or other—and luckily.

It was revealed in the report that the Council of Economic Advisers was instructed early last year "to design plans for dealing with a business recession, though none was in sight."

Likewise the council has given considerable attention to a public works program and best means of getting it going if needed, and every department of Government is enlisted in preparing lists of projects.

The report gave more details than hitherto revealed about other parts of the President's program that are useful as "cushions" in event of recession —an extension of unemployment insurance to some 10,000,000 persons not now covered and increase of benefit payments and duration of payments, and broadening of coverage of the minimum wage law.

BILL QUINN OPENS SOLO ART SHOW AT PEOPLE'S CENTER

Bill Quinn, 24-year-old St. Louis artist now receiving Army basic training at Camp Chaffee, Ark., opened his first one-man show yesterday at People's Art Center, 3657 Grandel square. The display is significant both for its quality and its representation of the dominent trend among the city's younger painters.

The nine large paintings are abstract to the point of containing scarcely a representational element. They improve as they progress chronologically, the last being painted thinly in subtly muted tones and achieving a personal kind of restraint in the French tradition.

Twenty-seven drawings, prints and collages—or pasted-up compositions — complete the collection. These smaller works are interesting chiefly as studies for the paintings or as variant treatments of their themes. The show will close Feb. 28—H. D.

Coast League Long Way From Majors.

THE Pacific Coast League [illegible] . . .

Last season all the Coast League teams combined drew only [illegible] . . . That is [illegible] below the previous year's total. . . . The Milwaukee Braves alone drew more than [illegible] . . . That's a long way from Tipperary, the P.C.L. figures seem to indicate.

Fortunately for the Coast League, the pressure to induct Los Angeles and San Francisco into the majors isn't likely to become serious until [illegible], and in the meantime Frank and his associates may try to build up the attendance, overall club strength and park capacities. . . . There are few willing to risk the family plate that this can ever be done.

Optimists 'Whistling Past the Graveyard.'

THE Pacific Coast League, not so long ago, appeared to be in a position to entertain major league hopes. . . . Its president still seems to entertain them. . . . But, as one Los Angeles sports editor expressed it, "fans hope they (P.C.L. owners) are not merely whistling past the graveyard."

In a couple of years Frisco and L.A. may acquire to major league franchises. . . . Then the Coast League may explode and break up into its minor league components. . . . None of the coast cities of today, except the Big Two, is considered to have what it takes to attract major league crowds—strong ball clubs, adequate parks, capable players and large enough population.

Signing Chuck Dressen by Oakland gave the league a flurry of hope. . . . But he has a big enough job on his hands cleaning the Oaks without helping the other weaklings of the league. . . . Oakland's attendance fell 100,000 last year.

Los Angeles increased its gate receipts slightly in 1953. . . . But everywhere else a pall of gloom seems to prevail, caused by the almost certain passing of the Angels and Frisco to a major league.

Bill Veeck, Now an Angel, May Rejoin the Majors.

SIGNS of deterioration in this league are noted in several instances, in addition to the low attendances—for example:

The San Francisco franchise has something new—an employe ownership, which is said to be undercapitalized. It was a very sick club under its previous owner and still is a question mark today.

The Hollywood Stars, league champions, lost 36,000 attendance in winning the pennant! . . . Also present contracts, expiring in 1956, threaten its future.

The presence of Bill Veeck with the Angels, has led fans to the conclusion that, while trying to help the Coast League, Owner Phil Wrigley has read the handwriting on the wall, the certainty that the major leagues will take over Frisco and Los Angeles.

What's Veeck got to do with it all? . . . Here's what Sports Editor Paul Zimmerman of the L. A. Times has to say: "Nobody seems to know where Bill Veeck stands . . . His speeches and press utterances have largely been on the major league future for Los Angeles. Certainly his remarks to date have contributed nothing to Pacific Coast League baseball as it will be played this season."

Bill, in St. Louis, isn't what we call a harbinger of good news. . . . It begins to appear that he may, however, return to the big leagues by using the Coast League as a back door.

Drake Player Who Reported Bribe Offer Expects to 'Flunk'

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 1 (UP)—Ben Bumbry, the Drake University star who exposed an alleged basketball "fix" scheme a month ago, may leave school today or Tuesday because of scholastic troubles.

Bumbry said he has been interrupted "constantly" in connection with the case and has had a load of odd jobs to carry which have made it difficult to keep up his school work. He said he expects to "flunk out."

The star forward, the Bulldogs' leading scorer at 244 points, said he will leave for his home at St. Louis, Mo., possibly "after exams" today or Tuesday.

Bumbry, a Drake senior majoring in physical education, said he has made tentative arrangements to join the Clarkson basketball team here for the state A.A.U. meet starting next Sunday.

The basketball player told authorities late in December that a man had approached him and offered $300 to $500 to make sure Drake lost by 8 to 10 points in its Dec. 22 game with Iowa State. A Des Moines businessman, Floren Di Paglia, 27, was arrested a few days later on a charge of attempting to fix a basketball game.

Gets Job After Boss Quits Over Ill Health

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 1 (UP)—Terry Brennan was named today to succeed Frank Leahy as Notre Dame football coach.

Brennan, only 25, signed a three-year contract. He joined the Irish coaching staff as freshman coach only this year after four years at Mount Carmel high school in Chicago.

During his tenure at Mount Carmel, his teams were undefeated for three seasons and won an unprecedented three consecutive city championships.

Turned Down Marquette.

Only a week ago he rejected a chance to consider the head coaching job at Marquette.

Announcement of Brennan's appointment was made by the Rev. Theodore Hesburg, president of the university.

"His success (at Mount Carmel) in the guidance of young men distinguished him as one of the most promising young coaches in America," a statement said.

"The university has selected him as a man well qualified to manifest the fine tradition of sportsmanship and competitive spirit that have long characterized the university of Notre Dame in the field of American intercollegiate athletics."

"for reasons of health." And he quit after 11 seasons as the Irish coach with a record of 87 victories, 11 defeats and nine ties.

Brennan, a regular left halfback at Notre Dame for four years from 1945 through 1948, said the "decision of Coach Leahy to discontinue coaching and my appointment as his successor have left me with mingled feelings.

"Every Notre Dame alumnus and particularly those of us who have played and worked under Coach Leahy must regret that the day of his retirement is at hand.

"I am both thrilled and humbled at the opportunity of taking part in a great coaching tradition. I appreciate the confidence that has been shown me . . . and hope for the support of all Notre Dame men throughout the country and at the same time to be worthy of their support."

Has Law Degree.

Brennan graduated at Notre Dame in June 1949 with philosophy his primary study. Last year he received a law degree from De Paul University.

Brennan started 30 of Notre Dame's 38 games during his playing career. He was the team's leading scorer and leading pass receiver in 1946 and 1947.

His greatest moment was a 93-yard runback with the opening kickoff of the 1947 Army game, the last with the Cadets. Notre Dame and Army will resume relations in 1956.

Brennan, a native of Milwaukee, was married to Mary Louise Kelley July 14, 1951. The couple has two children, Terence, now 18 months old, and Denise, a month old.

Brennan's apppointment was not particularly surprising. Speculation had centered on either him or Indiana's Coach Bernie Crimmins from the instant Leahy's resignation was announced.

Crimmins, though he said he would be "flattered" to be considered for the job, has a long-term contract at Indiana. He left Notre Dame two years ago for the Hoosier job after six years as Leahy's chief assistant.

Leahy actually was responsible for the greatest surprise with his retirement announcement—he plans to consider "three or four business offers"—because as recently as last week he laughed off queries about his future at Notre Dame. Many times he said he wanted to stay at Notre Dame "as long as they want me."

But apparently doctors convinced the 45-year-old coach that coaching was becoming too much of a strain for him. He collapsed between halves of last season's game with Georgia Tech. At first the attack was thought to be a heart seizure. Leahy said later he was convinced he was dying.

However, it developed that he was suffering from pancreatitis. He was forced to miss two subsequent Notre Dame games.

Leahy's resignation ended another fabulous era for Notre Dame football. Six of his teams were unbeaten and four were national champions during the time he compiled his 87-11-9 record bettered only by Knute Rockne, the man whose genius brought Notre Dame its national following.

Rock, who coached Leahy in the late '20s, won 105 games, lost 12 and tied three from 1918 until his death in an airplane crash in March 1931.

Took Over in 1941.

Leahy took over in 1941 after Hunk Anderson and Elmer Layden coached the Irish without singular success. Leahy returned to his alma mater following line coaching jobs at Georgetown, Michigan State and Fordham, plus an impressive two seasons as head coach at Boston College, where his teams lost only two of 22 games and beat Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's day, 1941.

Leahy's last Notre Dame team was unbeaten, once-tied and was nosed out by Maryland in press-service polls for the mythical national collegiate championship, prompting protest as heated as over the question of coaching ethics when Notre Dame used a "sucker shift" in 1952 and its players feigned injuries to stop the clock in the tie game with Iowa last fall.

Out of Action on Doctor's Orders

FRANK LEAHY and his wife relax in a Chicago hotel following the unexpected announcement of his retirement as coach of the Notre Dame U. football squad. Leahy, 45, said he was advised by his doctor to quit because of ill health. He collapsed between halves of the game with Georgia Tech, Oct. 24.

Leahy's Retirement 'Great Loss to Sport,' Rivals Agree

By the United Press.

The nation's coaching greats, headed by Army's Earl Blaik, called Frank Leahy's retirement "a great loss to college football" today and wished the old master of Notre Dame success in future ventures.

"It certainly came as a great surprise to me," said Blaik, whose Army teams were perennial challengers to Notre Dame for national honors. "The college coaching profession has certainly lost one of its most capable and colorful members."

Coach Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, who with Leahy's retirement now has the best record among active coaches, said Leahy "was one of the great coaches in the history of football."

"His loss leaves a void in our ranks that cannot be filled," Wilkinson stated.

Coach Stu Holcomb, whose Purdue team ended a 39-game Notre Dame unbeaten streak in 1950, pointed out that Leahy was an unusually young man to retire.

"It's very unfortunate he had to resign so early in his career," Holcomb said. "When I talked with him in Cincinnati recently, I got the impression he planned to continue coaching."

Hates to See Him Go.

"I hate to see him out of the coaching profession," Woodard said. "I think he was a very fine coach. Our relationships with Notre Dame have always been good down through the years."

Forrest Evashevski, coach of the Iowa team which battled Notre Dame to a surprise 14-14 tie last season, wished Leahy "well in whatever field he chooses and know he will be a success."

"The game has lost a very fine coach in Frank Leahy," Evashevski said.

George Munger, who resigned after 16 years as head coach of Pennsylvania recently, also said Leahy's retirement was a "great loss to intercollegiate football."

"I got to know him and felt that he was one of the top men in football today and he has proven it," Munger said.

Mike Holovak, coach of Boston College and a star fullback on Leahy's powerhouse which beat Tennessee, 19-13, in the Sugar Bowl on Jan. 1, 1941, expressed "real surprise" at the news.

"As a coach Frank was just terrific," Holovak said. "Considering his record, you just can't deny that he was the best coach of his generation."

Bobby Dodd Not Surprised.

Jess Hill, coach of the University of Southern California which met Notre Dame in one of the game's great rivalries, expressed his sorrow as follows:

"I certainly am sorry to hear of his resignation. There is no question, and I can speak from experience, that he is one of the finest football coaches in America. He is a great coach and his Notre Dame teams have been the best."

Bobby Dodd, coach of Georgia Tech, said he wasn't surprised.

"It's not too much of a surprise," he said. "He suffered an attack at halftime in our game last season. Frank Leahy was high-strung and football took a lot out of him. It is a loss, I'm sure, to Notre Dame because of his fine record."

Yale Coach Jordan Olivar, who disagreed with Frank Leahy over his use of the "sucker shift," said Leahy's resignation was "an outstanding loss."

"It's a real shame to have to lose such an outstanding coach. He made a real contribution to the game."

Bears to Meet Wayne Tonight

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Feb. 1—The Washington University Bears of St. Louis will try to avenge an earlier 63-46 loss to Wayne U. in a return game here tonight.

Barely beaten by Michigan, 62-61, Saturday, Coach Blair Gullion's Bears will seek their seventh victory in 15 games. Wayne, featuring veterans Wally Ziemba and Gene Bolden, has a 10-3 record.

Against the Wolverines big Bob Kriegshauser shook loose for a basket with 4:12 of play remaining, but neither team scored thereafter. Washington trailed by as many as 15 points in the third period and held Michigan to nine points in the final period.

'Doubles' for Dressen, Chandler Steal Show at Writers' Dinner

The show highlighted the thirty-first annual dinner of the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association last night, and in the opinion of some 1500 guests was a rousing success.

Bill Bloome of the World-Telegram and Sun, who portrayed Dressen, warbled to the tune of "Ricochet Romance":

"They (the Dodgers) warned me when they signed me, their love would ricochet."

The former Brooklyn manager also took a going-over with reference to the letter his wife wrote to Dodgers President Walter O'Malley asking for a long-term contract.

Ben Epstein of the Mirror, in the guise of Chandler, sang a parody on "It Ain't Necessarily So." The lyrics were based on Chandler's recent blasting of Commissioner Ford Frick's handling of the major league pension fund squabble.

Other skits had as their themes the Baltimore and Milwaukee shifts, the Supreme Court decision that baseball was a sport instead of a business and New York Yankee Manager Casey Stengel and his winning of five straight world championships. "Give Me Five Pennants More," said "Stengel."

Haas Gets 268 To Win Coast Golf Tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Feb. 1 (AP) — The golfing troupe headed east for the Phoenix, Ariz., open golf tournament today, and leading the charge was Freddie Haas Jr. of New Orleans, celebrating his first major victory since 1950.

The 38-year-old Haas captured the colorful $15,000 Thunderbird Invitational tournament yesterday with a remarkable 20-under par score of 268 for 72 holes.

Experience gained in years in the game brought Haas in with a 69 for the par 72 Thunderbird Country Club course, but the finishing punch to the rest of the field was a 10-foot putt for an eagle three on the eighteenth green.

It was executed in Freddie's peculiar, unorthodox, cross-handed putting style. It iced the first prize of $2000.

"It was about time I won a tournament," said Haas, whose last was in the 1950 Long Beach, Calif., open.

Handsome Bo Wininger of Oklahoma City, the co-leader with Haas going into the final round, wound up in a tie behind Haas with Marty Furgol and Chandler Harper, worth $833.33 apiece.

Johnny Palmer of Charlotte, N.C., and Doug Ford of New York, each with 68's, tied at 271 for $550 apiece.

And next in line was Ben Hogan, the great one, playing in his first tournament since he won the British Open last summer. Ben had sub par rounds of 65-70-69-68—272, but they were worth only $450.

Gene Littler, making his first start as a pro since relinquishing the national amateur championship he won last year, did well but found the pace too fast. Gene had 68-68-71-68—275. Littler, like all the also-rans, picked up $200 guaranteed every pro invited by the Thunderbird members.

The same held true for Dutch Harrison and Byron Nelson, who withdrew when a bad back and a bad shoulder, respectively, forced them out. Harrison was tied with Wininger at the end of 36 holes.

Stowe Goes for No. 3.

The Stowe Teachers will go for the third straight victory when they meet Sanford Brown in a Greater St. Louis College Basketball Conference game at Sherman Park tonight. Stowe is unbeaten, while Sanford Brown has a 3-1 record. Logan College has 1-2, and Eden Seminary 1-4.

Gloves Program Opens Tonight With 110 Bouts

A program of 110 early round matches, including four lightweight Open and the same number of welterweight Open bouts, will be fought as the nineteenth annual Golden Gloves Tournament gets under way tonight at Kiel Auditorium.

Competition will continue through tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday nights at Kiel. On the fourth night of the tourney—Thursday—the semifinal round bouts will be contested. The program each night will start at 7 o'clock.

Championship finals in the Open, Novice, Sub-Novice and Special Novice divisions will be held on Friday night, Feb. 19, at the Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue.

Eight Open survivors of the tourney will be sent to Chicago to compete in the Western Golden Gloves Tournament. The West's best will take on the Eastern titleholders for the national honors.

Following the weighing-in ceremonies yesterday at Kiel it was announced by tournament officials that 479 fighters were ready for the approaching five nights of competition. During the four nights of battling at Kiel two rings will be used. In past years the early round matches through the semifinals were held in three rings.

Three defending champions, Middleweight Leslie Temple, Featherweight Bob Tenequer of Fort Leonard Wood and Flyweight Bernard Dean, are back for action.

Elmer Mitchell, light-heavyweight who won titles in '48 and '51, will be striving for his third local Golden Gloves crown. Dean has won the flyweight title during the past two years. He represented St. Louis on three Golden Gloves teams that competed in Chicago.

The local and out-of-town championship teams, Rock A.C. and Jackson, Tenn., have returned again with powerful squads. Other strong teams entered are the St. Paul Social Center of East St. Louis and the South Broadway A.C. Gamble, with 35 boys, is one of the largest.

Open division bouts tonight:
Bobby Webb, Jackson, Tenn., vs. Cornelius Fowler, Neighborhood Association, 118-pound.
Aaron Hackett, Jackson, Tenn., vs. William White, Vashon Center, 126-pound.

Two Officials Are Punched by Hawks' Player

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—A fist fight in which two officials were punched by Chicago defense man Larry Zeidel featured Detroit's 5 to 1 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League game last night.

The brawl, in which Zeidel knocked Detroit's Tony Leswick to the ice, came about four minutes before the end of the game.

As a result of the victory, Detroit increased its first place lead to four games over the idle Montreal Canadiens.

The fight between Zeidel and Leswick began in the Chicago zone. Linesmen George Hayes and "Mush" March were struck by the irate Zeidel as they attempted to restrain him. Zeidel broke away twice, finally getting at Leswick to drop him with a right hook before the players could restore order. Leswick and Zeidel each drew five minute major penalties for fighting.

Shortly before the game ended, Gus Mortson of the Hawks and Glen Skov of the Wings mixed it too but they were parted before any real damage occurred and were given minor penalties for fighting at 19:37.

West. Kentucky First in N.I.T.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (UP)—Western Kentucky, undefeated in 19 games, accepted a bid today to the National Invitation Basketball Tournament, which will be played at Madison Square Garden March 6 to 13.

The Hilltoppers from Bowling Green, Ky., with the longest major college winning streak in the nation, joined the field for the N.I.T. for the eighth time, in preference to the N.C.A.A. tournament. Western Kentucky never has won the N.I.T. event.

French Driver Wins Argentine Grand Prix

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 1 (UP)—French driver Maurice Trintignant, with a Ferrari 2.500 car, won the Buenos Aires city Grand Prix yesterday after Mike Hawthorn of England had to abandon the race in the last lap when his victory appeared virtually sure.

Hawthorn was in the first position, with a 19 second lead over Trintignant, who was second, when he made a bad maneuver on a curve and collided with the fence. His car sustained serious damages and he was forced to quit.

Prep Teams to Start Three Basket Meets

Prep basketball teams will get previews of their league opponents, and in some cases second chances, in the four mid-season tournaments this week. The DeAndreis, Webster Groves, and Hancock meets start tonight, while the North County League tourney at Berkeley will begin tomorrow.

St. Charles is anxious for another meeting with Ritenour, and that's what the Pirates of Coach Norm Short will be afforded in the 8 o'clock game in the opening tripleheader at Webster. Ritenour whipped St. Charles, 45-37, in a Suburban League match, but the Pirates figure to do better this time. Ritenour, which has a 7-0 record in the Suburban loop, is seeded No. 1.

Brentwood meets Clayton at 6:30, and Ladue will oppose Wellston in the 9:30 contest.

Another No. 1 seeded club, Beaumont, will see action tonight when the Bluejackets play Laboure in a 9 o'clock game at DeAndreis. DuBourg will meet St. Mary's at 7:30.

In the Hancock tournament, Southwest will play Hillsboro at 7:15, and Eureka takes on Central at 8:45.

Cleveland, which won the big one Saturday night when the Dutchmen defeated McKinley, 47-41, will rest until next Saturday's Public League bill. The Dutchmen, who have won 30 straight over a two-season period, will play Southwest next.

Two School Athletes In Kansas City Are Attacked After Games

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 1 (UP)—Two high school athletes were involved in separate incidents following basketball games here Friday night, it was revealed today.

Jerry Cooke, a forward for the Rockhurst high school team, was attacked by 10 or 15 boys just after he left the field house, his mother, Mrs. Sidney Cooke, said. He suffered a lip laceration which required 10 stitches to close. Mrs. Cooke said she understood the assailants fled when Football Coach Alton Davis arrived at the scene.

The other incident occurred in the Municipal Auditorium, where a group of youths attacked Kent Bryan, Southeast high school center, as he walked along a corridor. They were driven off by other Southeast players who went to Bryan's aid.

School officials said they were investigating, but that they did not know whether the attackers, in either case, were students of any school.

Police said they were not notified of the incidents.

Segura Trims Gonzales In Pro Tennis Match

TEANECK, N.J., Feb. 1 (AP)—Pancho Segura defeated Pancho Gonzales 11-9 yesterday to win the day's finale in Jack Kramer's touring professional tennis tournament.

Segura got to the final with an 8-4 win over Frank Sedgman of Australia in his semifinal match. Gonzales had turned back Don Budge 8-5.

It was Segura's fourth tournament victory. Less than 500 persons turned out to watch the play in Teaneck Armory, the twenty-first stop on the tour.

Bartholomew, Pat Gibson Win Skates Titles

Bartholomew, who appeared hopelessly out of the running Saturday, won the 880 and mile and finished third in the 220 and five mile races to total 100 points, 20 more than Art Longsjo, Fitchburg, Mass., the 1952 runner-up to Bartholomew.

It was the ninth national title for the Minneapolis skater, who will be 34 years old Feb. 10. Gene Sandvig, Minneapolis, the first-day leader, failed to score.

David Kahn, Minneapolis, won the juvenile boys crown and set the only national record during the two-day event when he flashed over the 220-yard course in 20 seconds.

Miss Gibson and Olson were defending champions. Miss Gibson made a clean sweep of her division, winning five races.

Normandy Swimmers To Oppose Central

While waiting for a third chance at their nemesis Cleveland High, on Feb .11, the Normandy swimming team will keep busy this week in a dual match with Central on Wednesday. The Vikings, coached by Wally Lundt, have won nine out of ten dual meets this season, with a one-point loss to Cleveland their only setback in the two-team competition.

The other time that Normandy wound up second in a meet this season was in its own invitational Friday, when Cleveland again edged the Vikings by one point, 36-35. Principia was third with 26 points. Other totals were Beaumont 12, Soldan-Blewett 8, and Western Military 6.

One of the standouts on the Normandy team is Neal Hunstein, who swims the 100- and 200-yard free style, and on the free style relay team. Hunstein has not been beaten this year, and neither has the relay unit of which is is a member. The other relay men are Gregg Smith, Ed Cooper, and Rich Gould.

The day before Normandy held its invitational, the Vikings defeated Principia, 40-35, the first time in history.

Rooney the Big Show as Kutis Drubs Chicago, 5-0, in Cup Soccer

St. Louis Too Fast For Lions

By Dent McSkimming

There probably are a half dozen reasons why Kutis soccer club outscored the Chicago Lions, 5-0, in the national Open Cup match here yesterday but all others are incidental beside the tremendous contribution of Center Forward Bob Rooney.

Chicago's European-trained ployers were no novices in the art of soccer. They controlled the ball well, they made neat passes, they moved in unison, they knew all the rules of tight defense. Still, after 90 minutes of hard soccer they had failed to score a single goal and they allowed the comparative beginners, Kutis, to score five times. How come?

Cutting away the trimming, young Bob Rooney is the answer. He blasted the ball into the Chicago net three times and from his nicely conceived plays Oscar Corona and Jackie Meier scored two other points. The game at Oakland Stadium was watched by 5000 fans.

Tight Defense by Kutis.

The Lions repeatedly brought the ball up to the Kutis penalty area, and frequently enough penetrated to the very goal area, only a few yards from the target, but their truly serious shots were few enough to be counted on one hand. Other St. Louis players, or course, produced this defense so solid the Chicago forwards couldn't get the ball into the goal; it wasn't all Rooney, but with other factors being about equal, the deceptive little center man made Kutis the winner.

Now the St. Louis eleven has reason to hope for a clear-cut triumph in the western division semifinal round of the national title series. A second game will be played with the Lions at Chicago soon, but it would be necessary for that club to win by a margin greater than five goals in order to survive. Taking the teams as they played yesterday at Oakland Stadium it would appear that Kutis should win the Chicago game, too.

Especially prominent in the Kutis success were the halfbacks, Tom Julius, Harry Keough and Bobby Kehoe, the latter an unscheduled starter. Illness kept regular right halfback Russ Murphy at home, under a doctor's care, and gave reserve Bob Kehoe an opportunity to fill the gap. He came off with high honors. Except for the times when he made the mistake of under-estimating the opposing player, Center Half Keough was the Kutis keystone. Times without number the Lions's attack crumbled on Keough's foot, or head. When he shook off his nervousness, young Tom Julius was a chief breaker-upper and a prolific play-maker.

Fullbacks Herman Wecke and Bob Mueth practically eliminated the Lions' wing forwards, Markewycz and Zarytskyj, as scoring threats. Wecke found time and opportunity for many helpful sallies into the attacking zone.

Move to Stop Rooney Fails.

By repeatedly exchanging their positions, Rooney and Rich Meisemann shared the arduous duties of the center forward berth, making the task of Chicago Center Half Roman Andrushko doubly difficult. Through the greater part of the game, the Lions kept a wing halfback, Ivan Tyszcenko, in a deep defensive position, rubbing elbows with Andrushko. Thus, they tried in vain to plug up the alley through the center. They seemed to feel, from the very start, that Rooney was their special danger.

This pulling in of the defense gave Corona more room than he is accustomed to, and he made good use of his chances. Tommy Schultz, with an amazing store of energy, did his best job of the season in ball-hawking. The weakness of inside-forward play which has been characteristic of Kutis's play, was not nearly so damaging this time. It could still be a lot better, but there was vast improvement. Buddy Marshak, more persistent than usual, had an important part in the scoring of the first and third goals and was generally useful.

Rooney's speed led to the first goal, 13 minutes after the start. . . . Marshak's forward ground pass sent Bob winging past Andrushko and when Goalie Nick Kasin dashed out, Rooney zipped the ball into the net.

Protest by Lions Rejected.

Corona's goal, at 30 minutes, brought a protest from Chicago team supporters, who contended the ball went past the post on the wrong side. Referee Tom Erbe was in excellent position to see what happened, and this reporter, with a clear view, saw the ball enter the net legally. . . . Rooney's second score made it 3-0 at halftime.

Gino Gardassanich took over the goal-keeping job for the Lions at the restart, and Kutis used two replacements, Meier and Ted Kirchhoefer. . . . Rooney's third score was most artistic. . . . Going away from the goal, toward his left, and drawing Gardassanich with him, he wheeled and deliberately planted the ball in the opposite corner of the goal. . . . Meier scored five minutes before the end from Rooney's nice pass.

Closest thing to a Chicago point came in the second half when Goalie Bob Burkard was decoyed out of position, leaving an empty goal. Keough saved the situation by sweeping behind Burkard for a spectacular high clearance.

Chicago's manager complained after the game that his boys just didn't shoot often enough. . . . The field was softened by recent thaws but was muddy only in a few spots. . . . Referee Richard Giebner of Chicago and Erbe kept a tight hold on a game that might easily have become a brawl. . . . There were several disagreeable incidents. . . . St. Agatha, champions of the C.Y.C. Juvenile League, defeated Tabacchis, Muny champions, 4-1, in a preliminary game.

Hickey Seeking More Octane In Lineup for Faster Start

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 1—Coach Eddie Hickey was toying with an idea of changing some of his starters as the St. Louis University Billikens prepared to meet Houston U. at basketball tonight at 8 o'clock.

Big Jack Shockley, Capt. Bob Klostermeyer and Sophomore Les Hohl were the possible starting replacements for Jim McLaughlin, Grady Smith and Bob Dubinick.

The coach hoped, of course, to avoid an opening quarter like that at Tulsa Saturday when the Bills fell behind 20-7 before managing to get back in the game which they finally lost 75 to 71.

There's a limit to how often that comeback stuff can be accomplished within 40 minutes, said Hickey, and it would be much better for the Billikens never to dig themselves such a hole in the first place.

Their second conference defeat in four games was bad enough for the Bills but now they must face, in Houston, a team that handed them one of those setbacks. The Cougars did it as the visiting team at St. Louis just 16 days ago and the score was 69-66.

Coach Thinks Bills Can Win.

"I think we can win this one," said Hickey, but he quickly added that it would be another tough game for the Bills. They will have at least the added scoring punch of Dick Boushka, who did not play when the teams last met.

Houston has a 9-9 season mark after a one-point loss to Texas, leading Southwest Conference team, here Saturday night, and the Cougars have a a 3-3 Missouri Valley mark for a percentage of .500 with St. Louis Oklahoma A. & M. (3-0) and Wichita (5-1) are ahead in the Valley race and they clash at Wichita in a big game Thursday.

St. Louis has beaten Wichita but it still must play the Shockers again at Wichita. The Bills have two games to play with the Aggies, and return matches with Detroit and Tulsa in addition to this Houston game.

So, with two teams ahead of them, the Bills aren't given much chance in the Valley race, and their season record of 9 and 7 also has grown worse with three defeats in their last four starts.

Koch Has Knuckle Injury.

Hickey said he would be inclined to restore Shockley to the starting lineup because big Jack demonstrated at Tulsa that he is superior to Jim McLaughlin in getting the ball off the defensive board to start the fast break.

The possible return of Klostermeyer to a starting role in the back line and the added opportunity for Hohl as a starter appeared an experiment to obtain more consistent performance. Smith, who had been shifted to the back line recently, still finds it an unfamiliar position, and Junior Dubinick has slipped into some unsteadiness of operation.

This unsettled state of Billiken affairs was extended further by a painful knuckle injury on the right hand of rebounder Jerry Koch, who didn't have much rebounding luck at Tulsa. Koch's injury was not expected to keep him out of action however.

And, the picture will brighten if the Bills avenge the Houston setback against chunky Jack Mosher, 6-8 Gary Shivers & Co., in the game tonight. St. Louis will return home tomorrow and play next at Kiel Auditorium in another Valley game, with Detroit, Saturday night.

Pariani Scores Four, Simpkins Win Cup Match

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 1—The Simpkins Soccer Club came through with flying colors here yesterday in living up to its reputation as one of the best teams in the United States by defeating the Kansas City Ford-Lapins 8 to 0 at C.Y.C. Stadium in the semifinals of the Western National Amateur Cup play-offs. Simpkins led 5-0 at the half.

Simpkins's victory moved the team into the Western finals which will be held in Chicago.

Gino Pariani, the big offensive power for Simpkins, booted four goals, three of them coming in the first half.

Pariana lost little time in getting the scoring started, his first goal coming with six minutes gone. He soloed twice and three times he sent the ball into the net following a combination of passes.

Ford-Lapins made a hot fight in the second half, checking the Simpkins scoring attempts until Nick Berzillo, inside left, went through at the 22-minute mark to make the score 6-0. Then Pariani hit from the left side of the goal, eight yards out and it was 7-0. Five minutes remained when Gene Miramonti made the final goal.

Major League Clubs Can Solve Radio-TV Problem, Frick Says

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—Commissioner Ford Frick again has gone to bat for the minor leagues in their fight to curtail radio and television broadcasts of major league games in the minors' cities.

In an address last night which sounded the keynote for the thirty-first annual dinner of the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association, Frick told some 1500 guests, "The major league clubs themselves can solve this problem if they will. For each club individually has the right and power to make restrictions in their own contracts, even though they are not permitted to make them in mutual agreement."

Last week, Frick arranged for a special joint meeting of both major leagues at which the minors' president, George Trautman, pointed out that 22 minor leagues, involving 122 cities, have folded since the 1949 high of 59 leagues. He blamed big league broadcasts in the minors' territories for much of the major-minor attendance decline of 26,000,000 in the last five years.

Frick said he could not believe it was the intent of Congress that any law should be so interpreted as to "permit one industry (radio and television) to grow fat on the life-blood of another; or to so interpret federal regulations as to require baseball to eat its own young—as is being done to the minor leagues."

He pledged himself to give every player a "fair break" but warned he would not be stampeded by pressure or pressure groups.

"Mistakes will be made (in my office)," he said. "If too many are made, the solution is easy—the Commissioner should and will be replaced."

In an oblique reference to the pension squabbles, Frick asserted: "I believe in security—if the seeking for security is based on personal contribution and sound method."

Frick's speech followed awards to Brooklyn Catcher Roy Campanella as "Player of the Year," and to Paul Krichell, New York Yankee scout, for "long and meritorious service" to baseball.

Buffalo Increases Its Lead in Hockey Loop

BUFFALO, Feb. 1 (AP)—The league-leading Buffalo Bisons found "breathing room" today in their quest for an American Hockey League pennant.

In a tight two-way fight for the league leadership since the opening of the current season, the Bisons built up an eight-point lead during the weekend by edging the Pittsburgh Hornets, 2-1, on Saturday and the Cleveland Barons, their chief rivals, 3-2, last night.

In another game yesterday, the Syracuse Warriors moved into fourth place, one point in front of the idle Hornets, by defeating the last-place Providence Reds, 5-3.

The trophies were turned over to the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Lloyd A. Sullivan by Father Maxwell. Msgr. Sullivan is the C.Y.C. director.

4 little words with a great big meaning!

Distilled and Bottled by

Look for this phrase on every bottle of straight whiskey you buy. If the word "DISTILLED" is missing and the label reads "bottled by" or "bottled for", then you should ask yourself these frank questions:

- Who distilled this whiskey?
- Where was it made?
- Was the whiskey bought elsewhere by the distillery that bottled it?
- What am I really getting for my money?

Every drop of Glenmore is distilled and bottled by us only! We do not buy whiskey to bottle it under the Glenmore label.

You know what you're getting when you buy Glenmore. You know you are getting a uniform product of one of the oldest, most respected distilleries in Kentucky.

So look for the words, "Distilled and Bottled by" and when you see the name Glenmore as well, you know you're buying the best.

Unbeaten Western Kentucky Faces Crucial Week

Perfect Season Possible

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—With the campaign just about half over, the list of unbeaten college basketball teams was down to five today and by the time tonight's action is over another of the clubs with unsullied records could topple.

Western Kentucky, winner of 19 games—the highest total among the unbeaten teams—faces Bowling Green, a tough customer in any league. If Bowling Green can't handle the assignment, Stetson and Eastern Kentucky will get pot shots at Ed Diddle's boys later in the week.

If the Hilltoppers get past this week, they should go through the remainder of the season without a smirch on their record.

Kentucky, the No. 1 team in the weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters, has three games on tap for the week's action, but no one would dare predict that either Georgia Tech (winless) or Georgia (to be met twice) will offer any more than token resistance to Baron Adolph Rupp's lads.

Duquesne, which has been fighting the Wildcats for the top spot—and which certainly is the best the East has to offer—figures to make Villanova victim No. 18 tonight. Connecticut, the other major unbeaten, will face a stiff test Wednesday night when it goes up against Fordham, the class of the New York schools with a 12-2 record. The Nutmeggers have won 14.

The only other unbeaten is little Norwich, which boasts 12 triumphs.

Unless they cover the basket or make him shoot blindfolded, fabulous Frank Selvy of Furman should break the three-year scoring record of 1888 points held by Kansas's Clyde Lovellette when his crew tackles Clemson tonight.

Selvy warmed up to the task Saturday night by dropping 53 points through the hoop as Furman vanquished The Citadel, 114-72. That brought his average to almost 40 per game, a hefty improvement over his national record of 29.5 last year. Eagle-eyed Frank now has 1879 with 14 games still to go, so they probably could make him play with one hand and he'd still make it.

Seattle owns the longest winning streak in the country after whipping Portland, 80-50, last night for No. 20. Seattle plays two more games this week—tomorrow against Pacific Lutheran and Saturday against Gonzaga.

The conferences, meanwhile, are getting into the important stage with the winners promised N.C.A.A. playoff berths.

Big 10—Indiana still on top with 6-0, but Iowa and Minnesota are close behind with 6-1 and 5-1, respectively.

Southeastern — Louisiana State, believe it or not, shows a 5-0 mark to Kentucky's 4-0. Tulane has a 4-1 record. The Wildcats don't meet either of them during the regular season.

Pacific Coast — California still leads the Southern Division with 4-0 and Oregon State heads the North with 6-2.

Eastern League—Cornell still rates as the favorite with a 5-0 record.

Big Seven—Kansas, the favorite, and Nebraska each have 4-0 after having spent the week at mid-year exams.

Missouri Valley — Oklahoma A. and M., which shows 3-0 — and an overall mark of 17-1—must get by Wichita (5-1) Thursday.

Southwest — Texas is riding high with 4-0.

Skyline—Colorado A. and M. and Wyoming are tied, each with 6-1. Both were defeated by Utah State, incidentally, last week.

St. George Captures C.Y.C. Championship

St. George was in a dragon-slaying mood, but settled for a C.Y.C. senior basketball championship by defeating St. John, 55-49, at St. Mary's High gym. Matt Buneta led St. George with 15 points.

Bill Kraus scored 19 for Cathedral as it defeated St. Barbara, 53-46. The Father Dunne club, paced by Ed Dekay with 21 and John Harrington with 18, downed St. Laboirus, 57-41.

Other C.Y.C. scores:

Hermanns Win.

The Hermanns outbowled Knittig's All-Stars, 3497 to 3243, in a six-man team exhibition at Knittig's. Bill Tucker paced the winners with 258-670, Ed Denkel the losers with 226-599.

Graham, Carol Meyer Win Bowling Titles

Tom Graham's 690 and a 646 count by Carol Meyer, both bowled in the opening rounds of play, stood up under the firing of 400 contestants to give them the singles championships in the third annual Ferguson city handicap bowling tournament over the weekend.

In doubles play, Bill Schaub and Jim Wyatt, moved into first place with a 1302 count. It was the only 1300 series rolled on the Ferguson Bowling Lanes. Phylis Murphy and Ruth O'Leary took the women's doubles honors with 1173. The mixed doubles title went to Ray Tucker and Carol Meyer with a 1294 count.

Winners in each event will receive trophies and cash awards, with the two singles winners receiving an all-expense trip by air to Milwaukee April 15 to see the Braves and the Cardinals open the 1954 baseball season in that city.

The tournament, a benefit for the March of Dimes, drew 120 more contestants than the 1953 event, and will net the drive against polio, approximately $500. This, plus the $187 raised in the annual ball player-radio-TV match, will almost double the total the two events raised last year.

Shurtleff to Provide Test For Concordia

By Harold Flachsbart

Pete Pederson's Concordia Seminary Preachers, facing one of their hardest tests of the season tomorrow night against a 10-4 Shurtleff College squad, are likely to depend on the sharp-shooting of 6-foot-9 Ron Goerss against an Alton team that could start four players 6-5 or taller.

The game at the Concordia field house will be the only meeting of the St. Louis area rivals this season. The Preachers have won the last six contests with Shurtleff but the over-all series dating back to 1930 is only 7-5 in Concordia's favor.

Goerss, after a 28-point outburst in Concordia's 80-62 victory over Culver-Stockton at Canton, Mo., Saturday night, has 215 points in 13 games for a 16.5 average. His field goal shooting average for the season is a classy .403, with 81 buckets in 201 tries, and the only reason Goerss doesn't take more shots is that he frequently hands off from his post position.

Good on Free Throws.

Ron, one of three Concordia veterans who missed last season's play because of preaching assignments outside of St. Louis, has a .675 average on free throws, 52 out of 77. He easily is Concordia's top point-getter, with Augie Lubkeman a distant second with 136 points in 12 games. Lubkeman still was favoring a toe and back injury as the Preachers worked out lightly today.

Harold Rast, one of three freshman spark plugs in a current stretch of five straight Concordia victories, has the best free throw accuracy, 74 per cent from 23 goods on 31 attempts, and also now owns a 7-point-a-game average since moving in December from the jayvees to the varsity squad.

Dave Joeckel (6-4) is another freshman making the grade and recently Brooklyn's Art Doring has seen more regular duty.

"Our team looked good at Culver Stockton," said Coach Pederson, after his squad won its eighth decision in 13 starts. "It was one of our better games. We showed strength under the basket and got those rebounds which sometimes elude us so mysteriously. Our team seems on the beam. The young men are blending nicely into the lineup and our older boys are getting better as the season progresses."

Lost to McKendree.

Shurtleff, defeated previously only by Missouri Valley (twice) and Phillips 66, dropped its first Illinois College Conference game Saturday night to McKendree, 82-75, but still leads that Prairie circuit with a 5-1 mark.

Coach Sherill Hanks' men have rolled up some impressive scores this season, including a 91-78 edge over Central College, which soundly walloped Concordia, 70-58, during the Preachers' December slump.

Most of the Shurtleff personnel is from the immediate Alton-Wood River-Granite City area, including Jim Carey and Don Harmon (6-1 and 6-2) from Granite; Leigh Lawrence (6-5), Ken Lawson (6-6) and Charley Manar (6-6) from Alton High, Dean Calvin from Wood River, but the tallest of them all, Sid Dawson, 6-8, is from Detroit.

Southeastern Adopts Uniform System of Numbering Grid Payers

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 1—The Southeastern Conference adopted a uniform system of numbering football players to aid spectators and officials and decided to follow two other major leagues in using five officials for football games.

The actions were taken as the conference coaches and athletic direct ors wound up a bi-annual scheduling session and football association meeting over the week end, and were announced after the closed conferences.

The fifth official will be a back judge and work on the defensive side of the field near the safety man. He will have jurisdiction on pass interefrence calls and on roughing the punter.

The numbering system will provide a block of 10 numbers for each position. They are: quarterbacks, 10 to 19; halfbacks, 29 to 39; fullbacks, 40 to 49; centers, 50 to 59; guards, 60 to 69; tackles, 70 to 79; and ends 80 to 89.

Cards Only Pro Football Club To Lose Money

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1 (AP)—A little profit can certainly make a professional football team owner a pleasant and harmonious chap.

The National Football League ended its three-day meeting and Commissioner Bert Bell reported "not one bitter argument." The sessions have been rough and tumble affairs for many years.

Chief reason behind the sweetness and brevity of the meeting is the fact that all teams except the Chicago Cardinals made money during the 1953 season.

Even the anticipated war with Canada seems likely now to be limited to individual skirmishes between clubs, instead of a full-scale struggle. Bell said, however, the "war" definitely is on and that some Canadian-bred players already are being contacted.

On the other hand nearly every club was making preparations to "protect" its draft choices, selected Thursday, from raids by Canadian teams.

In other action the owners:

1. Decided to play all games on Sundays whenever possible after first two weeks of the season.

2. Drafted 360 players—only 50 of whom are expected to become pro players. College football's return to single platoons was believed to be the reason for the poor crop.

3. Made no changes in the league rules except to permit a team to demand a dry ball on a rainy and wet field.

4. Gave Bell a new 12-year contract at $30,000 a year.

United States Sleds Fourth, Fifth in Meet

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Feb. 1 (AP)—American bobsledders packed their fourth and fifth place world championship trophies and headed for home today, an internal row buried in defeat and good sportmanship.

But the squabble left in doubt the site of next year's world championship, tentatively scheduled for Lake Placid, N.Y.

Before making a definite decision, the International Bobsled Federation (F.I.B.T.) will await results of an investigation of the abrupt withdrawal from this weekend's racing by veteran driver Stanley Benham of Lake Placid. Benham left after placing third in the two-man championship a week ago.

His walkout caused a furore, but officials and contestants agreed it had no effect on the outcome of the four-man competition.

Veteran driver Fritz Feierabend of Switzerland left no doubt as to who was the best man as he whizzed down the mile long, icy chute in record-shattering times. He took six seconds off the course record in the process and his total time for four-heats of five minutes, 15.94 seconds was six seconds better than the second place German finisher.

Neither offered excuses. They and their crews ended the tough and dangerous competition in a burst of good fellowship at the finish line.

The F.I.B.T. appointed John (Donna) Fox of New York, manager of the United States team, to conduct an investigation into Benham's departure. Fox said his first move would be to ask Elwood Kerr, chairman of the United States bobsled committee, "why Benham had been selacted to drive in competition when he apparently had no intention of doing so."

WATER CALLED WORLD'S WORST GROOMER FOR MEN'S HAIR

Men! Do you use water to help comb your hair? And do you have any of these dry-scalp symptoms: Excessive hair dryness? Scalp scaliness? Dandruff on clothing? Itching scalp? Increased combings?

Then stop using water! Water lacks cleansing action. Water is not a scalp stimulant. Water has no antiseptic action. Water won't mix with the hair's natural oil. Water is drying to the scalp.

Instead, follow these three simple good-grooming rules for hair and scalp hygiene: (1) Shampoo at least once a week to remove dust, dirt, scales, grease and infectious matter. (2) Stimulate your scalp with Jeris Antiseptic Hair Tonic at least once a day. Jeris Antiseptic Hair Tonic is guaranteed absolutely greaseless; was especially formulated for use by men who do not like grease or oil on their hair, and who now use water, but should not. Massage Jeris into your scalp...to improve circulation, relieve constricted blood vessels, loosen scales and dirt. Jeris Antiseptic Hair Tonic contains three scalp stimulants; five antiseptics...kills on contact the germ, Pityrosporum Ovale, which many authorities recognize as the cause of infectious dandruff. (3) Don't borrow comb or brush! Dermatologists tell us that most men who seek treatment for baldness suffer diseases of the scalp; that 9 out of 10 suffer from what they call dandruff. So don't borrow, don't loan a comb or brush. And clean your own every time you shampoo your hair.

For greaseless good grooming, for healthier, handsomer hair, get Jeris Antiseptic Hair Tonic at any drug or toilet goods counter, today, and use it daily instead of water.

2000 Greet DiMaggios On Arrival in Tokyo

TOKYO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Newlyweds Joe DiMaggio and Marilyn Monroe got a red-carpet reception tonight from more than 2000 shoving, confused fans who met their plane from Honolulu.

Baseball and movie fans and flower girls besieged the former New York Yankee great and his actress wife at Haneda Airport.

Lefty O'Doul, manager of the Pacific Coast League San Diego Padres, was with the DiMaggios. One of Japan's biggest baseball idols, O'Doul was lost in the shuffle.

DiMaggio and O'Doul, guests of the Yomiuri newspaper, will coach professional teams in spring training this month.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: The voter shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name or in the square at the left of the name of the candidate for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for a candidate whose name does not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate, and writing below such cancelled name the name of person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots. The voter shall quit and leave the said enclosed place as soon as possible.

POTTER TESTIFIES ON FUTURE OF MISSOURI BASIN

May Be Only One in U.S. With Adequate Water Supply, Army Engineer Chief Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—Brig. Gen. W. E. Potter of the Army Engineers said today the Missouri River basin may become the only basin in the country with an adequate supply of water.

Potter, chief of the Missouri River division of the Army Engineers, told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee that when storage dams are completed, newspapers in the area will be able to carry advertisements stating: "Come to our basin. We have plenty of water."

"And it may be the only basin in the country able to say that," Potter added.

Potter appeared before the subcommittee to support the $73,000.000 in new funds requested by the Army Engineers for work in the Missouri river basin in the coming fiscal year.

Navigation Starting.

He said navigation on the river is "really starting now" and will continue to grow. Because of the dam system, he said, "we are now assured of a steady river" from six to seven feet in depth.

Reviewing the highlights of the last year, Potter said the Montana floods of lasts pring enabled the engineers "for the first time to show the people of the basin one of the greatest benefits" of the dam system being built.

The Fort Peck dam in Montana, he said, was able to capture the flood waters and prevent millions of dollars worth of damage downstream. The dam, he added, was then able to provide a "normal flow" of water down the river throughout the summer.

If it had not been for Fort Peck, Potter stated, the use of the river at St. Louis for navigation and other purposes would have been "seriously interferred with." He said 70 per cent of the water flowing by Kansas City during the summer came from Fort Peck.

He said $73,000,000 approved by the Administration for Army work in the Missouri River basin was about $2,500,000 less than requested by the engineers. He said a $24,600,000 "carryover" of present funds is expected.

Spending Ceiling Imposed.

He said his division had started out this fiscal year with $135,000,000, but the Administration last August imposed a spending ceiling of $111,000,000.

The action of the Administration, part of a government-wide economy drive, prompted Senators Thye (Rep.), Minnesota, and Case (Rep.), South Dakota, to complain that executive branch was "thwarting the will of Congress."

"Congress should not authorize and appropriate money, and then somebody come along and give instructions nullifying the will of Congress," Thye stated.

Potter said that actually it looks now as though his division will exceed the ceiling by about $5,000,000.

Potter also made these points:

1. It would cost about $109,000,000 to bring the Missouri river to the authorized nine-foot depth.

2. He favors some conveyor system to transfer cargoes around the big dams on the river.

3. The Fort Randall dam in South Dakota will start generating power this March, and the Garrison dam in North Dakota in April 1955.

4. Money is included in the budget for plans and land acquisition for dikes around Williston, N. D., but no money for actual construction. The dike project has been bitterly disputed in the area.

BURGLAR CRASHES WINDOW INTO ARMS OF POLICEMEN

A burglar crashed through a plate glass window of a Belleville market into the arms of waiting policemen early today.

The officers, passing the West Main Street Market, 9735 West Main street, in a cruiser at 3 a.m., saw a man inside the store. When they got out to investigate the man came through the plate glass in a wild dash for freedom, and was nabbed. In his flight he dropped two sacks of groceries, which included six pounds of coffee and 11 cartons of cigarettes.

The prisoner was booked as James L. Kovar, unemployed electrician, living in the 9900 block of West Main street. He admitted, police said, that last July he broke into the same market, stealing $315, and also that he had robbed three other stores in the last three years.

TENDS FURNACE AFTER USING CLEANING FLUID, IS BURNED

Paul Lewandowski, 2302A North Market street, suffered severe burns of the face yesterday after using a cleaning fluid to remove paint from his face and hands and then stoking a coal furnace.

Lewandowski told police he was helping a neighbor paint, and that after completing the job he cleaned paint from his hands and face with either benzine or turpentine. When he arrived home, and stirred the furnace fire with a poker, flames enveloped his face. He was taken to City Hospital. He is 46 years old.

PRESIDENT PLANS TO BREAK DOWN 'SECURITY FIRINGS'

being alert and active in weeding out riskful employees.

Actually the 2200 figure justified neither of these conclusions, but because the White House announcement was silent where it needed to be informative, it left the field open for the wildest kind of misstatements.

Leads to Distortion.

The White House announcement provided no facts whatsoever on the number of disloyalty separations. This absence of fact led to speculation, speculation led to distortion and the politicians were soon dealing almost exclusively in distortion.

A political-minded member of the White House staff, shortly after the first 1456 security risks had been dropped, publicly stated that "1456 subversives had been hicked out of the Government."

A political-minded Cabinet member referred to the 2200 separations and in the same breath added that he did not feel favorably inclined toward those "who make treason a preoccupation."

A Communist-hunting Senator stated, as though it were a fact, that "practically all" of the 2200 "were removed because of Communist connections or perversion."

Careless Exaggeration.

The facts do not support or provide any excuse for these exaggerations. They are careless, irresponsible and purposeful. Most who indulge in them are too bright not to know what they are doing.

It is proper that the White House should produce a figure which shows that it is on the ball in weeding undesirables out of the Government.

The real anxiety of the public, however, is not over those who are likely to drink too much or talk indiscreetly; it is over those whose loyalty is not first to the United States.

The President would not, I believe, wish to exaggerate this problem. Because he has now found that the absence of information from the White House has led to exaggeration, he is now preparing to provide the needed information.

The breakdown will not include names and, according to present plans, will not disclose how many employees have been dropped from each department. There is no wish to stigmatize individuals. The breakdown will disclose how many have been separated principally because of doubtful loyalty and it will show that of the total separations, the vast majority in no way bears upon subversion.

PRESIDENT FINDS TOUGH TACTICS WORK IN CONGRESS

complain that it favors the mortgage bankers.

Social Security Extension—In this case, too, the White House will probably get more Democratic than Republican support. As a result, it shouldn't be necessary for Eisenhower to crack political knuckles.

Taxes—New York's cantankerous Congressman Dan Reed has already sounded the battle cry against holding the tax line. This will be one of the session's biggest fights, since tax cuts are always popular in an election year.

However, the Treasury Department is secretly scheming to by-pass Reed with the help of the Senate Finance Committee, which will revamp Reed's tax bills the way Secretary Humphrey wants them.

It will take some presidential whip-cracking, however, to prevent wholesale tax reductions which would plunge the Administration hopelessly into the red.

SENATE VOTES 245 MILLION FOR FARM PRICE AID

Cuts Amount Sought for CCC 495 Million, but Conference Might Restore Sum.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Senate today passed a bill designed to permit Government farm price support operations to continue—but only after cutting it by $495,000,000.

The measure now goes to conference with the House. Senators indicated the full amount sought by the Administration might be restored there if the Agriculture Department can justify its original figures.

As passed by the Senate, the measure reimburses the Commodity Credit Corporation for $245,900,917 of losses it has sustained on farm price supports and other operations. The House bill allowed $741,548,788, the amount asked for by President Eisenhower.

However, even farm state Senators went long with the $495,000,000 cut. They said they did not think CCC had proved its losses were as great as the sum voted by the House.

The Senate accepted the cut unanimously by voice vote after it had been proposed by Senators Williams (Rep.), Delaware, and Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico. Then the bill itself was passed in the same manner.

RUSSIA REPORTS TRADE INCREASED 11 PCT. IN 1953

MOSCOW, Feb. 1 (UP)—The Soviet Union's foreign trade increased by 11 per cent last year, a report of the Council of Ministers showed today.

In the report on state plan fulfillment, the Central Statistical Board said last year's foreign trade was almost four times the pre-war level.

The report also said Soviet industry increased overall production last year by 12 per cent. This represented 101 per cent fulfillment of the state plan. Total volume of production was 45 per cent over 1950.

But the report stated "demands of the population for certain goods is being met inadequately." It added that "efforts of the trading organizations to increase the quality of goods supplied by industry for the population have been weak."

STOCK INDEX OFF AFTER FAILURE OF RISE EFFORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (AP)—The stock market declined today in a routine reaction. Many prices were above their lows at the close.

The decline was not vigorous, nor did it get very far. Losses went to around two points at the most and gains were fractional.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down .4 of a point at 113.2. The industrial and rail stock indices both lost .5 of a point. Utilities closed unchanged from Friday.

The market was three issues broader than Friday's at 1168 issues. There were 482 losers, 398 gainers, and 288 unchanged. There were 58 new 1953-54 highs and 7 new lows.

Trading was at a brisk pace when the market was rising and then quieted down when prices eased. The day's business amounted to an aggregate 1,740,000 shares. That compares with 1,950,000 shares traded Friday when the market was advancing.

Steels and railroads at one time were ahead, but they eventually turned down with the rest of the market. Motors always were weak. No major division of the market was better than steady.

The decline today, in the absence of selling pressures, was regarded as a more or less routine adjustment following the somewhat vigorous advances of last week.

Lower stocks included Chrysler (at a new low), Republic Steel, Santa Fe, Kennecott Copper, Goodrich, Boeing, Union Carbide, General Electric, Radio Corp., and Dow Chemical.

Bethlehem Steel opened on a block of 5000 shares up ⅜ at 58, and almost immediately moved a little higher. It was Friday's most active issue up 3⅛ following an increased dividend declaration.

Union Pacific started with a gain of 1¾ at 120¼ on a block of 2000 shares. It gained 4¾ on Friday, and company officials on Saturday announced that large deposits of titanium and iron had been discovered on its properties.

Last week operations were at 75.6 per cent of capacity and the mills turned out 1,802,000 tons.

Sears Roebuck & Co. announced cuts averaging eight per cent in its prices for automobile batteries. The firm said the reductions, ranging from $1 to $2.50, were made possible by recent drops in costs of lead and antimony, two principal metals used in the manufacture of batteries.

Motor Products Corp. declared a dividend of 25 cents on common, payable Feb. 26 to stock of record Feb. 15. The company paid 50 cents in previous quarters.

COMMODITY PRICES

The green coffee market was steady as roasters watched for possible labor troubles in the port of New York which might tie-up unloading of coffee cargoes. Coffee futures closed .15 to .55 of a cent a pound higher.

Cocoa dropped .30 to .45 of a cent a pound.

AIKEN PREDICTS BUTTER SUPPORT PRICE WILL DROP

Says He Is Certain It Will Go Down to 75 or 80 Per Cent of Parity.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—Senator Aiken (Rep.), Vermont, predicted yesterday that the level of government price support on butter will drop.

The Commodity Credit Corporation now holds about 265,000,000 pounds of butter, and Aiken predicted that Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will lower the price support level, now 67 cents a pound, to 56 or 60 cents.

Dairy products are being supported at 90 per cent of parity, a standard declared by law to be fair to farmers in terms of prices they must pay. The present dairy program expires March 31. Benson must announce before then at what level dairy product prices will be propped during the next year. Unlike basic field crops which the law requires to be supported at 90 per cent of parity, dairy products are supported at a level fixed by the Secretay. Last year, in announcing support at 90 per cent, Benson said he was doing so reluctantly.

Aiken commented: "I'm certain that butter supports must go down to 75 or 80 per cent of parity."

Other Surpluses.

Even this lower level is not expected to solve the problem of government-held surpluses which now total in addition to butter, 260,000,000 pounds of cheese and 425,000,000 pounds of dried milk.

Senator Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, a former Secretary of Agriculture, said a large number of novel proposals are under study for coping with the situation.

Another is to have the Government buy the entire butter output and then re-sell it at a loss so it could be retailed at about 46 cents a pound. This is aimed at meeting the competition of oleomargarine.

Favors Sale to Russia.

Senator Fulbright (Dem.), Arkansas, said yesterday he would favor selling some of the surplus to Russia and other Iron Curtain countries.

He said on an NBC radio-television show, "Youth Wants to Know," that he sees nothing wrong with limited sales to such countries unless there is "evidence that they were expecting to launch an attack" on this country. Unless it is sold or given away, he said, the butter will have to be destroyed.

Demand for Grains Slacken And Prices Ease in All Pits

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Grains went into a slow slide at the start on the Board of Trade today and never were able to reverse their trend. Final prices were around the day's lows. Main features was a general lack of demand. News failed to provide buying stimulus and local traders moved cautiously in view of February's record of price declines in some postwar years.

Soybeans firmed at the start, being the only grain to show any strength at anytime. They soon gave up their gains. Lard did better than grains on trade reports West Germany would buy 10,000,000 lbs. of cash lard this month.

NEW TREASURY ISSUE SELLS AT A PREMIUM

United States Government bonds were generally unchanged to nominally higher. Late in the day, the 30-year 3¼s were up 2-32 at 106½ bid. The new 2½s of 1961, trading for the first time on a "when issued" basis, were at a 12-32 premium (100 12-32 bid).

Greek and Polish dollar bonds were strong. Though in default, Greek 7s jumped 3½ points at 32 and the 6s were up 3 at 30½. Polish 4½s rose 1¼ at 12. German issues were irregular, but German 5s rose a point at 66.

Selected railroads and utilities kept the corporate list on firm footing, though some convertible and income issues declined. Gains of a point were frequent while losses were generally minor fractions.

ORGANIZER SAYS UNIONS LACK FREE SPEECH IN SOUTH

By JOSEPH HANLON
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — A union organizer who works in the South devoted his time before the Senate Labor Committee today to a discussion of "free speech" in that area and said that if it meant freedom to be heard, employers had it and unions didn't.

Boyd Payton, vice president of the CIO Textile Workers and its southern organizing director, described the typical southern mill town as a one industry community where the employer controls the newspaper, radio station, Chamber of Commerce, municipal government and often the clergy.

The union cannot, except in rare instances, rent a school auditorium, or the hall of any church or fraternal order. Often, for a meeting place, it must pitch a tent on vacant land outside of town, he said, or call meetings on vacant lots.

Can't Buy Advertising.

In some towns—he mentioned Anderson, S.C., and Gastonia, N.C.—the union cannot buy advertising space in local papers, and radio time became available only on a restricted basis after an appeal to the Federal Communications Commission.

None of these handicaps to communication bother the employer in presenting his arguments, Payton said.

He recommended that the proposed amendment to extend "free speech" to employers in employe representation cases be dropped and that instead an amendment should forbid employers to hold "captive audience" meetings during working hours; that statements of employers regarding union representation should be taken in the context of his whole behavior and the atmosphere in the community in determining whether an unfair labor practice has been committed, and that, applying the same test of context, the NLRB be permitted to find that individuals and groups outside the plant may be regarded as agents of the employer.

Other Witnesses.

Eric Peterson, general secretary of the International Association of Machinists, in testifying about the "free speech" amendment, said that a representation election was not a contest between an employer and his employes, but a proceeding to determine among employes who should be their representative.

For this reason, he said, to permit an employer to assert to his employes his preference is to permit him to influence them in something that ought not concern him. The Act should be amended to make clear, Peterson said, that "free speech" does not apply in representation cases.

Don Mahon, president of the National Brotherhood of Packing House Workers, an independent union, and executive secretary of the National Independent Union Council, told the committee some provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act and some of the proposed amendments made it difficult for his organization to maintain its independent status.

A continuation of such restrictions, he said, would eventually drive even the most rugged independent into "one big union."

Spokesman for Publishers.

Elisha Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in his testimony supported most of the proposals of President Eisenhower, including the controversial government-supervised strike vote, which, for practical purposes, is now a dead issue.

Hanson went on to remind the committee that the President had suggested it study the law with a view toward further amendment to implement its objectives and improve its administration.

In this connection he suggested amendment to take initial jurisidiction away from the National Labor Relations Board and transfer it to the United States district courts, with responsibility for prosecutions in the Department of Justice.

Also, he said, the courts, after issuing injunctions, should be empowered to preserve the integrity of their decrees by acting on their own motion. At present the courts can act in this regard only when requested to do so by the NLRB and the board's record in the matter, Hanson said, "is a sorry one."

Hanson suggested also rewriting the anti-featherbedding section of the act which has been, in practice, ineffective. The law should make it an unfair labor practice, he said, for any union to cause or attempt to cause an employer to pay for services not performed or to be performed, not relevant or useful, and whether or not the union objective is employment of its members.

Delay Suggested.

The committee received from Richard J. Gray, president of the AFL building and construction trades department, a letter suggesting that it defer consideration of amendments relating to pre-hire contracts and secondary boycotts until after it gets President Eisenhower's suggestions on the matter of federal and state jurisdiction.

Until these suggestions are received, Gray said, it would be impossible to consider intelligently the amendments relating to pre-hire contracts and secondary boycotts without knowing whether these are to be matters for federal or state regulation.

The repairman said: "Your trouble was too much suds ...that's why we prescribe all" all is the wonderful new controlled suds detergent created especially for automatic washers. It lets your machine work more efficiently. It guarantees you cleaner, brighter clothes.

FOR SEVERAL YEARS NOW, women who own automatic washers have been discovering that their clothes come out cleaner and fresher if they don't overload the machine with thick, heavy suds.

This fact is well known to the men who make and service automatic washers. It is the reason they prescribe all for their machines. all's controlled suds give you the cleanest, sweetest, softest-feeling wash you've ever had.

Half-clean vs. all-clean

Don't misunderstand. Any good detergent will get the surface dirt out of your clothes most of the time.

But all floats out every particle of dirt and soil, and rinses away every last bit of suds film. There's nothing in the world as good as all. Every test we have ever made proves it. Many leading home economists agree.

Why all does a better job

The high collar of suds that looks so pretty in your dishpan can make trouble in your automatic washer. Billows of suds can run over and clog the mechanism. Heavy suds can smother washing action, and you know how hard it is to rinse clinging, sticky suds out of your clothes and your machine.

That's why all was created. all makes almost no suds. all's controlled suds guarantee the freest possible sloshing action and the cleanest possible rinsing—every time you switch on your machine.

Controlled suds mean a cleaner wash

all's controlled suds let your clothes swish around freely—just the way the men who built your machine meant them to. This freer movement gets clothes cleaner.

No hard-to-rinse-out suds

Because a modern automatic washer does not have a wringer to squeeze the suds out of clothes, it is hard for it to handle thick, heavy suds. all's controlled suds rinse away instantly and completely. When you take your clothes out of your machine there is no suds deposit left to make a cloudy film or to irritate tender skins. (This is especially important if there's a baby in your family.)

Saves money—saves bother

Every ounce of pure, fragrant all works for you down in the wash water—where your clothes are sloshing around. all doesn't foam into a useless top-frosting of suds.

And all is all you need for the cleanest wash in the world. all contains water softener and whitener in just the right amount. It means you get the kind of bright, sweet wash your dealer promised you when he sold you your machine.

Try all at our risk

Use all the very next time you wash. It's wonderful for the grimiest work and play clothes, for dainty lingerie, for baby's diapers. It's highly and unconditionally recommended for the new miracle fabrics like acrilan, dynel, orlon and nylon.

If all isn't the finest detergent you've ever used, your dealer has been instructed to refund your money.

Read Mrs. Hambric's letter

It is printed here exactly as she wrote it—not a word has been changed:

"I have never written a letter on this order before but I want you to know what I think about all, and I think you would like to know.

"I have used practically all of the soap powders and the detergents on the market and have found them all about the same until I started using all. After the first washing in all my clothes were so much whiter and cleaner looking.

"My niece, who was visiting me at the time, asked me what kind of bleach I used and I told her that I did not use any. She could not understand why my sheets were so white, so I told her and of course she said she would try all in her machine.

"This is the truth and I just wanted you to know."

Mrs. H. H. Hambric lives at 72 Main St., Warwick, Virginia
Her letter was dated December 7, 1953.

'Ethel and Albert' An Honest Portrayal

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.

ONE of the earliest of the husband-and-wife domestic comedies, "Ethel and Albert," is also one of the very few in which the participants are not married—at least not to each other.

JOHN CROSBY

For some reason, this seems to add authority and an extra measure of honesty to the portrayal of Peg Lynch and Alan Bunce as a woman and man engaged in the precarious business of trying to live together. After all, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson and Lucy and Desi Arnaz and the rest of them really have to live together so that the domestic entanglements on the stage had better not resemble the real ones at home if peace is to be maintained.

MISS LYNCH AND BUNCE have no such worries. They can separate right after the show and go their respective ways. I don't know whether this has anything to do with it or not but the "Ethel and Albert" program frequently gets closer to the fundamental differences between men and women than the others. Ethel and Albert are masters at non-sequitur conversation. They start out bravely on a topic of conversation, then, he pursuing his masculine train of thought and she her feminine one, wind up talking about entirely different things.

Miss Lynch, who writes the show, has a great flair for this sort of male-female conversation which struggles for a common point of view and never quite achieves it. Ethel and Albert are a very human couple who, in spite of themselves, live in quite different worlds which might be described as His and Hers.

WHERE THE STRUGGLE between the sexes in shows like "I Love Lucy" is open warfare—Lucy wants a career, Desi tries to thwart her—the collisions between Ethel and Albert are covert and only dimly understood by the man and wife. It's a small art but a very true one. In addition to this gift, Miss Lynch introduces some perfectly wonderful minor characters from time to time—a garrulous, pride-filled TV repair man, a worldly wise, cynical detective, a chatty frump of a neighbor.

ON THE SUBJECT of wife portrayals, one of the most convincing and easily the most deadly at the moment is that of Audrey Meadows as Jackie Gleason's other half in their Honeymooners sketch. When Gleason is raging around her, trying to win her over to one of his harebrained schemes, she levels her eyelashes at him like bayonets and transfixes him with a deadpan silent start of utterly merciless dissent. Without uttering a word, she radiates scorn, condescension and total disapproval. It's a really great picture of a wife saying "No" without opening her mouth and it must make a lot of husbands distinctly uncomfortable.

INCIDENTALLY, THERE SEEMS to be a small trend among the comedians, conceivably spurred by the success of the Berle format. More and more they are experimenting with the single, solid story line where in the past the shows might have contained two or three different sketches. Red Buttons is doing it with his half hour show. Gleason is doing it with his hour show. Martha Raye is doing it, too.

In the beginning all the comics were doing old night club or vaudeville routines. Then came the sketches which at their worst were burlesque turns and at their best revue sketches. Now, the play is the thing and the comedians are all turning into actors.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

DEAN McCAW, of Drake University's Divinity School, tells of the college instructor who passed away, and went to his just reward in Heaven. He was mighty happy there, too, until one morning when he saw an enormous house being completed, with a host of winged servants installed, and St. Peter himself, in frock coat and homberg, heading a reception committee. When the instructor learned that all these goings-on were to welcome the stuffed shirt who, down on earth, had been the president of his university, he really blew his top. "I thought that in Heaven at least," he protested to St. Peter, "all the men were created really equal. Now look at the fuss you're kicking up for one new arrival." "Hold your horses!" counselled St. Peter. "I know we're going a bit overboard with these arrangements, but you'll have to make allowances. You see, this is the very first college president we've ever had in Heaven!"

WHEN THE CITY SLICKER'S foreign racing car got stuck in the mud, and ran out of gas in the bargain, Ebeneazer hitched his mule to it and after two hours' heaving and shoving under the broiling August sun, extricated the car and hauled it four miles to the nearest garage. When Eb returned, his wife remarked, "I hope you charged him good for all that work." "Two dollars," said Eb complacently. "Two dollars!" screamed his wife. "I swear, Pa, sometimes I wish you'd do the pullin' and let that mule handle the executive end of your business."

The mystery which surrounds a typical Dog of the Week is thicker than ever at the Humane Society Shelter this week, for almost nothing is known about the current top dog. Giving Advice

By Billy Rose

NEW YORK.

IT was, I think, Oscar Wilde who said that "all advice is bad, but the worst advice of all is good advice." I couldn't agree more. A few years back, an actor I know stopped in to see me to get my advice on breaking up with his wife. "I'm thinking of divorcing Martha and marrying Sherry Fleecon," he said. "What do you think?"

BILLY ROSE

Sherry was a weather-beaten ingenue who had worked in one of my musical shows, and the backstage stories about her were numerous. I phrased my answer as tactfully as possible. "You and Sherry are both in show business," I said. "Two careers in one family, as you know, seldom work out. Besides Martha is a fine girl. I think you ought to wait a while before you make up your mind."

"Thanks, pal," said my visitor.

A FEW MONTHS LATER, he divorced his wife, and the following week I was invited to his wedding to Sherry. At the reception, the bride gave me the frosty eye. "When you have eaten a slice of my wedding cake," she said, "you might try eating your words."

Not long after, I got a letter from Hollywood where the actor had wangled himself a short-term contract with Metro. "Sherry and I are all washed up," it read. "You pitched me a real curve when you advised me to marry her."

I wired him: "Consult a memory expert. Anyway, congratulations on getting that tomato out of your life."

Next morning I got an answering wire: "Sherry and I have reconciled. We think your telegram in exceedingly bad taste. Why, for a change, don't you mind your own business?"

THAT FALL, the actor drove up to see me at my place in the country.

"Sherry threw me over for a cameraman at Paramount and is suing me for divorce," he said. "If you want to make up for what you did, you can advise me as to whether I. . . ."

"Ask me for money," I yelped. "Ask me for my pants. But please, I beg you, don't ask me for advice."

"Stop taking it so big," said the actor. "Lately I've been thinking a lot about Martha, and I wonder if you'd mind telling her I'm in town and would like to see her. You owe me at least that much."

SO, ME AND MY BIG MOUTH, we passed the news along to Martha.

"Do you think I ought to remarry him?" she asked.

"No speak English," I said.

"Pretty, pretty please," said Martha.

"Okay," I said, "but remember you asked for it. My advice is, don't. Right now, you represent fireside and carpet slippers to your ex, but give him a year of the old routine and you'll be back in the ashcan."

AS MIGHT BE EXPECTED, as soon as the actor got his divorce, Martha remarried him. Yesterday I got a letter from her.

"Am leaving for Reno tonight," it read. "I was doing fine until you sicked that hambo on me. Why do you insist on sticking your nose into other people's business?"

Then came the crusher: "Considering what happened to your own marriage, you're a fine one to give advice!"

Road to Marriage

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

IF you are an unmarried young woman and have no desire to marry, this column is not for you. If you do want to marry, you should admit it frankly to yourself and go to work to achieve that purpose, just as you would prepare to be a librarian or a beautician or get ready to fill any other position that required some skilled training.

The chances are you can do this where you are now just as well as by moving to some other city or far-away country. I'm continually receiving letters from young women asking for information as to the part of this country in which they will find the largest number of unmarried men. By and large one would reply, "Go West," for there is a tendency for the number of bachelors to increase as one proceeds from the Atlantic to the Pacific. But what you need is mainly an understanding of how to meet people—here, there or anywhere.

LET'S ASK OURSELVES what you should do, right here at home.

1. Join clubs and organizations that include both sexes. Maybe you belong to several women's clubs. Quit. Move over into the kind that contain both sexes.

2. Go to church. Some churches and young people's societies have little to offer you in this respect, although much in other respects; but some churches have a large group of the kind of young people you want to know. Find out.

3. Become proficient in two or three sports or recreations. If you go to a skating rink alone, and are a good skater, young men will pay attention to you. If you are an obvious dub, they may not want to bother. Learn how to dance well, swim well and play a few games such as tennis.

4. Travel alone. Don't drag a girl friend along with you—if you do, young men will find it much more difficult to get acquainted with you.

5. BE FEMININE. If you don't know whether you are feminine or not, write me in care of the Post-Dispatch and ask for a copy of my 20-page booklet called "This Way to Marriage." (Be sure to inclose a dime and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

6. Don't get yourself tied up with some no-count fellow; but on the other hand don't hesitate to accept an invitation from any decent young man, even though you know you would never want to marry him. You may meet others if you go out with him. You won't meet others if you stay home. And you need practice in getting along with men, anyhow. So, keep in circulation.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A MAN writes me as follows: "I lost my wife a year and a half ago and have asked a widow, who lost her husband eight months ago, to marry me. She is demurring on the grounds that it is not proper to remarry before a year. She lives alone and works for a living. I am well able to take care of her and give her a good home and am very much in need of companionship. There is no real reason to delay our marriage except for her hesitancy on account of convention. If you say it is all right, I am sure she will agree to marry me without delay."

If you are both held in esteem in your community, I am sure that sympathy with your situations would counteract criticism of your failure to pay strict attention to the completion of the full year.

Try Humor For Life's Rough Spots

By Glen Shepherd, M.D.

"A MERRY heart doeth good like a medicine," as it is phrased in the Bible.

For instance, in Sarah Bernhardt's later years after she retired from the stage, she had to live in a walk-up apartment in Paris. An admirer who came to visit her, out of breath after climbing the steps, asked, "Really, Sarah, must you live up so high?"

"Yes," smiled the actress, "You see, it's the only way now I can make the hearts of men beat faster."

A sense of humor greases life's rough spots and lubricates your own feelings.

HUMOR is that springy resilience that, like well-tempered steel, shows a tempered spirit, especially in adversity. One of the charms of children is their sprightly good humor.

That most children have it means that whatever a sense of humor is, it need not be developed (which would be like sprouting a third eye) but simply permitted to shine forth. But somehow, especially in times like these, our sense of humor corrodes as we grow up—at least in some people.

The sense of humor and an active curiosity used to be the target against which some school teachers aimed. There was little room for relaxation and humor in their classrooms.

I HOPE this isn't true anywhere these days because some children wilt very quickly under such an influence. They lose their spontaneity, good humor and even curiosity. They become good little scholars but mighty unhappy and maladjusted people. A few are singularly unaffected by the withering influence of such teachers. Or perhaps the adults around them simply weren't grim enough to ruin the temper of their spirit.

Many teachers discover that amusement and entertainment are compatible with learning. Though this chiefly applies to primary instruction, it's useful for even college and medical school professors to realize. The late beloved Dr. Logan Clendening proved this in his books and in his medical school classes. He once remarked to me that he'd do anything in the classroom to capture the students' interest and attention. "You can't teach them while they're bored or asleep," he said. And his classes were often uproarious. Though he insisted on sound scholarship and reasoning, he didn't believe that inflexible grim dignity was necessary to these.

TENSE PEOPLE who feel insecure seem to have frozen senses of humor. This may be a key to learning more about ourselves. A wholesome spontaneous sense of humor suggests good mental health.

Relaxed people enjoy more good humor. Oddly enough, this works both ways. If you can see the funny side and enjoy a good laugh, you relax. And as soon as you relax, you have a richer sense of humor.

Perhaps it's the relaxing effect of humor that makes you feel better.

In any case, relaxing a bit each day, cultivating good humor and having fun is worthwhile for its own sake. We are endowed with wits to exist by and with wit to make existence tolerable. Or, as Mary Poole said, "He who laughs, lasts."

Your hand won't get tired nearly as quickly if you grasp a paint brush lightly rather than with a tight grip. As a matter of fact, this method is better for the paint too.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

NO, according to Karen Horney, one of the really scientific Freudians, who says persons who do not love themselves are unable to love others. Another psychologist maintains that love of ourselves and love of others go hand in hand. Psychologist Emanuel Berger has shown that a good opinion of yourself indicates you have a good opinion of others. Egotists have poor opinions of themselves.

Answer to Question 2.

Not often, says social worker Ninna Field, who writes that not only the doctor, but some other competent person should explain sympathetically all angles, without trying to sell the idea. The final decision must always be the patient's. This will put him on his own and help his morale.

Answer to Question 3.

Only partly. Sociologist Alfred Clarke found that among 281 couples in Columbus, O., more than half had lived within 16 blocks of each other. However, he concluded their marriages were due largely, not to nearness, but to the fact that people of the same races, education, religion, occupation and social background, tend to flock together. Like tends to marry like.

Secrets of Charm

'Span Season' Fashions

PICK UP YOUR MID-WINTER SPIRITS WITH A NEW COSTUME FROM THE CURRENT YEAR-ROUND STYLES!

WITH no vacation in sight, must you pass up one of the most enchanting aspects of a trip to tropical playgrounds—the acquisition of an exciting new addition to your wardrobe? Definitely not!

The most wearable of all clothes are found at this season of the year. Fall and winter offerings are either too hot looking or actually too warm for wear in late spring or summer. But judiciously chosen, a dress or coat selected now can be worn year 'round!

Truly "span season," for instance, are the fitted jacket costumes, dresses for town and travel, the suits, redingotes and coat-dress styles in slubbed silks, silk surah, faille, slubbed shantung and paper-thin taffetas.

THESE ARE the simply-styled fashions, free of gew-gaws and the glitter decorations that characterize clothes purchased in late fall or during the pre-holiday season. This ultra simplicity adds up to year-round value, as the styles may be combined equally well with wintry accessories or the pastels and whites of spring and summer.

Chosen in black or navy, your costume gains in timeless, seasonless wearability, multiplying its usefulness in your wardrobe. Furthermore, according to the dressiness or casualness of the accessories, such costumes can be given a daytime or cocktail-hour look, or one that is right for an informal evening.

NOW IS THE TIME to find the between-season coat that can be worn both in spring and in fall and that makes an excellent travel topper for around the clock, over sports or city clothes and even over silks in the evening.

An example of this type is the pale blue or honey-colored fleecy coat with a spreading cape collar and a narrow, wrapped silhouette.

If it's something new that you're hankering for, choose it with an eye to spring and if it's also right for wearing in a wintry scene at the moment, you can be sure that you have one of the biggest values of fashion—a year-round addition to your wardrobe.

Carrots Are Tasty Raw Or Cooked

By Edith M. Barber

FOOD prejudices are hard to conquer. The younger generation is far less likely than its elders to be conditioned against specific foods. Most young people today started out early in life with strained vegetables and take the flavor for granted.

This is illustrated by the popularity of carrots. It is usually an older person who scorns them. Probably the reason for this is that "winter" carrots, stored in the fall, had a tougher texture and stronger flavor than the bunched young carrots now available throughout the year.

We have learned to like them as a relish in raw form, to use them in salad, and to cook them just a short time to serve as a "green" vegetable. For the sake of both color and flavor, we often garnish other vegetables with grated raw carrots or combine cooked diced carrots with celery, onions, cabbage or cauliflower.

Sauteed Carrots.

Cook small whole carrots, or strips of large carrots, in small amount of boiling water, until tender. Drench with cold water and rub off skin. Dip in fine crumbs, beaten egg, and crumbs again. Saute in small amount of butter or other shortening, adding more as needed.

Carrot Souffle.

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, one-quarter cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 cup sieved cooked carrots, 1 small onion, finely minced, one tablespoon lemon juice, four egg yolks, four egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Melt butter or margarine. Stir in flour and salt. Add milk gradually and stir over low heat gradually until sauce thickens. Add carrots, onion and lemon juice. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time. Fold mixture into beaten egg whites. Turn into greased 1½ quart casserole and bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 25 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Fix It Yourself

Smelly Heating Plant.

WE know of some people who would rather be cold than turn on a radiator because just as soon as the radiator becomes warm it gives off an unpleasant odor which is a lot harder to take than the cold.

Many radiators will smell when they get hot because the outside is dirty. When the thin deposit of dust on a radiator becomes warm it not only may smell but it will float up and stain the finish on the wall in back of the radiator. A good cleaning with a long handle radiator brush is often all the remedy required.

Steam radiators may give off an unpleasant odor because the water in the boiler is dirty and contains oil. Many boilers are given a coat of oil on the inside when they leave the factory and it may take some time before it disappears completely.

What you can do, of course, is to let the fire go out, and then put some boiler cleaner compound into the boiler. This is left in the boiler for a week or so and then the boiler is drained and flushed out. After it has been refilled you shouldn't have any more trouble.

Sometimes the origin of the smell is the radiator itself and this, like the boiler, requires a good cleaning. Disconnect the radiator and fill it with a solution of hot water and washing soap. Sort of wiggle the radiator around a bit, pour out the solution and then rinse with fresh warm water.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

MY father died when we were all quite small and my mother had a hard time rearing us. Later, my brothers and sisters left town, leaving me to take care of my mother. This I have done faithfully for 35 years. During those years, I have had chances to marry but Mother squashed all my romances, saying my "duty" was to take care of her. Now I am 50 and have a chance to marry a respectable widower, a substantial business man who loves me very much. But again Mother has put her foot down. We are willing to have her live with us but she declares an "in-law" in the house will never work out. But where does that leave me? I feel I have a right to some happiness and a life of my own. Mother is still hale and hearty. She has no outside interests, but remains inside her own home. She is a precise and exquisite housekeeper and tries to make it up to me by having everything at home just perfect. But that doesn't satisfy me. I am in despair. What shall I do? Am I selfish? E.G.

Certainly not. You have every right in the world to your own happiness and your own life and if this man is of good character and you care for each other, I think you would be making a serious mistake to refuse to marry. This doesn't mean you have to cast your mother out of your life or walk out of hers. She may be hurt if you leave, yes. But she has no right to demand that you sacrifice any chance for happiness just to remain with her. Make sure she is not being neglected. If she needs a companion, be sure someone is with her. See her as often as you can. Make her feel she is an important part of your life. But if you want to marry this man and feel it is right, then my advice is to go ahead.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE BEEN MARRIED 10 years and have tried, for the children's sake, to keep our home together. But Martha, how can a woman love and respect her husband when he stares at and flirts with any woman who will look at him. He also has lied to me about other women. If I complain of being ill, he says I am lazy but I can't get him to do anything around the house. Don't you think it would be better for me to leave him now while I am still young enough to work and start over again? DOT.

Divorce so frequently creates as many problems as it eliminates. You have tried for the children's sake to keep your home together. Isn't it important for their sakes to keep on trying? I don't say the failure of your marriage is your fault, but are you certain you have done everything in your power to make it succeed? As long as there is a chance, make the best of it.

Hospitality Behind the Iron Curtain

Bucharest 'All Dressed Up' for Youth Festival Delegates, but Obsession With Security Remains

By Kenneth Macaulay

Second installment of a report by a British newspaper man about life behind the Iron Curtain. The author traveled 12,000 miles through Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria.

MANY stories were told to me of refugees trying to get from Hungary to the West across the minefields on the frontier. The recognized way is to approach with pockets full of stones about the size of croquet balls. These are hurled on to the ground along the path chosen.

Sometimes the escaping refugee is lucky and aims his stones well. The mine in his path goes off and he is unharmed. Hospitals and prisons in the area, I was told, are full of people who were unlucky. They either ran out of stones before they were clear of the minefield or they touched off the hidden explosive as they crept through.

But the night I reached the frontier from the West there were no explosions. On the contrary, friendly reception committees were waiting and loudspeakers were playing lively airs.

This hospitality was laid on because I was with a party of delegates going through Hungary to Bucharest, Romania's capital, for the Fourth World Youth Festival. Everything was being done to let us know that any preconceived ideas we may have had about austerity behind the Iron Curtain were all wrong.

Customs formalities? Forget about them. Have some more wine. Try the cherry brandy.

Passports? Pouf! A mere formality. Another sandwich, sir—or may I call you comrade?

Bucharest was "all dressed up" for our arrival. Busses and cars were imported from Hungary, Poland, and Czechoslovakia to make up for the poverty of local transport. No effort was spared to roll out the barrel.

ONE afternoon I was taken to see one of Bucharest's model suburbs, decorated with flags and banners of baby blue emblazoned with Picasso doves. I saw what there was to see, including the State-owned grocery dry goods store that serves the district.

As we were coming out of the store, I noticed a battered red book hanging on a nail with a pencil on a piece of string beside it. My interpreter said it was the "complaints book." I asked him to read me one or two specimens. He did. They went something like this:

"I came into this shop a few minutes before it closed and the Tovaras (Comrade) Superintendent refused to keep open so that I could buy all the things I wanted. Is this right in a People's Democracy?"

Fury and frustration had apparently made the woman's signature illegible. The name of the next complainant is also unimportant but it just goes to show that women are the same no matter on which side of the Iron Curtain they go shopping:

"I have come into this shop for the past three or four days to choose some material for a frock. I see a pattern I like, but I cannot decide whether the material is better than in another shop.

"The Tovaras Superintendent tells me today that I am wasting his time by making him take the material down from the shelves but never buying. He now refuses to serve me at all. Is this right in a People's Democracy?"

Madam, it is not right in anybody's democracy and I hope the department which deals with complaints about communal shops sent you an apology.

I had my interpreter search the book to see if anyone had complained about the rations not being issued for the month of July. It seemed that no one had. Citizens of Bucharest got July and August rations together, the idea being, so one housewife told me, that a double distribution would prevent queues at the food shops when the Youth Festival delegates came to town. This would not look well at all with 30,000 foreign visitors.

But I should like to take you back to that State shop for a moment because the pricing of goods there demonstrates the design for living that has been worked out for a Communist society.

In the windows on the left of the front door food and clothing "on the ration" were displayed. The windows on the right contained exactly the same goods but "off the ration," and at correspondingly higher prices.

A points system allows scarce commodities like soap and clothing to be bought at the fixed price. When the points are exhausted—and the number each person gets varies with his value to the state as a worker—the free market is open to all who have the money to spare.

The sugar ration, for instance, is one pound, 10 ounces, a month at the controlled price of about 40 cents a pound. But it can be bought on the "free" market at $1.40 to $2 a pound.

Well, then, who are the rich? In Czechoslovakia a doctor gets the average working-man's wage of about $110 a month. But an airline pilot can earn as much as $700 a month on a miles-flown basis.

THE official explanation is that a doctor is "free to earn extra" by taking in private patients after his eight hour day at the state clinic is done. Some of them do this.

One doctor I met more than doubles his income by playing the piano in a dance band. But he must find it hard going, playing until four o'clock in the morning before starting the day's work.

The trouble with being a doctor in a satellite country is that he does not produce anything that the state can sell or exchange. It is also unfortunate that you cannot become a Stakhanovite heart specialist.

Prague is as proud of its profile as any film star. For Czechoslovakia's capital has graceful, medieval spires, bastion gateways and, on the castle hill, the beautiful Cathedral of St. Vitus with Maria Theresa's palace beyond.

I was taken for a peep at this palace, and my companion on this occasion was not a Czech. He pointed out one of the sights that no local guide would dare to show a visitor—the window from which the despairing Jan Masaryk jumped to his death in February, 1948, after the Communist coup d'etat.

The great cobbled square before the palace is not a good place to linger, because it's the official residence of President Antonin Zapotocky. The police make pedestrians walk well on the other side and keep moving.

IT IS difficult to get a good look at any official residence or government building anywhere behind the Iron Curtain. For example, no one is allowed to use the pavement opposite the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Bucharest, where several streets are permanently closed to all traffic except official cars.

This obsession with security is, I suppose, copied from Russian practice. It has now reached the point where the Great Ones seem to be permanently withdrawn from public gaze and recognition.

It was while I was in Prague that I discovered, by a chance encounter with a Bulgarian diplomat, that his Government had authorized a visa for Sofia, for me. It was the first one granted to a Western newspaper man in five years.

The change of scene was restful as well as interesting. While Sofia is in no way as architecturally distinguished as Prague, the Bulgarian capital has the charm of quietude and its people the gift of laughter. This the Czechs lack. I only heard them laugh right out loud once. That was when the leader of the band at the Hotel Moskva in Gottwaldov sang "Three Little Fishes Swam Over the Dam."

Sofia seems to have only 20 taxicabs to serve its population of 600,000 people, and there are not many more privately owned cars. On a warm evening the whole town seems to turn out to promenade up and down the Boulevard Ruski, which is laid in a most attractive style with warm, orange-colored bricks.

The promenading starts at the park at the far end of the boulevard, the men arm in arm, the girls hand in hand. They fill the road completely, right up as far as the stark white mausoleum where Georgi Dimitrov, whom Goering accused of firing the Reichstag, lies embalmed behind bronze revolving doors and green marble. A fierce red light beats perpetually down on the waxen face and drooping mustache.

If West had been a soothsayer he might have hit upon the high diamond opening that would have defeated the four-spade contract, but, only human, West decided to lead from his doubleton club in the desperate hope of a ruff.

Dummy's 10 covered West's nine and South captured East's queen. Three rounds of trumps were then taken, after which South cashed the two good clubs in dummy, discarding a diamond.

Now the heart king was led. East won and had two safe exit plays, a heart or a club. He chose the latter. South ruffed and now had to stake everything on the position of the diamond ace. When East captured the king, the contract was doomed.

It was South's timing of the play that cost him the contract. After drawing trumps he should have knocked out the heart ace before cashing his club tricks. East could safely exit at this point with a heart or a club, but in either case South could strip the hearts from the North and South hands, cash dummy's two club tricks, discarding a diamond, and then lead the fourth club, giving East the trick and discarding another diamond. Then let East try to "get out!"

How It Started

TINFOIL AND "FOILING THE VILLAIN"

THE "foil" in tinfoil and "foil" in the sense of to defeat are two quite different words.

The first "foil" goes back to the Latin "folium," and signifies, primarily, a leaf. From this derivation we have as well "folio," alluding to a book made from the folded leaf and such extensions as tinfoil and gold foil.

Perhaps the most interesting end-product here is the "foil" in popular usage in reference to flattering contrasts. They say the blonde is a good "foil" to the brunette! And this comes to us by way of an old trick of jewelers, who would enhance the brilliance of stones on display by showing them against a leaf or thin sheet of metal specially treated for this purpose.

"Foiling the villain" grows from another tree. This "foil" signifies essentially to trample under foot. The Latin "fullo" at its root supplies numerous words in which some sort of "treading" is inherent. So, from treading or trampling came the idea of defeating, in the sense of frustrating or outwitting, which is so well exemplified in that lovely phrase "foiling the villain"! It remains to point to another end-product of this term in the "foil" which is the weapon used in fencing.

Runs and sags in enamel can often be softened up sufficiently so that they can be brushed smooth if they are first brushed with a little turpentine.

Pictures in the Kitchen

By Elizabeth Hillyer

PICTURES on the wall do so much for other rooms—why not the kitchen? As kitchens borrow comfort and color scheme ideas from the living room, wall decorations are bound to change, too.

Old utensils in interesting shapes are new favorite subjects, and here this type of picture takes a twin which silhouettes old weathervanes. These two are printed on linen. The deep wooden frames are stained in weathered colors rather than painted.

Could be your kitchen pictures can be found on a towel counter. New linen towels come handsomely printed in fascinating designs, both Early American and contemporary, and colors that are far from the old stand-pat kitchen colors. They're easy to frame and are big enough to make a real splash of color and eye-catching interest in the room's decoration.

MRS. A. W. "We are moving into a small apartment. I am told that the latest style is to choose a rug first and have the painter match the walls to the rug, and that green, gray, beige or rose are the right colors. Others say the rug should contrast with the walls. Which is correct?"

Matching walls and rug are fashionable and a good idea because the one color setting helps to make small rooms look larger. However, contrasting rugs will never be out of style and certainly are used in successful color scheming. Homes are too individual and personal for there to be one right way for everyone to plan a room.

Find out what's wrong with the room before you change it. Check it over with the help of Elizabeth Hillyer's new booklet "WHAT'S WRONG WITH THAT ROOM?," which not only spots weak points, but tells how to correct them. Consideration

By Christopher Billopp

WHEN he has the floor he gives no thought to time. He is spurred on by hearing his own voice. No sooner has he finished one story than he is reminded of another.

He is indifferent to the fact that when his recitation is taking place inside the house, persons in his audience have their overcoats on, or, when it is taking place outside, they are exposed to the elements.

He overlooks the fact that, within plain view, there are enough comfortable chairs to supply the needs of all of them. It does not occur to him that those he is addressing may have been on their feet the better part of the day, or that their shoes are pinching, or callous places are aching, or that corns are beginning to throb.

Under the stimulus of his own eloquence he does not notice that the smiles of his hearers are getting forced, or that they are resting their weight first on one foot and then on the other and are gazing longingly in the direction of the empty chairs.

If other members of his family give indications of cutting him off he senses their scheme immediately and looks in the opposite direction and merely speeds up his recitation. He sees to it that there are no delays in going from one topic to another which would enable somebody else to get in a word that would serve as an entering wedge for that person to take the floor.

Not until he has exhausted his store of anecdotes and witticisms and has nothing more to say does he pause in his narrative and give somebody else a chance.

Yet no sooner has his successor started than, with sudden concern, he interrupts to exclaim, "Look. We're keeping these people standing."

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

"SHOULD a girl write the first letter to a boy?" asks a high school senior.

It depends—on whether she knows him and whether he has shown any interest in hearing from her and writing to her. Here's her letter:

"I am a girl of 18. I know a girl who has a cousin in Korea. She tells me about him all the time. I do not know him personally, but I would like to write to him. Is it all right?"

Answer—When a girl knows the boy and he has agreed to write, it's O.K. if she writes first.

But in this case, it would be better if your girl friend writes to her cousin first to tell him about you and give him a chance to write to you first so you'll know for sure that he wants to hear from you.

Her letter to him could serve as a sort of introduction . . . and you can tell by his reply whether he wants to correspond with you.

Suddenly writing to him without knowing him, without any explanation to him from his cousin and without hearing from him first would be too, too eager

When your girl friend writes to him, she can tell him about you and give him your name and address. Then it's up to him and you'll get a letter if he's in a writing mood. Always keep your letters casual and friendly, not affectionate . . . after all, you don't know him!

St. Louisans Are Guests In New York

By Frances Conant Richards

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER HAASE were in and out of town last week on business meetings, a convention and a bit of shopping. They checked in at Atlantic City early this week just in time for a 10-inch snowfall which slowed down boardwalkers. Dorothy Haase came back to New York alone Tuesday to spend some time on household errands. Thursday night she had dinner at the New York Junior League clubhouse, now in the former Vincent Astor town house on East Eightieth.

Mrs. Charles Ingals Pierce arrived from Chicago last Monday and was at the Madison until Friday when she sailed on the Brittanic for a 66-day cruise to Egypt. For years Mrs. Pierce has been a frequent visitor to Mrs. James O'Malley Davies of St. Louis.

Corinne Froemke and her mother, Mrs. Gerald Froemke, landed a week ago after their West Indies cruise. Coming back from the land of warmth and sun, they arrived here on the coldest day of the winter. Corinne made plans for luncheon with a contemporary each day of the week. One day she met "Moonie" Gardner Wallace, now living here in the bride and bridegroom haven known as Peter Cooper Village. Another day she lunched with Claire Ann Werner Henriques — Mrs. Horace F. Henriques Jr. Claire Ann and Harry Henriques lived in Greenwich for a time after their marriage. Recently they moved to a new apartment up in the Riverside drive section to be near is classes at Columbia Law School.

THE THEATER SEASON is well established now with plenty of new hits. St. Louisans coming to town have only one problem, not which ones to see but how to get tickets. Mrs. Froemke is a good manager along these lines and she and her daughter took in "Sabrina Fair" and "Tea and Sympathy", Deborah Kerr's hit about a boys' boarding school. When last heard from Mrs. Froemke was about 99 per cent sure she had wangled a pair of seats for "Teahouse of the August Moon", the hit of the year, set on Okinawa.

Mrs. Preston Lockwood, whose late husband was the brother of R. J. Lockwood of St. Louis, was in the matinee audience last Saturday for the fifth performance of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial". This new Henry Fonda hit has New Yorkers scrambling to their favorite ticket brokers, pleading for seats and purring if they are able to get seats for mid-April.

Most discussed lecture in Town Hall last week was Mme. Perle Mesta's talk to a full house. Her chat, "My Life in Three World Capitals", had folksy motherly overtones and definite Billie Burke undertones. The audience heard what she said to President Truman, what President Truman said to her, how President Eisenhower felt about potato salad when he dropped in to call in Luxembourg, and that many Russians have stainless steel teeth, altogether a non-political, non-controversial evening.

Ronald Fraser was in the packed Metropolitan Opera House Wednesday evening when Jean Fenn made her debut in the role of Violetta in "La Traviata". Mr. Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Fraser, and several of his Princeton classmates have season seats. The opera house being just a few blocks from Penn station gives Princeton men a break when it comes to catching a fast train back to college after the last curtain. This weekend Ron and a group of Princeton men are in Stowe, Vt., for a try at ski trails.

Miss Floyd Moser Honored at Party

Seated at tables decorated with greenery and fruit were Miss Moser and five other debutantes, Miss Nancy Wight, Miss Lois White, Miss Julia Terry, Miss Marye Baldwin and Miss Beth Gamble, and their escorts, William Maritz, Joseph Dubuque, Richard Hungerford, Robert Moser, Omar Seven, Tanner Crisler and John Wiseman.

Also at the party were Miss Moser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Moser, who have rented their home on South Warson road, and are living in West Plains, Mo.; Mrs. L. Sturgis Day, with whom Miss Moser is staying; Miss Katherine Moon, Courtney Werner and James C. Jones III.

Pre-Wedding Parties For Miss Sassin

MISS Marie Antoinette Sassin, who will be married Saturday morning to Ernest John Ravarino, is being entertained at many pre-wedding parties. She is the daughter of Mrs. Anthony E. Sassin, 7524 Cromwell drive, Clayton, and her fiance is the son of Mrs. John Ravarino, 265 Blackmer avenue, Webster Groves.

Miss Susie Switzer was hostess Jan. 23, at a luncheon and bar shower at her home, 3 Forest Ridge, Clayton, and the next day Mrs. Richard Tenge and her daughter, Miss Mary Lois, gave a tea and linen shower at their home, 1028 East Linden avenue, Richmond Heights. Mr. Ranarino's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert I. Ravarino, gave a buffet supper at their home, 5 West Geyer lane, Kirkwood, Saturday. The same day Miss Bette Welek was hostess at a luncheon and kitchen shower at Missouri Athletic Club. Mr. and Mrs. George A. Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. M. Moss Alexander gave a breakfast at the Meyer home, 8435 Stanford avenue, University City yesterday.

Miss Sassin's sisters, Mrs. Alvis L. Staley and Miss Barbara Sassin, have planned a spinster dinner at Chalet de Normandie for Wednesday and the following evening the bridegroom's mother will give the rehearsal dinner at Le Chateau.

Parties have been given by the following: Mrs. Sidney Salomon Jr., 2 Spoede road, Creve Coeur, a luncheon and miscelaneous shower; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nusrala, 8021 Crescent drive, Clayton, a dinner; Mr. and Mrs. William Freschi, 9757 Old Warson road, Ladue, a dinner; Mrs. Donald Peterson, a surprise breakfast and personal shower at Town Hall, and Mrs. Joseph Ravarino, 6232 Nottingham avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Bararacco, a luncheon and pantry shower.

The wedding will take place at Immacolata Church at 11 o'clock and a reception and breakfast afterward will be in the Tower room of the Congress Hotel.

The Junior League and Scruggs, Vandervoort and Barney will present a fashion show called "Prelude to Spring" at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow and Wednesday at the league tea room. The shows will benefit the Forest Park Children's Center.

Party at University For Mrs. Shepley

A SPECIAL meeting of the Washington University Woman's Club will be held Friday, Feb. 5, at 2 p.m. to honor Mrs. Ethan A. H. Shepley, wife of the university's new acting chancellor. Guests, gathering in the Women's Building on the campus, will be received by Mrs. Shepley; Mrs. William W. Burke, president of the Woman's Club; Mrs. LeRoy Boling and Mrs. Hallowell Davis, vice presidents; and Mrs. Charles J. Kippenhan, secretary.

After refreshments have been served, the Washington University student drama group, Thyrsus, will present a program including excerpts from the forthcoming production of Shakespeare's "King Lear."

Solution of Saturday's Puzzle

My Day

An Answer On Greatness Of America

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

I HAVE just received a letter from Palm Beach, Fla., which the writer addresses to "Dear Eleanor" and signs "Ethel." Unfortunately there is no address and I do not recognize the handwriting, and since I would like to answer her, I shall have to do so through my column.

Mrs. Roosevelt

The writer says: "Your heading, 'All Americans were foreigners once,' should be followed by 'America is now no more such as when occupied once by people born here before the immigrant gate was opened.' Now it is fast becoming a European slum," and she underlines the last five words.

"It would seem," she continues, "that since Franklin was elected the first time both you and he catered to the ordinary type of beings far, far too much. Why not spend the remainder of your few years on earth and try to teach the people (this last word is underlined) politeness and manners of which we have none in this great (?) America." The question mark is the writer's.

FIRST OF ALL, I would like to enlighten the dear lady and explain that columnists do not write the headings of their columns. It is true that I said "once we were all foreigners," and I am sure that if she will read our history she will see the point. Even those of us who came here before we encouraged mass immigration, to help us develop a great continent, were foreigners, since we came from other lands. My ancestors came here from Ireland, Scotland, France, Holland and probably other countries that I do not remember. And even though she may not have so many different strains, hers must have come from some foreign country. Otherwise she would be an Indian, and none of us knows just exactly where our Indians came from.

Now we have closed our gates almost entirely to immigration, and I would suggest that my correspondent take a little better look at our country. Slums are rapidly disappearing. Small homes are the order of the day, and they look very comfortable and neat and are constantly being improved. I would not put a question mark after the word "great" in speaking of the United States. I think this is a great country, and that we can be proud of it and of our people, even those who came during the mass immigration years. Without them, there would be no railroads across this continent and our natural resources would not have been developed. We might have been still a backward country.

AS TO THE QUESTION of politeness and good manners, I am sure you will agree with me that manners today vary from country to country as do customs and habits. But one thing never varies, and that is kindness. It is the basis of all good manners everywhere in the world, and I have found that the people of the United States, whether rich or poor, are very apt to have great natural kindness. They have dignity, too, and that is part of good manners. This dignity stems from a sense of independence, from the power to control their own destiny which is greater perhaps in this country than in any other country in the world. I have been in the homes of many people, the very great and the very simple, and I have found good manners and politeness in both.

Your judgment of the American people, my dear Ethel, may have been made from rather superficial contacts. Perhaps, when you know them better as a whole, you will like them better.

8 Rules for Staying Young

By Mary Margaret McBride

ADD memorable words: "The worst tragedy would be to have to say of life at your last gasp, 'Oh, was THAT all there was to it!'"

Author: Cid Ricketts Sumner, about 70, peppery and successful novelist whose latest, "The Hornbean Tree" has an older woman for a heroine.

"Each period of life has to be lived not only fully but used as a preparation for the next period," Mrs. Sumner told me firmly. "Every young person should look ahead and find something to be interested in doing when he is old and alone. I have my writing and that keeps me from being an interfering mother-in-law and grandmother. But if I didn't write, I would hang paper, make dresses or model them (why don't they have some models at least a little thick in the waist anyway?) or maybe I'd go back to medical school and finish my course."

SHE WOULD, TOO, practicing meantime Cid Ricketts Sumner's rugged eight-point credo for life. This is it:

Legs—It's the legs that go back on you. Use your legs, don't let them jellify or ossify. Keep going. Walk, ride, go up and down stairs fast. Never mind if it kills you.

Things—Don't be a slave to them. Your heirs and assigns will probably throw out most of that junk you cherish. Better do it yourself.

Memories—Throw them out, too. Go live in a new place. Here is a new life, a different one. Never think back or regret. Go ahead.

Work—If you don't know how to do anything, learn. Never stop learning. (Cid's mother took up the violin at 70.)

Perspective — Now is the time to get a good look at life and try to see what it's all about. If you're ever going to have any sense, it will be now. This is quite exciting, figuring out things and taking a long look.

Time—It is precious now as never before. Use it. Do quickly the things you've always wanted to do "sometime."

Risks—Take them. It's the young who should be cautious. They have so much to lose. You have little to lose. Live dangerously.

MRS. SUMNER LOOKED at me as if daring me to disagree with her. I certainly didn't. Only must I really run upstairs to prove my zest for life?

P.S.—Mrs. Sumner's real first name, Cid, comes from the word placid, and was given her because she was that kind of baby!

Chalk Striped Silks

Chalk-striped silks are appearing for entire dresses and also for trimming on suits. One suit has collar and cuffs of the striped silk, repeating the same theme in a full petticoat. Another has yoke of the stripes while the rest of the dress and jacket are of navy blue woolen. The shirtwaist coat dress of vertically striped taffeta is a newcomer for early spring.

Collarless Coat

The collarless coat patterned after the cardigan sweater has become so generally popular that it is featured extensively again for early spring. A typical style has bell-shaped sleeves and a flaring skirt section. Neckline is finished with a shaped band which gives width at the sides rather than fitting snugly in the approved cardigan manner.

Cruise Dresses

The popular T-shirt is a model for some of the fashionable casual dresses that have gone into cruise wardrobes. The vogue of white with dark accents serves to give this style additional popularity. One dress of a sharkskin type of material has navy blue bandings around the high, round neckline and also to finish the armholes. Another dress, similarly designed, uses bright red and navy bands against a white background.

Ever add up the TAXES you pay with your TELEPHONE bill?
YOU PAY $3.23 PER MONTH IN TAXES WITH THE AVERAGE TELEPHONE BILL

WHEN YOU PAY your telephone bill, here's the part that goes for the kind of taxes all businesses share — state, county, and city property taxes, income taxes, and other levies to support the cost of government. Last year, our total operating taxes in Missouri amounted to $21,300,000, or $1.72 per telephone per month. Because these taxes are paid directly by the company, they are included in the basic price you pay for telephone service.

MOST PEOPLE THINK of telephone service as a necessity. Yet telephone service carries a Federal excise tax — in most cases a tax levied on "luxuries." This tax is levied directly against you — as a user of telephone service. The telephone company acts only as a collecting agent. Last year, Missourians paid $18,600,000 in direct Federal and state taxes on telephone service, or $1.39 per month per telephone in Federal excise tax, and 12 cents per month per telephone in state sales tax.

THE FEDERAL EXCISE TAX IS OVER AND ABOVE the rates you pay for telephone service. This wartime "luxury" tax adds 15 per cent to the cost of your local service and long distance calls under 25¢, and 25 per cent to long distance calls of 25¢ or more. When you subtract this tax from your bill and consider the real cost of telephone service alone, it is an even better bargain than you may have thought.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

LANA was so pale that Madame called an assistant and together they removed the pink gown, provided a negligee and made Lana rest on the chaise. "Bring coffee at once," Madame directed and when it had come and Lana sipped it, still without saying a word Madame said kindly, "My dear, you are not the first girl to face such a disillusionment. And do not forget that you are jumping to a conclusion which may prove false. Why is it that you are so quick to believe that Senor Neves and Marian Ames were together in Argentina? You do not trust him?"

Lana raised tortured blue eyes to the older woman. "I guess I don't trust him. I want to, Madame, but I can't."

Mme. Renauld sighed. "So be it then. But you must remember this. What happened last week was last week. You were not engaged then. Certainly you were not married."

"I'm trying to understand," Lana said desperately.

"Then forget it, Cheri."

"I will. But I'm hurt."

MADAME patted her hand. "Good. Now you are being sensible. As for being hurt—when one is truly in love it is worth all the hurt. Raul is a fine man. He can make you very happy if you handle him in the right way. If you do not—all will fail."

She lit a cigarette, saying frankly, "I see them all the time. American wives married to Latins. They are disillusioned and they show it. They nag and threaten. It cannot work that way. To be married to a Latin with any degree of happiness a woman must give complete freedom. You understand, Cheri?"

"I understand," Lana said, trying to ignore the terrible ache in her heart. "But is it worth it?"

"Ah, that is for you to decide my dear. Only your own heart can answer that question."

Lana knew she would never feel as close to Raul again and yet she did not doubt her love for him. Rather, she felt their relationship was pitted against almost impossible odds but something drove her on to accept the challenge.

It was in this utterly confused state of mind that she approached their engagement party on Saturday afternoon.

The party was to be held in the Crystal room of the City Hotel and since early morning florists had been decorating the mirror-lined walls with hundreds of tropical flowers. The best orchestra in Rio would play—"only Brazilian music," as Raul had directed without asking Lana's preference.

He had presented her with an engagement gift, a pearl and diamond necklace with long elaborate earrings to match. At his instruction a hairdresser had come to her room to arrange her coiffure. "I dislike the casual way American women arrange their hair," Raul had told Lana frankly.

SHE did not object to anything—even to Raul's final inspection before she was ready to enter the Crystal room. He surveyed her as if she had been a statue created purely for his personal pleasure, and he was not disappointed for she was truly beautiful. Tall and slender with the proud carriage suitable to the ethereal pink gown, his jewels sparkled at her throat. His aquamarine was noticeably large and heavy on her finger. Her eyes were shadowed with the hurt she dared not reveal.

Raul kissed her hand. "You look truly exquisite, my Lana," he said feeling, but not understanding, the haunting sadness in her.

She was introduced to his friends and felt a cold formality in them. She met his mother and his two sisters who covered their obvious disapproval with courteous nods. For the first time Lana realized her tremendous handicap of not speaking Portuguese. She would learn the language in time, of course. Scottie Reynolds and Brad Dunham were there, too, watching her with sympathetic eyes. Only when she was dancing with Raul did the importance of the step she was taking fade into insignificance. Only then did the magic return and her emotions blotted out the objections that common sense were about to force upon her.

The party was almost over when Lana looked up to see Marian Ames. She was not dressed for the occasion and obviously had been drinking as she clutched Lana's arm unsteadily and said, "I must talk to you—right away—alone!"

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

THE ISLAND of Ceylon was a British Crown colony for 146 years. Then—six years ago—it became a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

In Ceylon today there are more than 7,500,000 people. Most of them are brown-skinned folk who are related to the races of nearby India.

The natives of Ceylon are largely of Singalese or Tamil stock. But a few thousand are half-wild tribesmen known as Veddas. The Veddas live away from the cities and obtain much of their food by hunting and fishing. Like their ancestors of 2000 years ago, they bring down game with bows and arrows.

IN GENERAL, however, the Ceylonese follow lives of a civilized sort. They export thousands of tons of tea each year, also large amounts of rubber and coconut products.

Ceylon contains an object which the residents call the Holy Hill. It is about 1000 feet high, and at the top are remains of buildings which were set up long ago. One building is 150 feet high, and on its dome are dozens of trees!

We can only guess how the soil got there. Perhaps the winds blew sand and dust into worn parts of the dome. It is believed that tree seeds were dropped by birds, or else were blown there by the wind.

stone steps lead up one side of the Holy Hill. Most of them were formed from long slabs of granite, but 150 steps were cut from solid rock.

ALONG THE SIDES of the Holy Hill is ancient writing, and much of the writing has been translated. Here are a few of the things written there:

"No one who takes the life of any person or animal can live near this hill. All persons who attend temple services shall buy flowers. Sick persons will be given good care and the right kinds of food."
